Harris Wants Vote Machine, Not Self-Glory

Today

Make the Army a School.
A Job for Lindbergh.
Trotzky and His Sorrow.
Not Enough Diamonds.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MR. DAVIS, secretary of war, is to be congratulated on happier conditions in the Army, as proved by the great increase in re-enlistments. Men, once in the Army, want to stay there.

THE nation has two schools for training officers, West Point and Annapolis. Why not make the Army itself a great training school for fliers? Young men all want to fly, no higher mathematics, Greek or Latin, is necessary, only a flying machine and an intelligent teacher.

FLIERS should get extra pay. From the Army they should be graduated to commercial flying, and especially to postoffice flying. That is the way to make Army life attractive, and useful to the nation. One thousand fliers might be worth many billions of dollars to this country.

MR. MILLS, able advertising man, wishes you to know that he has offered President Coolidge $75,000 a year for four years, to act as general director of a homes furnishing movement.

President Coolidge has bigger offers. Why not offer the home furnishing job to Col. Lindbergh, whose mind just now is probably concentrated on that very subject?

AT LAST, real news of Trotzky, walking up and down in Constantinople, free to do as he pleases—except that he mustn't leave Constantinople. And Turkish newspapers are forbidden to mention his name. Rather hard on a public man.

LONG ago the Roman emperors established themselves there on the border line between Europe and Asia, and for centuries it was supposed that Constantinople would be the center of the world. The Mediterranean is now a lake and the Atlantic is yielding first place to the Pacific.

Trotzky must think of days when it was supposed that he, Trotzky, would be the center of the great Russian people. In revolution glory fades quickly.

PATRIOTIC ladies presen' to Mrs. Coolidge a souvenir of her admirable "kindness" and graciousness while hostess of the White House.

The souvenir contains 200 diamonds.

Two hundred thousand diamonds would not be too many, except that Mrs. Coolidge cares nothing for jewelry, wears practically none.

IF A gentleman's committee, emulating the intelligent ladies' committee, tried to give Calvin Coolidge as many dollars as he has earned, he would be the richest man in the world with plenty to spare.

IN CERTAIN lines, modern civilization is efficient, although it does not know how to stop bootlegging or discourage wholesale crime.

At 2:15 p. m. yesterday, in New York, on Fourth avenue, in the silk district near Twentieth street, a Yellow taxicab caught fire. Two minutes later the air was full of strange noises, coming from every direction. Several fire engines, two enormous hook and ladder trucks, one chemical fire engine, three automobiles bringing fire chiefs, and other apparatus concentrated on that little yellow taxi. It never dreamed that it could be so important.

SIX firemen in rubber coats, with six iron hooks, jerked the hood off the engine, and that fire was a thing of the past.

Then all the apparatus, sirens howling, returned whence it had come, with all the dignity of the angel messenger that Dante describes, coming to rebuke presumptuous fiends and returning.

A "SOCIAL leader" died in Palm Beach yesterday, and from Miami there came news that Jack Dempsey had escaped death, thanks to the bad aim of an intruder in his home.

NEWSPAPERS, as you notice, give ten times as much space to Dempsey alive and well, as to the social leader, dead and cold. And that's good journalism.

Newspapers should tell people about things that interest them. A good newspaper is an accurate mirror, not a preacher.

CHICAGO doesn't like the suggestion that New York time should become Chicago time. During daylight saving, Chicago would have to put the clock ahead two hours.

Chicago says, "We get up early now. Let New York adopt our time. They take life comfortably there, and it doesn't matter much when they get up."

TORNADOES KILL 35 IN SOUTH

International News Service.

A series of tornadoes, cutting across the southern part of the country yesterday, claimed a known toll of 35 dead, scores injured, and an untold property damage.

The greatest damage was wreaked at Duncan, Miss., where early today 21 bodies had been recovered from the debris that covered the stricken waterless and lightless city, patroled by malitiamen.

The twister struck two other towns in Mississippi. At Alligator, six miles away, two persons were killed and five injured. At Marks, in the same area, two other lives were claimed.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS HIT

Two persons were killed at Van, Ark., two at Grand Prairie, Tex., and two at Cooper, Tex., by twisters earlier in the day.

On a plantation near Darling, Miss., two unidentified Negroes were killed. Two others were crushed to death near Dewitt, Ark., when their farm home was demolished.

Indications that the death toll would mount steadily were adduced from Mississippi reports, which said many of the 50 or more injured at Duncan may die, and that all the debris had not yet been searched for other bodies.

Reports indicated that the storm had struck several rural communities in Mississippi, from which no definite news has been received because of crippled telegraph communication.

TOWN WIPED OUT

DUNCAN, Miss., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Twenty-one persons dead, an unestimated number injured, and a property damage that will run into thousands, was the known toll today

U. S.-County Court Co-operation Urged

Judge Drew said he would consult United States Attorney John D. Meyer and call a conference of lawyers to devise a plan for the courts to alternate when their schedules were heavy.

Judge Drew said the remainder of the county grand jury probe cases would be listed for next week.

A voluntary statement that murder, not suicide, brought the death of F. Louis Clark, 15 years ago, today may clear up one of California's greatest crime mysteries. Mrs. Kelly, alias Miss Marie Allen, 38, has made the statement and police have reopened the probe of the death of Clark, millionaire sportsman.

BRIZZLE GUILTY IN AUTO DEATH

The end of a wild joy ride, after a drinking party with three girls at a Shaler Township roadhouse, came for Joseph Brizzle, 54-year-old blast furnace foreman, in Criminal Court today, when a jury after 15 minutes deliberation, pronounced him guilty of involuntary manslaughter.

The death of Michael Stefanick, 20, of 969 East Ohio street, killed by an automobile in which Brizzle was riding with Genevieve Fitzpatrick, was laid at his door by the verdict.

According to the testimony he had one arm around Miss Fitzpatrick, who was driving, and the other on the steering wheel. Indicted on the same charge as Brizzle, Miss Fitzpatrick, of 5315 Butler street, has pleaded no defense.

Brizzle, married and the father of two children, played host to three girls — Genevieve Fitzpatrick, her sister, Beatrice, 19, and Grace Fallinger, 20, of 6222 Butler street, at a beer party, it was testified.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 26.—Abolition of capital punishment in Pennsylvania is sought in a bill introduced in the House of Representatives last night by Representative G. Harry Ditter, Philadelphia.

CROSS-CITY ROAD PLAN READY

Plans for the creation of one of Pittsburgh's most important crosstown traffic artery are revealed in the granting of permission by the City Planning Commission for the reopening of the question of widening Strawberry way.

Strawberry way, under the Better Traffic Committee's plan, would provide a cross-town artery between the Ninth Street bridge and the Liberty bridge and the Armstrong tubes, intersecting Smithfield and Grant streets, William Penn way and Bigelow boulevard, and projected eastward would tap Webster avenue, Wylie avenue, Fifth avenue and Forbes street. It would connect also with the proposed new route to Oakland via Colwell street and a viaduct to the base of Gazzam's hill.

FUTURE NEED SEEN

Provision for handling traffic originating from the new postoffice and the Federal Reserve Bank, proposed at Grant street and Strawberry way, is one of the chief arguments to be presented in the reopening of the case, said Frank L. Duggan, chairman of a Better Traffic Committee group which has the project in charge. The crosstown feature will be stressed, he said.

MAPS AND PLANS READY

L. W. Monteverde, chairman of the City Planning Commission, has authorized the Better Traffic Committee to present new arguments favoring the widening project and plans made after a comprehensive study of the traffic situation in the light of many improvements in progress or projected for the Grant street and Seventh avenue area.

Duggan announced that maps and plans had been completed and were ready for presentation to the commission.

THE REV. DR. HILLIS

DR. N. D. HILLIS DIES AT 71

At the time of his death he held the title pastor emeritus, conferred upon him after his resignation of the pastorate in 1924. He had been pastor 25 years.

'My Girl Friday' Cast To Know Fate Friday

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Lucille Mendez, Esther Muir, Alice Weaver and other members of the cast of "My Girl Friday," closed as an obscene production by police, must wait until Friday before knowing their fate. Police Magistrate McAndrews today reserved decision until that day. The show will reopen March 10 at Philadelphia in another attempt to escape the censors, it is reported. Brevity of costumes was the chief complaint.

DECLARES BILL MUST PASS

By WILLIAM I. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 26.—Opening the hearing on the voting machine bills this afternoon, Senator Frank J. Harris reiterated his statement that the question of the sponsor of such a measure is unimportant, but the important point is to approve some such measure.

"We must put into effect the mandate of the people," he said. "Voting machines were approved last November by a majority of 400,000."

The same attitude was taken by Judge Richard W. Martin, who said he did not appear for any individual bill, but for the general principle of voting machines.

"The need for some correction of election frauds is imperative," he said. "Representative Democracy has this peril—the will of the majority may be thawrted by votes changed on the night of the election."

SPEAKS FOR ARMSTRONG

Assistant County Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher, of Pittsburgh, appearing for Commissioner Joseph T. Armstrong, declared the latter is not disapproving voting machines in any way, but did wish some questions answered concerning the bills.

"This information will possibly prevent future confusion and litigation," said Lesher. "The use of these machines will mean a revolution in voting in this state."

Lesher charged the voting machines had no provision for bond issues or constitutional amendments.

CONVICTED ORIE STILL ON BENCH

John W. Orie dispensed justice today as police magistrate in the Strip district despite his conviction in Federal Court yesterday of willfully neglecting to file an income tax return for 1925. He was found not guilty of attempted evasions of the same taxations.

Mayor Charles H. Kline will not discharge Orie as a result of the Federal Court action, the Mayor said yesterday. The Mayor explained he had heard only unofficially of the disposition of Orie's case with the government and that he would require time to consider the text of the verdict and the extent of the offense.

"I am going to continue as police magistrate because I know I am not guilty of any felony, but merely the victim of a political battle," Magistrate Orie declared at Penn Avenue Police Station today.

The government alleged Orie had a gross income in 1925 of $58,970.72.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, who presided at the trial, announced he

SOUTH SIDE INSPECTOR ACCUSED AT TRIAL

The government turned its guns on Police Inspector John J. McArdle today in Federal Court, where he and 16 other South Siders are on trial as members of an alleged liquor ring, which, the prosecution contends, is protected by police under political orders.

Two witnesses, confessed proprietors of speakeasies, told of going to "see" McArdle before they opened up their resorts.

"Where are you going to locate?" McArdle asked him, Casper Saltzman, of 1818 Carson street testified.

ATE THERE EVERY WEEK

Saltzman told him, and thereafter once a week the police inspector visited his combination saloon and restaurant and ate a meal in the place, the witness revealed.

Saltzman linked McArdle, James Swift and the four Meyers brothers—all defendants—for the first time since the trial started yesterday.

VISITED McARDLE

Charles Saling, who told of selling "booze" in his place at 115 South Twenty-second street, testified as to his visit to the South Side Police Station to see McArdle.

"I told him I was going to open up a place," Saling testified, "but he didn't consent. I went to see Francis Kirley at his home. He said, 'Go ahead, it's up to you.'"

Saling added that before he bought from the Meyers brothers, whom the government paints as the official dispensers of political booze, he was raided twice, but that, after he switched to them, the police failed to bother his business.

"How did you come to do business with the Meyers boys?" Assistant United States Attorney Ralph H. Smith asked.

"I was raided," Sailing answered," and fined $50 by Magistrate

ALMA RUBENS IS COURT CHARGE

Alma Rubens

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Alma Rubens, film star, was committed to the City Psychopathic Hospital at an early hour today by Superior Judge M. F. McComb in the actress' latest effort to combat the narcotic habit, it was learned from court records.

After consultation at the home of Miss Rubens' mother, Mrs. Theresa Rubens, the doctors said the screen star had been at the point of death several times during the past few days.

It was revealed that, in the course of medical treatment designed to cure her of the narcotic habit, administration of small doses of narcotics had been terminated three days ago. The reaction in her physical condition followed. Only physicians and members of her immedate family were allowed to see her. Her husband, Ricardo Cortez, also a film star, was said by members of the family to be at his wife's bedside constantly.

NOT A PASSENGER KILLED ON P. & L. E. IN 50 YEARS

The Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad enjoys the unusual record of having operated for 50 years without a single passenger fatality, according to statistics just announced. Officials of the road decline to discuss the achievement, however.

Although careful operation and strict enforcement of safety first rules undoubtedly have had much to do with this enviable record, officials of the company generally seem to maintain the "knock on wood" attitude.

As one official expressed himself today, "Naturally, we're proud of the record, but why boast? There is always tomorrow, and accidents will happen!"

RIVER ICE NEAR BURSTING FROM RISING WATER'S FORCE

Rising waters will break the ice packs in the lower Allegheny River late today or tonight, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted today.

At Natrona and Freeport the ice is a foot thick. With the prospect of the lower river being cleared, the danger will be lessened when the gorges in the upper stream give way.

The rivers at the Point registered 14.1 feet at noon and were rising slowly. A stage of 18 feet tomorrow was predicted, and there the rise is expected to stop. Flood stage here is 25 feet.

Ice flowing from the Kiskiminetas River piled up into a huge mass at Kiskiminetas Junction, according to reports to the weather bureau.

Cellars in Oakdale were flooded last night.

Fair and somewhat colder weather is predicted for tonight with cloudy and colder Wednesday.

HOOVER SEEKS 'BONE DRY' FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

TEMPERANCE IN EUROPE DESCRIBED

Montague Glass, famous author of "Potash and Perlmutter," playwright and author of many short stories, who for many years has delighted Americans with his humor, adds a touch of wit today to the discussion of the temperance problem and the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest.

When interviewed for the Hearst newspapers, Mr. Glass told of his late four-year residence in France and his observations there pertinent to America's problem. He went on to say:

"No person of delicacy wants to see his neighbor intoxicated, but if alcoholic beverages must be had, let their cheapness and purity recommend them, as for instance in the case of 4 per cent beer. Becoming truly intoxicated on 4 per cent beer is so nearly an impossibility that the French government permits it to be peddled by old ladies, without a license fee.

"IN BABY CARRIAGES"

"This is done by trundling the beverage along the streets in ancient baby carriages, and when the old lady reaches one of those complicated building operations, which in France and Italy involve so much loud conversation, the workingmen lay off to purchase 4 per cent beer at 2 cents the bottle.

"I suspect from tasting the French wine with an alcoholic content of 10 degrees that one-thousandth of 1 per cent constitutes a degree of alcohol for French wine purposes, and this, by the way, reminds me of a story.

"The Barone Magare-Onarabile of Milan was dying and he gathered his children around him.

"'Children,' he said, 'the famiglia Magare-Onarabile have been famous in Milan for generations because of the excellent quality of the wine which that ancient family has produced, and I want you to promise me faithfully that come what may, the famiglia Magare-Onarabile will continue to manufacture wine in Milan of only the highest Milan quality.'

DIES CONTENT

"They promised the barone, and he sighed contentedly. For a few minutes he closed his eyes, as though in prayer, and then he said: 'And now, my children, I want to tell you a secret which none of you has ever before heard. WINE CAN ALSO BE MADE FROM GRAPES.'

Bad Spirits a Curse

"Nothing can drive a man to drink with more certainty than drinking the adulterated wine such as is now customarily sold in America. Francois Villon, the ancient French poet, has written a long catalog of what ought to be done to the wine-maker who adulterates wine. Under our prohibition law, he ought to be sent to jail, because bad wine makes a man drink spirits, and nobody, in or out of the Anti-Saloon League, advocates the use of spirits.

"'But,' you will say, 'drinking spirits, and bad spirits, is precisely what Americans in their millions are doing today—prohibition law or no prohibition law.'

"That is the experience of ages—that when men are denied the pleasure of mild, beneficial, fermented beverages, they will have recourse to spirits. I call to witness my friend, the mayor of a large fishing port of the Coast of Brittany. In discussing the frightful drunkenness of the Breton and Norman fisherman, the mayor told me that the curse of Brittany and Normandy was the little bistro or saloon, where bad brandy is sold at 2 cents a thimbleful.

"Fifteen thimblefuls of this stuff will make the fondest husband go home and use his wife for a sparring partner. The good mayor agreed that the sale of intoxicants ought to be suppressed in the fishing ports of Brittany. He said that in the wine-growing districts of France, drunkenness was unknown, and that wine and beer were the only soft drinks which could supplant the harsh distilled cider spirit, calvados, provided the wine was pure, and the beer good.

"There is no drunkenness in Auxerre, where at the Hotel de l'Epee, they sell Chablis, 1911, which is the imprisoned sunshine of the Cote d'or. In Dijon, where the wines of Burgundy are sold in their integrity, a drunken man has never been seen by the oldest inhabitant.

"In many large towns of France today, the breweries of Alsace-Lorraine are opening restaurants and taverns where one may obtain the creamy, foaming, soft and delicious beers of that newly reclaimed territory. I have no idea what percentage of alcohol causes those tankards to foam so attractively, but it is not enough to make anybody intoxicated. Day after day, I have sat in the Taverne Brasserie d'Alsace-Lorraine in Nice, and over a period of four years, I have yet to see a drunken man.

"In the experience of our well-meaning prohibitionists, beer is a sour, impure liquid, probably fortified with much alcohol, and wine is a sweet and noxious compound little better than a emetic. But why not listen to the experience of the mayor of that Breton fishing port, who laughed when I told him that the sale of 4 per cent lager beer was prohibited in America.

"'You might just as well prosecute a man who sold a cup of coffee, he declared, 'because it contains a poisonous alkaloid, caffeine.'"

Other views of people of note on temperance and the temperance prize contest are subjoined:

Haley Fiske

Haley Fiske, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, New York:

"I rejoiced in the offering by Mr. Hearst of the temperance contest awards. I liked Gov. Smith's proposals in his campaign very much, but if the offer of these awards will bring out a better plan I am sure he will be glad as well as myself.

"Something has to be done to stop the present demoralization and the wholesale violations of the law, the widespread corruption of officials, federal and state; the demoralization of young people, who in a dare-devil fashion seek to express their protest; the supplying of purchasers with poisonous liquor, all point to the need of a change in the laws.

"Personally I do not believe in sumptuary laws, and the claim that any drinking is wicked, I think, is anti-Christian. I wish every success for the temperance campaign."

Will Irwin

"Prohibition, I believe, is not the right way to go about correcting the country's liquor evils. Therefore I welcome Mr. Hearst's temperance contest for the discussion it is raising and the energy it is stirring toward the formation of a plan that will bring moderation in drinking.

"In the first place, I don't believe in the idea of prohibition. I consider it a complete failure. Not that we cannot enforce morality. We do. We enforce laws against theft, murder and destruction of property.

"But we enforce them because they have the overwhelming support of the people. A moral law cannot be enforced unless there is that overwhelming opinion in favor of the moral behind it.

"In America there is a strong minority, and in some places even a majority of persons who do not believe it is wrong to drink alcoholic liquors. If Americans were as generally agreed that it is wrong to take a drink as they are that it is wrong to steal a dime, then we could enforce prohibition. But they are not, and attempts to enforce the law only result in farce or tragedy.

"We now have a fundamental law that we apparently can neither enforce nor eliminate from the code. Only intensive thinking will get us out of the national dilemma, and I believe the Hearst contest is pointing the way."

STORM STRIKES BUT TWICE

Before striking here the twister swooped down upon the little town of Alligator, six miles away, and injured 5 persons whose home was demolished. The storm did not strike at any other place in that vicinity, acording to reports here.

7 Rules for $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

VOTE REVEALS DOOM OF COAL POLICE

By WILLIAM I. GRUNDI H,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 26.—The fate of the coal and iron police system depends upon the bill that is being prepared by Gov. John S. Fisher, Attorney General Cyrus E. Woods and his assistants.

The system is doomed. That much is certain. The manner in which the Baldridge resolution went through the House unanimously showed that beyond the shadow of a doubt.

DEMAND NAMES

The resolution was sponsored by Carl C. Baldridge, of Allegheny. It went through the House last night without a dissenting vote, demanding that every corporation in Pennsylvania, before the middle of March, furnish the Legislature with the name, address and present whereabouts of every coal and iron policeman in their employ.

Theoretically, these names are on file in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Practically, they are inaccessible or have been since the Pinchot administration took office.

NO PENALTY FIXED

The flaw in the resolution is that there is no penalty for officers and directors of a coal company or other corporation that does not make a truthful report.

Corporation lobbies are working overtime in an effort to kill that resolution in the Senate. At the same time those friendly to the resolution are seeking some manner in which to insure truthful replies. These men say there is no reason why the Pittsburgh Coal Company and all other corporations should not be willing to furfish the Legislature the names, addresses and records of all police in their employ, especially since three such officers are being held in connection with the brutal killing of John Borkoski, Santiago miner.

MANSFIELD BILL DELAYED

The bill of Senator William D. Mansfield, McKeesport, limiting the powers and fixing the responsibilities of such police, which was on third reading in the Senate last night, was sent back to the Committee on Judiciary General by agreement. It would have passed, only the fact that Gov. Fisher is preparing an administration measure on the subject made it advisable for its backers to delay action until the other measure made its appearance. According to reports here this morning, the administration bill will be even more drastic than the Mansfield measure.

No action has yet been taken on the Dunn resolution demanding the apointment of a legislative committee to investigate the coal and iron police system.

Nor has any action been taken on the repeal bill introduced by Representative M. A. Musmanno.

SQUIRE'S BOOKS EXAMINED

County authorities today were examining the official records of Mrs. Margaret Morgan, Sewickley's justice of the peace, whose office figured indirectly in the alleged slaying of John Borkoski, Santiago miner, by three coal and iron policemen of the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

Mrs. Morgan

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner explained that he wanted a check on the disposition of certain cases Mrs. Morgan had heard.

Mrs. Morgan protested vigorously to Assistant District Attorney H. R. Phillips and Chief of County Detectives G. W. Murren against the use of her name in connection with the Borkoski case which she termed a "brutal crime."

She denied sending Ross Schaffer to Tyre to arrest Borkoski, asserting she was without authority to do so. It was customary, she said, for coal and iron police to notify constables to take prisoners to jail.

ORIE AND STRIP CASES GO OVER

All federal jurors except those trying the South Side liquor conspiracy case were dismissed today and pending cases were postponed until the special April term of court.

Deferred cases include the Strip, Twenty-second Ward and Twenty-seventh Ward rum conspiracy prosecutions, the income tax case against Stanley Orie, brother of Police Magistrate John W. Orie, who yesterday was found guilty on a similar charge. Scores of witnesses had been summoned to appear for the Strip trial which was listed for tomorrow.

The only explanation for the unexpected move on the part of the government was that the large number of guilty pleas had disarranged plans of the federal attorneys.

Sweeney. A couple of fellows from the police station came to see me. One of them, a policeman named Coyne, told me I'd have to buy from Meyers if I wanted to do business. Then Jimmy Swift came and got the order. Mickey Meyers collected for it."

Saling brought smiles to the spectators when he testified that his last delivery of booze from the Meyers brothers was as recent as last Tuesday.

"Sam collected for it later," the witness added.

M'ARDLE PUTS LID DOWN

He also testified that when he wanted to reopen after a raid Swift took him to Inspector McArdle at the South Side Station and that McArdle told him then, also two weeks later when he visited him at the station alone, that he could not reopen.

Swift also took him to visit a one-legged man in City Hall, the witness testified. He was unable to further identify the man.

Mickey, Gus, Joe and Sam Meyers and Swift were involved as moonshine and "good stuff" purveyors in the testimony of other witnesses today. Several told of buying liquor since the finding of the indictments. Walter Kubara, of Sarah street, received a delivery of moonshine about five weeks ago, and Albert A. Dapper, of South Eighteenth street, received three five-gallon cans last week, all uncollected for as yet, according to their testimony, which involved "Mickey" Meyers.

The government was hopeful today of obtaining better results with its witnesses following yesterday's developments. Four of the government's 15 witnesses were arrested on perjury charges after they had left the stand. The government seemed to feel that William Gorniak, Harry Brethauer, Michael Michalski and Joseph Shilling hadn't told the same story they gave before the grand jury. Shilling was released today under $1,000 bail. The others were confined in No. 1 Police Station.

MAGISTRATE ON TRIAL

The notable defendants in this trial are Police Magistrate John J. Sweeney, Police Inspector J. McArdle, his brother, Patrick McArdle; Police Lieuts. John Joyce and John M. Vandall and Ward Chairman Kirley.

Police Lieut. James L. Challis was among the 11 defendants against whom the charges were dropped, and Lieut. James B. Early escaped trial because he was indicted under the name of John Early. Lieut. James Rogan did not appear, and Judge McVicar declared his $5,000 bond forfeited.

The case against William Parchman was continued because of illness; Cyril K. Schleicher and George Altmeyer changed their pleas to no defense and Edward L. Smith and J. M. Maisey were not arraigned because they have not been apprehended.

Evangelist Jailed On Check Charge

Johnson Miller, 45, of Edgewood, street evangelist, was lodged in the county jail today, awaiting hearing on charges involving $200 in worthless checks. He was committed last night by Justice of the Peace Ira Edmundson, of Mt. Lebanon, after information had been made in behalf of A. H. Hoffman, North Side.

Death Explains Absence of Witness

Michael Trobovich, of 2800 Carson street, summoned as a witness in the South Side conspiracy trial, will not testify. When his name was called to take the stand in United States Court today several friends reported: "He died this morning."

HARRIS WANTS VOTING MACHINES, NOT GLORY

Judge James Gray, Pittsburgh, was the second speaker in behalf of voting machines. He too urged the passage of what the legislators believed to be the best bill without urging any single one.

"Voting machines in themselves will not be a panacea," he said, "they will relieve election officers of an enormous amount of drudgery. The machines will record the totals as soon as the polls close. Often errors are made through ignorance and incompetency, not to mention fraud. Voting machines will eliminate such errors."

Representative Joseph C. Marcus, Allegheny, presided. He is chairman of the House lections Committee. Senator Albert Davis, Scranton, who has a voting machine under consideration, asked Marcus to preside.

A railroad wreck prevented the arrival of Thomas Raeburn White, Philadelphia, who was to direct the argument for voting machines.

CALLS NEW YORKER

Harris created some surprise by calling H. A. Nichols, commissioner of elections of Monroe county, New York, as a witness to the efficiency of voting machines. He told of an election won by only 72 votes without a contest or without a single charge of fraud.

"Voting machines have been a success in Rochester," he declared. "There was opposition in the beginning, but that has evaporated."

Any progressive move causes opposition, he said, recalling that as a young employe in the court house, he was present when the recorder refused to accept a deed because it was typewritten.

LESLIE RAISES POINT

"Machines will pay for themselves in five years," he said, adding that the machines in Rocvhester never have broken down.

Senator Max Leslie raised the point that the number of candidates at a primary election will prevent the use of voting machines. Nichols, questioned by Harris, said the machines will be able to handle the primary ballot as well as the general election.

White, Philadelphia attorney, who arrived late, said that he has never known a case where a ballot box was opened and the count found accurate.

White urged the passage of the Harris bill, which, he said, was written under the general supervision of the attorney general's office. Senator Davis immediately objected.

"I have no opposition to your bill," White sai dto Davis, "but I think this bill is better. Senator Harris' bill is more comprehensive and I want to urge your favorable consideration of it."

VARE CASE GOES TO NEXT TERM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—A final decision on the question of excluding Senator-elect William S. Vare (Rep.) of Pennsylvania, was postponed by the Senate today until the next session of Congress because of the Pennsylvanian's illness.

Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, author of the resolution excluding Vare from the Senate, announced he would not ask action on it until the Senate meets in the next regular session. Senator James A. Reed (Dem.), of Missouri, head of the campaign fund committee, which declared Vare was not entitled to his seat, previously announced he would not press action at this session.

"I have never hit a man or boy when he was down," said Reed, "and I can't start now."

The Senate meanwhile continued the life of Reed's committee. A resolution, granting full powers during the recess of Congress, was introduced by Norris and adopted without a record vote. The Nebraskan declared Vare had been given every opportunity to appear in his defense before the Reed committee.

"Mr. Vare is a very sick man," he said, "and I do not intend to press the resolution to a vote."

Glory Barn's Safety Stand Removal Asked

W. J. DONOVAN WILL BE WAR SECRETARY

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Col. William J. Donovan, of New York, now assistant attorney general, is to be Secretary of War in the Hoover cabinet.

The post has been offered him and he has accepted, it was learned authoritatively today.

This automatically ends all speculation concerning Col. Donovan for the attorney generalship and leaves President-elect Hoover free to continue his quest of a head for the Department of Justice who is "a constitutional dry."

CALLED TO CAPITAL

Col. Donovan returned to Washington unexpectedly yesterday from New Mexico, where he has been for some weeks acting as the President's representative at the seven-states conference on the Colorado River dispute. He was summoned to the capital by Mr. Hoover.

It is understood that Mr. Hoover candidly informed Col. Donovan that he is determined upon the appointment of an attorney general who can be classed unquestionably as a constitutional dry, and that such being the case he was unable to offer him the post. Donovan, while personally dry, is not an admirer of the Volstead law. He comes from that wing of New York Republicanism that has been classed as wet.

WANTS "BONE DRY"

The Hoover plan is to transfer prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Department of Justice, and that necessitates, in Mr. Hoover's opinion, the appointment of an attorney general who cannot possibly be accused of being unfriendly to the law he is to enforce.

ORIE STILL ON BENCH

would defer passing sentence for four days. The delay was granted at the request of A. M. Oliver, counsel for Orie, who indicated he would ask for a new trial.

The verdict carries a maximum sentence of a year in jail or $10,000 fine or both.

The police magistrate, indicted under the name of John Orzechowski, alias John W. Orie, was acquitted on two other counts of the indictment charging him with attempting to defraud the government by evasion of alleged net incomes of $59,797 in 1924 and the alleged income for the following year.

Civic Club Indorses Coal Police Reform

The Civic Club of Allegheny County, Maurice R. Scharff, president, has written Gov. John S. Fisher its strong indorsement of his announced intention to revolutionize the system of private police employment and control within the state. A copy of the letter forwarded the Governor by Mr. Scharff has been sent to all members of the Legislature from Allegheny County.

METRO PLAN LACKS POWER TO LOWER WATER RATES

Lower water rates are not in immediate prospect for the residents of boroughs and other outlying districts under the Pittsburgh Metropolitan city.

No authority will be given in Pittsburgh's new metropolitan charter for the supervision of public utilities.

Since the various political subdivisions of the county will be continued under the metropolitan plan, there will be no co-ordination of municipalities in dealing with water companies, street railways and other utilities. According to William E. Best, of Dormont, a member of the Metropolitan Plan Commission, no provision would be made in the plan covering the entire county for separate dealing with public utilities corporations operating under franchises and subject to the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission.

Water rates in Pittsburgh are declared to be exceptionally low. Filtered water furnished by the city costs the ordinary householder scarcely half the rates charged by the private companies supplying the surrounding boroughs and townships, it is pointed out. In territory recently annexed to the city the residents pay the same rates as other city dwellers and the difference in the cost is borne by the city. Private water companies in their schedule of rates have a service charge of $8 to $10 a year on dwelling houses, which materially increases the cost to small consumers.

Under the metropolitan charter the rates will continue the same, it is stated by members of the commission, and in this respect, residents of the old city of Pittsburgh will have an advantage over their fellow Pittsburghers who live outside the old city boundaries.

The Metropolitan Plan Commission today is putting the finishing touches on the draft of the charter for presentation to the Legislature next week.

"GRAYBOY," BEAVER VALLEY'S HERO

"Grayboy," a police dog, today wears on his collar a silver medal that tells those who examine it that he is a hero. With fire in the home, the dog, failing to arouse him by scratching at a bedroom door, turned the doorknob, entered and tugged at the bedclothing until his master awoke.

FREDERICK BEEGLE II "GRAYBOY" BARBARA ANNE BEEGLE

"Grayboy," assured of a home for life, playing with his charges, the children, of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Beegle, Patterson Township, Beaver Valley, who credit the dog with having saved four lives.

DOG HERO GETS MEDAL; SAVES FAMILY

The name Grayboy has been inscribed on the invisible role of dogdom. Opposite it is a single word—bravery.

A silver medal dangles from the big police dog's neck as he romps over the hills of Patterson Township, in the Beaver valley. The medal tells, as it symbolizes, the courage and intelligence of the animal which, early January 14, leaped at the door of his master's bedroom, shook the knocker, turned the knob, opened the door and tugged at the bed clothing to arouse Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Beegle, his owners, when their home was afire.

TRIBUTE OF CITIZENS

The medal represents the tribute many of the Beaver Valley's most prominent residents paid Grayboy. Members of the Valley Safety Conference sponsored the silver medal and watched the presentation last Thursday.

The medal was presented by H. O. Allison, safety director of the Beaver Falls district, at a special meeting held in the Beaver Falls Carnegie Library. Francis Feehan, of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, was a speaker. Grayboy stood on the stage, silent and courteous, nestling at the feet of his owners. But when the medal was attached to his collar, and the last word of eulogy was spoken, he dashed from the door.

The police dog was bred by Mr. Beegle from one he brought from Paris in 1920, and is a little over six years old. He is a pet, plays with Barbara Anne and Frederick N. Beegle II, respectively 18 and 5 months. He shares a bunk with Mike, a little Pekingese, to whom he is patronizingly protective, in the laundry of the Patterson Heights home of the vice president of the Union Drawn Steel Company.

ROUSES FAMILY

Shortly before 5 o'clock in the morning Mr. Beegle felt the feverish tug of the animal on the bed clothing. He wondered how Grayboy had gotten into the room, and was surprised when the dog refused to leave it. Curious, and sensing something wrong, the master followed the animal into the den. Smoke was coming from the floor. Below was the dining room. For 10 minutes he tried to get at the fire. Then it burst through the floor. The firemen came. They saved the house, not without some damage to the dining room, but the damage was relatively small. Mr. and Mrs. Beegle agree that their lives and the lives of their children and nurse probably were saved by the animal's warning.

They agree, too, that they like Grayboy plenty.

Evangeline Booth, Rebuffed, to Sail

LONDON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—After a cutting exchange of correspondence with Mrs. Bramwell Booth, her sister-in-law, Miss Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, has ended her effort to see her brother. Miss Booth will sail for home on February 27.

2 Indictments in Lottery Quiz Here

The grand jury returned indictments against the alleged heads of two lotteries and clearing house pools yesterday. Those indicted were William Wallace, alias Walker, two charges of operating a lottery, and George W. Dorn and James Pardon as operators of a lottery and clearing house pool. Wallace is said to have left the country and to be living in the West Indies.

Famed Sculptor, Ill, Says Saint Aided Him

NAPLES, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Vincenzo Gemito, famous sculptor, who has been ill with pneumonia, today attributed a considerable improvement in his condition to intervention of St. Anthony of Padua.

He told a member of the household of the Duchess of Aosta that the saint had appeared to him in a dream and reproached him for never having made a statue of the saint.

Gemito said he drove a bargain with St. Anthony, promising if cured he would "immortalize him in marble."

GOVERNOR GETS SCHOOL BILLS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Bills approved and sent to the Governor included one for an increase from $125 to $175 in the amount of annual raise in salary which may be awarded to city junior high school teachers. It cuts down to six the number of yearly raises which may be made.

Another measure increases the school tax during the next biennium. Under its provisions the levy would not be less than 2¾ mills nor more than 3¼ mills. It also fixes the tax at not less than 3 nor more than 3½ mills for the 1932-33 biennium and every year thereafter.

Both bills were sponsored by Senator Mansfield, of Allegheny.

Auto Hits Street Car, Driver Held as Drunk

After his auto had collided with a Sheraden-Ingram street car in West Carson street last night, William L. Devine, 28, of 2315 Carey way, was arrested and charged with violating the automobile laws. Police alleged Devine had been intoxicated.

OFFICES, HOMES, 'GAS' STATION ROBBED

The current wave of petty crime found reports today of one holdup, an attempted purse snatching and three robberies.

A bandit entered the American Oil Company service station at 262 South Highland avenue last night as the attendant, L. H. Rhiner, of 97 Courtland street, was counting the day's receipts. In answer to a sharp command, backed by a pistol, Rhiner turned over $28 and the bandit fled in a waiting auto.

A thief snatched the purse of Mrs. Elizabeth Slatter, of 1201 Davis avenue, near her home last night. When she screamed the thief became frightened and ran.

The dental offices of Dr. M. R. Alderman, 530 East Ohio street, and Dr. Helen Schwartz, Professional Building, Penn avenue, were entered, apparently by the same thieves who looted a dozen dentists' offices in the East End yesterday. Gold crowns valued at $300 were stolen from Dr. Alderman's office and $10 in gold fillings from Dr. Schwartz's.

The office of Dr. T. L. Rohm, dentist, second floor, 501 East Ohio street, last night was robbed of $40 cash, and gold foil valued at $30, he reports to police today.

The theft of $134 from a trunk in the room of Betty Lawrence, 142 South Negley avenue, was reported to police last night. Entrance was gained by use of a key.

Entering the home of Mrs. M. Schwartz, of 316 North Euclid avenue, by way of a rear door which, according to police, had been left open, thieves last night stole a purse containing $55 from a table.

Brothers, 2 Sisters Get $35,000 Estate

Lewis Hill, of 312 Euclid avenue, leaves a $35,000 estate to two sisters and a brother in his will which was filed for probate today. The beneficiaries are Hertha M. Hill, of Ottawa, Canada; Mrs. Minnie Hottinger and Dr. Frank Hill, of Chicago. The People's Savings & Trust Company is named executors.

EX-KING RAIDER LEADING NEW 'HUSHED' VICE DRIVE

This was disclosed yesterday after 10 alleged speakeasy proprietors from the Peabody High School neighborhood had hearings before Alderman George J. Anderson, after raids by county detectives. All except one gave $1,000 bond for appearance in court.

Two "Peabody High School students" were at Anderson's office to testify. They were not called to give their story, which was intended to have shown that liquor was available to high school students.

But they talked during the hearing and they said that "a man named Newman" had prevailed upon them to visit certain moonshine dispensaries and make "buys." Neither of the two "students" would give his name. One said he was not exactly a student at Peabody, but that he "used to go there." The other claimed to be in his third year at the school.

"NEWMAN" IDENTIFIED

When the hearing ended, the pair went to the office of Attorney John S. Pyle, in the Bakewell Building, where inquiry developed that they were to wait for "Newman."

Harry Gosser, former prohibition agent and now attached to Pyle's office, said Newman was A. G. Newman, formerly one of King's ace investigators, who was beaten September 29, 1927, in the Castle Gardens, Wylie avenue.

Newman and Herman Stubenrauch had gone to the Hill district resort with high school students in search of evidence. Previously the party had been in the East End investigating the alleged sale of dope to students. Gosser said that he "does not know what Newman's racket is now nor where his headquarters are." Newman lives at 510 Borland street.

BACKERS SHUN SPOTLIGHT

Attorney Pyle said that although he knows what Newman's connection is and who is backing him he is not at liberty at present to divulge any information. Pyle also said that Newman formerly was with King.

Pyle was in the legal department of the prohibition administrator's office.

Senate Passes Sewer Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—A measure to legalize a sewer outlet into the Allegheny River at Thirty-second street, Pittsburgh, was passed by the Senate and sent to the House yesterday.

Life Parole Plea Denied; Sent To "Dry" Cell

Frank Freeman, now an auto salesman, of New York City, pleaded for a life parole rather than a jail sentence today, but Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker sentenced him to six months in jail. Freeman, convicted of violating the prohibition law, was accused of having 9,000 gallons of alcohol in a rectifying plant at 201 South Highland avenue.

BELL CO. PLANS $1,500,000 ADDITION

The Bell Telephone Company will erect an addition to its building at 416 Seventh avenue, at a cost of $1,500,000, according to announcement today by F. J. Chesterman, vice president and general manager.

The addition will adjoin the present skyscraper and will extend along William Penn way. It will contain 171,120 square feet of floor space and will match the present building in height and construction material. The business offices also will be remodelled.

Increased business was given as the reason for erecting the addition at this time.

CHICAGO GOES TO POLLS UNDER GUARD OF POLICE

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Chicago was on hair trigger edge today as voters marched to the polls to electgg a new city council. With the civic nerve already strained to the breaking point as a result of the recent gangland massacre, threats and attempted kidnapings which last night marked the close of the heated aldermanic campaigns only serve to accentuate an already tense situation.

Stege

Police Commissioner William Russell had practically his entire force guarding the polls. County Judge Edmund Jarecki convened his court at 5:30 this morning, an hour before the polls opened.

To the commanders of 65 detective bureau squads who will cruise the "danger zones," Deputy Commissioner John Stege issued these orders:

"Break the butt end of your machine guns over the heads of hoodlums and sluggers as fast as you find them. If you have to shoot, shoot to kill."

Shortly after this order was issued, Stege's men swooped down on the so-called "bloody Twentieth" Ward and seized Sammy Kaplan, Abe Klass and a number of others, all said to be associated with the Morris Eller faction. It was Eller's Negro opponent for ward committeeman that was assassinated on election day at last April's primary.

After Alderman Albert J. Prignano, of the "Bloody Twentieth," had reported that he had been threatened with death if he stayed in the race, his principal opponent, State Representative William V. Pacelli, showed Commissioner Stege a letter warning the Candidate that he "would meet the same fate as Octavious Granady" (Eller's slain opponent) if he showed himself on the street.

Many candidates in the hotly contested wards were reported "out of the city" today.

Green Advocates Winter Rest For Workers

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—American working men will take two weeks' vacations in warm and sunny climes each winter if the views of President William F. Green, of the American Federation of Labor, become an actuality.

The labor leader, who has been attending the winter sessions of the organization's executive council here, expressed the opinion that a two weeks' winter vacation was as necessary to the well being of American workers as the yearly summer two weeks' holiday and the five-day week.

Pomerene, Suddenly Stricken, Recovering

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Atlee Pomerene, former senator from Ohio and for several years special government counsel in the oil cases, was recovering today in Emergency Hospital from a sudden, but severe illness, described by physicians as a combination of influenza and indigestion. He was taken to the hospital on a stretcher. Physicians said his condition was not dangerous.

SENATE ADOPTS NICARAGUAN CANAL PLAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Congress took the first step toward the realization of the greatest engineering project in history when the Senate yesterday adopted, without a roll call, the Edge resolution authorizing a survey of the proposed Nicaraguan Canal.

The measure in slightly amended form now goes to the House, where the way has been paved for action. Enactment of the resolution now appears to be assured before the session ends March 4.

In anticipation of approval of the resolution by the House, President Coolidge immediately transmitted a budget estimate of $150,000 for the survey to the Senate. The item will be written into the second deficiency bill, which passed the House yesterday and is pending before the Senate Appropriations Committee.

GAS TAX AT SOURCE PLAN URGED UPON GOV. FISHER

HARRISBURG, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Two new developments have placed discussion of the gasoline tax in the limelight of prominence outside the pale of formal legislative discussions, as the general assembly convened for the week.

Decisions were made yesterday to attempt to enlist the support of Gov. Fisher for a bill providing collection of the tax from the wholesalers or distributors, rather than the retailers, and to endeavor to clarify figures of the State Highway Department concerning its estimated revenue for the next biennium. In both of these maneuvers, State Treasurer Samuel S. Lewis will take a leading part.

Mr. Lewis, who has repeatedly opposed any increase in the present 3-cent limit, announced that he, in company with Representative Grover C. Talbot, of Delaware County, would call upon the Governor today in the interest of the bill Talbot will sponsor in the House. While Mr. Lewis does not believe there is any necessity for an increase in the tax under either the present amount of revenue or the method of collection, he estimated adoption of the Talbot bill would bring in an additional $1,000,000 to the state.

FINANCE FIGURES PUZZLE

The State Treasurer will be further drawn into the controversy, from another quarter, during the week. Senator Clarence J. Buckman, chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Roads and Highways, said he would call on Mr. Lewis before the end of the week in an effort to assimilate the differences between the interpretations of the Treasurer and James Lyall Stuart, secretary of highways, on the estimated amount of money available for highway construction during the next two years.

Secretary Stuart, in a statement to Senator Buckman, showed that his department will have approximately $5,000,000 more for expenditure in the next biennium than during the present period. The total shows $23,000,000 more than was and will be spent by May 31 next, but Mr. Stuart contends $18,000,000 must be subtracted from the amount for use as working capital during the 1931-33 biennium. Lewis has contended in several speeches lately that the $23,000,000 figure represents the actual increase above the present revenues.

NEW ROAD PROGRAM

An entirely new highway program under which the present state highway system would have to be completed before more mileage could be added is being drawn up for introduction in the general assembly, probably this week.

The measure is understood to have administration backing. Under the proposal, it is understood highway commissioners of the various counties would submit to the State Highway Department three alternate improvement programs for each county, one of which highway department engineers would have to accept and begin work on at an early date.

The bill would appropriate a large percentage of the available highway department revenue to such construction programs, with provision for counties to assist in the work according to their abilities to provide funds.

WOMEN PLEAD FOR CONGRESS DRUG PROBE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—On behalf of the women and children of America, a forceful appeal has been made to Congress to save the country from the grasp of dope.

The plea came from Mrs. Florence Kahn, congresswoman from California, and Miss Ellen M. Lamotte, world-famous authority and author of several books on the opium traffic. Miss Lamotte has just returned from the sessions of the League of Nations opium conference in Geneva.

Both joined yesterday in urging that the House promptly adopt the LaGuardia-Wheeler resolution for a congressional narcotics investigation. The measure passed the Senate unanimously and is now before the House Rules Committee for a report. Representative Snell (Rep.), of New York, chairman, promised the committee would consider the question, but no date was set for a hearing. Unless action is prompt, the resolution may be lost in the last-minute legislative jam that threatens Congress before adjournment next Monday.

TERMED GREATEST MENACE

"No greater menace confronts any people than drug addiction," said Mrs. Kahn. "Reports from all over the country indicate that addiction is prevalent in all walks of life. Through drugs the criminal classes are stimulated with false courage that enables them to commit the most atrocious crimes. Among people of intellect and wealth and leadership, the use of drugs has become an all too frequent occurrence.

"Pitiful are the stories of young boys and girls enmeshed in the tentacles of this most vicious and diabolical habit. Once a slave to the habit, they sink rapidly down the moral scale into degradation, misery and oblivion.

"No debaucher in all history was ever half so miserable, so destructive of all the finer qualities of life, as the debauch of youth through morphine, heroin, cocaine and their sinister allies.

RUINATION FOR PITTANCE

"Ruination for a filthy pittance. What cares the drug peddler for the rosy bloom and promise of youth. Nothing! He is interested only in his fabulous, ill-gotten gains.

"We must choke this dope monster 'ere we are engulfed and our boys and girls, in whom the future of the nation rests, are debauched and ruined."

The purposes of the investigation were praised by Miss Lamotte.

"I think such an inquiry will develop great beneficial results," she declared. "It should be authorized. I think all the light possible should be thrown on the terrible drug menace. In this way only can the people learn the dangers and ravages of the traffic."

Sir Drummond, secretary-general of the League of Nations, is expected to be appointed Great Britain's ambassador to the United States if Sir Esme Howard resigns as reported.

NARCOTIC WEEK OBSERVED

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Narcotic education week, which comes to an end on Thursday, has been more widely observed this year than ever before, it was said at the offices of the world conference on narcotic education.

In response to the call for the week, governors and mayors issued proclamations praising its purpose. Fraternal organizations and social welfare agencies have extended their co-operation. Meetings of W. C. T. U. councils were held all over the country.

From the pulpits of the churches throughout the nation, sermons were delivered calling attention to the evils of the drug traffic. Educational programs were broadcast over the radio. Newspapers have given a great deal of space to the activities of agencies engaged in the curbing of the "drug rings."

The conference has sought to prevent the spread of drug addiction by an intensive educational program. Especial importance has been attached to the alarming increase in the use of heroin as compared with the use of opium, cocaine and morphine. The danger in the rapid growing use of heroin lies in the fact that heroin addicts have mania to convert other persons to the use of that drug.

In the furtherance of its educational program, the conference has not lost sight of the necessity for enacting stricter narcotic laws. With that end in view, it has sponsored the adoption of a uniform narcotic act by the various states. Bills providing for such a law have been introduced into many state legislatures.

Measures also have been introduced into Congress to increase the effectiveness of the enforcement of the narcotic act. Steps have also been taken to bring the matter of stricter control of the drug traffic before other nations. These are necessary because of the international character of the traffic.

Traffic Magistrate As Adjuster Praised

Charles H. Bunting, of the Bunting Stamp Company, has submitted to Council a letter indorsing the attitude of John A. Staley, police magistrate in traffic court, in trying to effect settlements to protect owners of automobiles damaged in accidents.

Staley had been criticized previously by William McGuire, manager of the Tri-State Automobile Adjusters Association.

The Russian Symphony Choir, with Basile Kibalchich conducting, attracted a large audience to its concert in Carnegie Music Hall last night. Although the choir did not appear as interesting as on a former occasion, there was a great deal to admire in the singing which always aroused enthusiastic applause. Several numbers had to be repeated.

The program was in three parts, divided among sacred, classic and popular music. With one exception, the sacred music was rather dull. There was no excuse whatever for the arrangement of the Schubert Symphony, which was a far-fetched and a stupid musical stunt. The other music listed under the classics marked the awakening of interest. All the folk music found the choir in its true element and gave individuals, as well as the male voices and female voices, in separate groups, real opportunities to show the unique qualities of the choir.

Since last here, the tone of the singers seems to have sharpened somewhat. It was especially noticeable in the sacred music, where humming is employed, far, too often to keep it interesting, a feature which throws solo voices too much in contrast, particularly the thin reedy voices of the sopranos. The song of thanksgiving, "Hospodie Pomilui," an encore, brought out the talent of the singers for nuance. And there is certainly no lack of musicianship in most of their songs, for they sing without accompaniment and do create a variety of moods in their music.

Among the folk music were holiday songs, street songs, comic peasant dialogs, all of them given with fine appreciation for the Russian character. A program entirely of these simple melodies would have been more attractive in every way.

CANNED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Full of Vitamins, Should Be Eaten Daily, Says Doctor

Dr. Morris Fishbein, Editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, recently wrote in the New York Telegram about canned fruits and vegetables. If all of the women could read this article, more canning factories would have to be built in a hurry.

He makes this startling statement: "Canned tomatoes, and canned spinach have been tested three years after canning and the evidence did not indicate any appreciable loss in vitamins. Indeed, the canned tomatoes after three years were as rich in vitamins as raw tomatoes. Canned strawberries were also found to equal raw strawberries in vitamin content." He describes how canned cabbage, peas, spinach, apples and peaches were shown to be rich in Vitamin C.

Just think what wonderful news this is for all of us in this country where canning has been developed to such a point of perfection that we can buy canned almost any fruit or vegetable that is grown.

Serve your family liberally with canned fruits for breakfast and for dessert, and serve them liberally with canned vegetables and fruits for luncheon and dinner. Canned peaches, apricots, apples, pears, or strawberries are delicious served with cereals for breakfast and with ice cream for dessert. There is health in delicious canned fruits and vegetables. Sweeten the vegetables to taste when preparing them for serving. The Sugar Institute.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

FIGHTING FOR NAN

By MONTGOMERY MULFORD

EVER since Nan could remember—and she was only 20 now—she had lived with her widowed, invalid mother, and two young brothers whom she was desperately trying to put through school. She worked hard, though her boss was a congenial sort of man who never consciously overtaxed her. Being well-paid for it, she was happy; but the drain of her family's wants was never ceasing; and that's why she harbored her family in a dismal, tumbled down house near the east railroad tracks.

At 20, Nan was still a very pretty girl, for all her drab surroundings. But there had come one bright spot into her life, in the form of a fairy prince, as she liked to dream of him; a lad not many months her senior, good looking to say the least, blonde of hair, and a welterweight pugilist by profession. Harry Saunders was the holder of the welterweight championship of his state, and the sports-writers all prophesied a great future for him.

Harry and Nan were a likeable pair. Harry would often help Nan with the dishes, or some small errand if he arrived early in the evening. Once he even lent Nan a hundred dollars to pay a doctor bill for her mother.

"But I'll pay you back," she said.

"Don't worry over it," he had replied. But Nan had paid most of it back.

"Then will you marry me, kid?" he had asked her more than once.

"Not for—a long time," said Nan quietly. "I couldn't burden you with mother and two kids. Now don't argue. I've seen men marry other girls that way, and repent of it later. Wait, Harry, if you love me."

"But do you love me?" he asked impatiently, eagerly.

"More than you ever will know, I love you, Harry," she answered.

And so the affair went along, until one day Harry Saunders brought Joe Martin to call. Rivals in the ring, the two young men had become the closest of friends. They were seldom parted, except when they trained, or when they called upon a girl or friend.

It was there that Harry erred. For Joe Martin at once completely forgot every other lady he had ever met. That night they departed early for each had a bout for the following evening and were ordered early to bed.

"Gee, but you seem to have fallen hard!" Harry said jokingly.

"Harder than you imagine," was Joe's reply as they sat in the trolley taking them home. "I may even try to win her, Harry."

Saunders said nothing for a moment. Then: "Look here, Joe, old boy. I found her first, and she loves me. She's mine."

"Eh? What the devil do you think this is? Have you any monopoly? Anyhow, don't look so frightened, Harry, I said I was going to try to win her. Maybe she won't even look at me, if she loves you," he added.

"She does!" exploded Harry, and looked away.

"Well, then my experiment will test it."

"I don't want any testing!" Harry snapped back. "You leave her alone! I've never butted in on your women!"

"They may not have been worth it, old boy. Nan is."

"Oh, heck!"

"Well then, Harry, you jealous fool, I'll make a bargain with you. I'll fight you for it."

"I'm on!" Harry brightened. "I'll crunch you into a pulp, too! Don't forget that I'm champion, and you are only an up-and-comer."

Joe flinched as though struck. Harry had never before hurt him in any way like this. Harry had always urged Joe on: the two ring enemies had been each other's inspiration off-stage.

The day after the fight the two of them arranged it so that they would meet in the ring. They explained their reasons, and the fight managers at once used the theme in advertising the bout. The report got back to Nan.

"Oh, gee, mom," she said to her mother, seated on her parent's bed, "I don't know what to do. I love Harry. I like Joe, of course, and maybe I could fall for him, too. But I don't like this idea."

"You can refuse Joe if he wins," said mom, soothingly.

"Yes, I know it, lover. But that isn't it. It's the idea that Harry would permit a thing like this. It burns me up! The man I love willing to fight for me—in that way. If he loses, he's got to stay by his bargain."

"Perhaps he was hot-headed when he made it, Nan. And if you refuse Joe, then Harry can come back."

"But—it makes me afraid. Will he? Anyhow, would I have as much respect for him?"

"You need a husband," said mom.

"I know it, lover," said Nan, and kissed her pale-faced mother.

The fight was scheduled a month later. But though Harry called three nights a week—to remain only until 10 o'clock, Joe came over two of the nights when Harry was absent, and he never let on what he was doing. The two of them scarcely spoke now, as they hastily prepared for the battle.

"I'm going to that fight, and I'll take Jim," Nan told her mother, naming the eldest boy, who was about 15.

"All right, dear. But don't get excited. Everything'll come out all right.

What Nan kept from her mother was that she had really grown angry at Harry. And anger breeds coldness. Harry spoke of it the last evening he called, before the bout.

"Well, any man who'd do as you're doing, willing to give up a girl you say you love, if you are defeated, ought not to whine."

"I'm not whining, Nan. I want you so—I accepted this fool idea on the spur of the moment. I promised, and Joe won't let me back out of it if I wanted to. I must keep my word. But I'll win."

"You're so sure of yourself, Harry, I don't know if it is going to do you any good if you do win—now."

"Aw, Nan—don't be that way!"

Coaxing, subtle words, but to no avail. Nan would not even kiss him goodnight until he said: "If that's the way you feel, then I'll let Joe win, and darn him!"

Nan kissed him and shut the door. She had two passes for the affair, one from Joe and one from Harry, so she took her brother Jim. They had ringside seats.

The announcer entered first. When he had finished, the contestants appeared one by one. Harry Sanders first: "Champion welterweight of the state!" Joe Martin arrived last, amid a clamorous ovation, "the sturdy up-and-coming challenger."

The house was divided, and brother Jim applauded each as they arrived. But Nan remained silent. Her face was white.

There was nothing unusual about that bout. Both men were fairly well matched.

When it was ended, the referee announced:

"Ladies and gents, it's a draw!" he announced.

The crowd cheered and went mad and departed. The ring enemies met in Harry's room afterward, and waited for Nan to come. When she arrived with her brother, her face was hard, but there were tears in her eyes.

"Well," said Joe awkwardly, "we both lose, Nan. It's the old standard again: you and Harry, and me trying to butt in!" he laughed.

"There is no old standard," said Nan. "I just came to say goodby. Now don't argue, because I don't want to see either of you again. I wish you both success," and as she went out she was crying and gripping Jim's hand tightly.

Harry and Joe looked at one another. Then Harry sank into a chair.

"Don't COUGH Your Energy Away"

Stop hacking Coughs that wrack your whole system

DOCTORS advise coughs should be checked quickly. They sap vitality—put a terrific strain upon the vital organs. A cough can wrack your whole body—tear at the delicate tissues of the throat—leave the muscles of your chest and stomach sore from sheer exertion. Your health demands that coughs be checked, before exhaustion or serious infection sets in.

At the first sign of a cough or throat irritation, take PERTUSSIN. It helps Nature free the air passages of germ-laden mucus, soothes the irritation and quiets the cough. PERTUSSIN has been prescribed more often for coughs than any other advertised remedy.

PERTUSSIN is safe even for small children and convalescents—a good remedy for "coughs that hang on". It is free from dope—does not upset the stomach and can be taken as often as necessary. At all druggists.

Thespians in Varied Roles Pass in Review Before Critics

GEORGE ARLISS AS SHYLOCK ALMOST WINS THE CASE IN VENICE COURT

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

FOR years the critic has been going to see "The Merchant of Venice," hoping that some day a Venetian Clarence Darrow may come along and upset the case that has been framed against a leading light of the Synagogue. William Shakespeare did not play fair when he sent a woman as attorney to handle this celebrated trial. Last night at the Pitt Theater this was brought out strikingly. George Arliss might have secured a verdict had not Frieda Inescourt won the sympathy of everybody and muddled their judgment by feminine logic.

Well, Arliss may console himself with the thought that the same thing happened to Edwin Booth, to Barrett, Irving, Novelli, Sothern, Hampden, Mantell, Warfield, and a dozen other Shylocks, even Richard Mansfield, who used to leave the stage determined to commit suicide, to sign the bond with his blood.

The Shylock of Arliss must be counted among the hard and truculent Shylocks, not like that of Warfield among the sobby and sticky ones. This is the way to play the part—and it does not by any means alienate the interest of the audience, which likes a manly villain for his manliness, rather than a sniveling one for his failure.

Arliss is magnificent—a clear-cut interpretation that strikes fire, thoroughly consistent, at all times human and comprehensible. His Shylock has a spine and a head, and comes next to the Shylock of Sir Henry Irving as a convincing portrait of the Jew that Shakespeare drew. He reacts to the indignities and wrongs he has suffered as every human being of the Renaissance would have reacted; but he knows the reason why, he is class-conscious, and he is up in modern psychology.

ARLISS STRIKES FIRE

Above all else, he strikes fire. He almost wins his case. He puts up a great fight against great odds. And if at last he goes under in the pogrom that is stirred up, that is an ending no less heroic than the fall of Richard Third on Bosworth field. We even admire the pride which prompts him to fling aside the hand proffered at his last exit.

While in certain subtle oriental traits the Shylock of Arliss can not compare with Irving's, in the lucidity of his readings, in the effectiveness of his business, he reached new heights. If Shakespeare were always interpreted with such intelligence and force, he would not spell ruin but riches.

The entire company was keyed to that high standard. Frieda Inescourt especially, as the Portia, was winsome and womanly—looked like Beatrice or Mona Lisa—and kept the romantic illusion perfect throughout the play, except for some moments of strain and stridency in the trial scene. The Gratiano of Roland Bottomley, the Morocco of David Leonard, and the Duke of Edward Jephson are three others that shine with special luster in an excellent cast. For the first time in years blank verse has been read naturally without sacrificing its music—not by one or two players of stellar magnitude, but by the rank and file—which means that Winthrop Ames or somebody else has done the work of direction with scholarly skill.

VENICE BY THOMPSON

No less beautiful and satisfying is the background of Venice—the work of a Pittsburgher, Woodman Thompson, who designed scenery and costumes. This is the Venice of romance, but also the Venice of reality. The Lion of St. Mark would feel at home among these stones and tapestries. Colors and lighting were blended in a rich symphony to form a fitting background for the stirring plot.

As presented last night, "The Merchant of Venice" is a new play. Much of the hackneyed and traditional business has been replaced by modern and enlightening twists. Every one who sees the drama will understand it better, no matter how often he has seen it before. That is due in part also to the speed with which the changes of scene are effected, for there is scarcely a pause except the recess in the middle of the action. Everything sweeps swiftly along like a chariot race. It is as perfect a piece of staging and playing Shakespeare as has been achieved in years, and Arliss as impressive a Shylock as we have had since Irving. Let Portia have a care—he almost won his case last night!

Aldine Offers Talking Spook

A talking spook has brought some laughs and light-flavored mystery to the Aldine screen this week. The picture is titled "The Ghost Talks," and it concerns a search for stolen government bonds in a haunted house. Before the bond hunt gets underway, however, there is much introductory action in a big hotel, involving a correspondent school detective, a pretty heroine and several mysterious couples. Also there is a pair of Negro honeymooners, who come into the hotel looking for a room and who get steered to the haunted house. And how that bridegroom's feet falter when his eyes see the house! The picture features Helen Twelvetrees, from the legitimate stage. The cast includes Earl Foxe, Stepin Fetchit, Negro comedian; Charles Taton, Carmel Myers and Joe Brown.

Helen Twelvetrees.

ZEPPELIN ON SCREEN

An added feature is "Across the Atlantic via Zeppelin," which is presented with a talking introduction and conclusion by Lady Drummond Hay, only woman passenger aboard the Graf Zeppelin on its historic flight, and by Dr. Hugo Eckner, commander. Scenes of the flight, including the storm which overtook the Zep, are part of the film. Several entertaining sound screen acts and news pictures are on the bill.

RIN-TIN-TIN'S DEBUT AS CRITIC

So many shows are tried on the dog in Pittsburgh that it's only fair to give the dog a chance to voice his opinion of them. Accordingly, Rin-Tin-Tin is telling what he thinks of the vaudeville in the Davis in which he appears this week. This is Rin-Tin-Tin's bow-wow as a critic, but he can say nothing but good of his associates on the bill.

He is particularly pleased with Julius Tannen, who does nothing but talk, while Rin does everything but talk. Rin says the reason he doesn't talk is because Tannen doesn't leave anything more to be said. He's the most amusing chatterbox Rin has heard—Rin could listen all evening. Almost equally funny is Mr. Shean, he used to be with Mr. Gallagher, but is now doing his bit with Miss Lynn Canter. Rin found Shean's sketch full of good things, some of which appeared to be in a bottle, and some of which Rin did not understand, though he has been seven years in Hollywood, having been careful in choosing his associates.

SOME MIRTH AND MUSIC

This he does not mean as any reflection on Miss Babe Egan and her seven other Hollywood Redheads, who get mirth and music out of an assortment of instruments, and look so jolly that they've almost converted Rin to Jazz. He is inclined to take Spanish, too, because Nina Gordani, called a diseuse, makes it sound like a very musical language.

Rin says he has been put just ahead of the Klein Brothers on the bill, because among other things he is expected to yawn, and he couldn't do that after listening to their uproarious sketch. Finally, Rin wishes to call attention to three other acts in which the performers have even less to say than he—Don Valerio, the wire dancer, Edith Davis, with her acrobatic dancers, and the dancing acrobats, Falls, Reading and Boyce.

Rin is glad he doesn't have to perform such feats as theirs, which look exceedingly risky as well as frisky. And Rin is a wise dog, knowing his value, doing only what he is told—or rather what his trainer, Lee Duncan, tells him to do. So that is all Rin Tin Tin has to say about the Davis show, but he looked well pleased as he added that Julius Tannen and he were going to do a talkie together.

Enright Star Is Monte Blue

Monte Blue is responsible for some melodramatic heroics on the Enright screen. The picture is the "Greyhound Limited," a part talkie. It has to do with the engineer of a crack train, a young and somewhat wild-living fireman, a blonde waitress and a gang of thugs. Monte, as the engineer, endeavors to break up an affair between his fireman friend and the blonde. This, indirectly, results in the fireman's accusation and conviction of murder. He is sentenced to die. The day, yes, the hour of the execution almost arrives. But Monte and the blonde girl both contribute some last minute heroics that result in the capture of the real murderer.

Monte Blue

GIRL NOT FOR HERO

The picture is an ordinary melodrama and the only thing new or novel about it is that the hero does not get the girl in the end. Edna Murphy plays the girl role, Grant Withers is the flirting and flighty fireman. Lucy Beaumont has an agonizing mother part.

There's a song and dance presentation on the stage, the best of which is a comedy dance by Jack Romery and Bobby Brewster. Two girls also give several stepping numbers. In addition, the stage offers the plate-juggling and talking Bill Talent, assisted by the chubby Flo Merit. Short screen entertainment and organ and orchestra music are on the bill.

Regent Offers Talking Film

The all-talking picture, "Interference," is current in the Regent. William Powell, Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook and Doris Kenyon are featured. The photoplay is a representation of the stage play of the same name by Roland Partwee and Harold Deardon. The bill includes short Vitaphone features and news reels.

Audrey Ferris has the featured role in "Fancy Baggage," showing on Stanley screen.

"WHITE LILACS," IN ALVIN, BRINGS CHOPIN'S ROMANCE TO LIFE AGAIN

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

GEORGE SAND, Chopin, Meyerbeer, Heine parade their eccentricities and geniuses in "White Lilacs," dramatic operetta based on the romance that coupled the lives of Mme. Sand, novelist, and Chopin, inspired composer, which was given an excellent presentation in the Alvin last night. Historical in its basis, with the music of Chopin adapted to the lyrices of the piece, this work of Harry B. Smith, librettist, and Karl Hajos, who wrote the Chopin music to fit the book, gave real pleasure to the audience in attendance.

The story opens with the beginning of the attachment between the composer and the novelist, whose pen name was George Sand, in real life, Amanthe Lucille Aurore Dupin Dudevant, in Paris in 1840, and introduces the noted characters named in the opening paragraph as well as Balzac and Liszt. Besides being a historical romance with music, it enters the comedy field to some extent by playing up the jealousies that now seem petty in such lives.

GENIUS AND PASSION

Odette Myrtil gave a convincing characterization in the part of George Sand, whose view of life was that genius only came to those who knew passion and gave themselves to it, as history records she did constantly and capriciously. In "White Lilacs," the title of which seems to have been taken from one of the songs of the piece, she appears to feel the urge to remain constant to Chopin, but surrenders to an opera tenor, after Chopin, finding the lowing of the cows and the crowing of cocks and other noises of the country an interruption to his work that rumpled his nerves, decided to depart from the home of Mme. Sand, where the two found their temperaments clashing after a month together.

Guy Robertson's portrayal of Chopin was equally lifelike. There was an intensely dramatic scene at the finale of the second act, when Chopin discovered that a novel by Mme. Sand, in which he was pictured as the central character, held him up as a figure of contempt. He did not know that it had been published against the wishes of the author, nor that she had just told the publisher that he must recall all copies and destroy them.

ACTING HAS POWER

In this play Miss Myrtil reveals herself to be an actress of considerable dramatic power. Mr. Robertson also rises to theatric height, and his denunciation of the woman to whom he has given his heart is vibrant with the fire of passion.

DeWolf Hopper, as the publisher, gives the piece its principal comedy element, heightened considerably by the good work of Charles Corker-King a polished actor, as Meyerbeer, and by Charles Brown's characterization of Heinrich Heine.

The youthful romantic factor is introduced in the characters well played by Marion Marchante and Maurice Holland. Allan Rogers, as the opera tenor, gives vocal support of lofty tone to the musical features of the play, which, of course, are of high quality since the music is that of Chopin, in slight disguise.

An enjoyable interlude was a humorous speech given by Mr. Hopper in response to a hearty curtain call given to the entire company at the end of the second act.

Picture, Acts Sheridan Bill

Sam Morton of the Four Mortons, on the stage, and "In Old Arizona," on the screen are features of the three-day bill in the Sheridan Square, the picture being shown in East Liberty for the first time. It is an all-talkie, based on a romantic story of the old Southwest. Prominent characters are a notorious bandit, "Cisco Kid," his sweetheart and a young Irish cavalry sergeant sent to capture him. Edmund Lowe, Dorothy Burgess and Warner Baxter, are featured.

Morton and Charles Mack appear in a skit, "The Old Neighborhood." Johnny Elliot and girls in "The Dance Doctor;" Mariette Craig and company in a playlet; Louis and Cheririo in a novelty act, and other screen features complete the bill.

HARRIS GETS ALL-TALK FILM

"In Old Arizona," the Fox all-talking outdoor production that brings O. Henry's Cisco Kid to the screen, and four acts of stage vaudeville feature the three-day bill current in the Harris.

Warner Baxter

The topline stage act is "The Flapper Freshies," offering songs, dances and laughs. Rogers and Gregory, two blackface comedians, stage a verbal battle that is funny, and end up with a song. They win applause. Yates and Carson, man and woman, sing and chatter. The vaudeville opens with a novelty juggling act by a sailor boy and a waiter. The sailor, among other things, blows a bugle while he is juggling it on his mouth.

TRIO FEATURED

Warner Baxter, Edmund Lowe and Dorothy Burgess are the featured trio in "In Old Arizona." The story has to do with a romantic Cisco Kid, a bandit; his faithless sweetheart, Tona Maria, and the hardboiled United States Army sergeant, who is detailed to bring the kid in dead or alive. The picture holds interest throughout, has comedy as well as a man hunt and romantic angle and ends with the Cisco Kid riding out of law's reach at the final fadeout. In addition to song and talk, there are numerous sounds. One of the picturesque scenes at the opening depicts the departure of an oldtime stage coach, with J. Farrell MacDonald helping along with the noise and confusion.

Short screen entertainment and an organlogue are on the bill.

Grand Retains 'Weary River'

"Weary River," starring Richard Barthelmess, continues this week as the photoplay in the Grand. The picture story concerns the handsome gangster, Jerry Larrabee, and his reformation that takes place to the tune of the theme song, "Weary River." Barthelmess, as the gangster, does a good piece of work. Betty Compson, in the heroic part, also deserves acclaim.

Betty Compson

The picture opens in a gay and giddy night club. There's a telephone call and the talk of gang war. A little later Barthelmess is picked up by police in Betty's apartment. Then comes the penitentiary, with music bringing Barthelmess a vision of right living. He wins quite a reputation as a singer and musician while in prison—and, incidentally, a governor's pardon. Free once more he decides to pass up the old gang and you meet him as a vaudeville performer. But when he finds he's still a convict and a curiosity to the audiences, he goes back to his old life. Thug guns blaze. But Barthelmess is saved from a further life of crime by the timely visit of the prison warden and the love for his old girl.

The picture has a number of talk sequences. The gangster also is also heard singing the theme song at numerous intervals.

Short screen entertainment is on the bill.

GRETA GARBO DAZZLES IN PENN

While Greta Garbo, in far away Sweden, finds the Royal Family balking at her real life romance with Prince Sigurd, son of Crown Prince Gustav, patrons of the Penn this week witness the dazzling Greta being sought by another prince—the movie leading man, Nils Asther. The make-believe romance all part of her newest picture, "Wild Orchids," takes place in tropical Java. And unlike the real life romance, the actress doesn't want the prince......and the fadeout brings the happy ending with the alluring Greta back in the arms of her husband, played by Lewis Stone.

In the film, Miss Garbo and her American husband, Mr. Stone, are on a tour of Java. The wife is very much in love with the husband—but he seems cold, with all his thoughts on a tiger he intends to kill and a pending business proposition. Then appears Nils, the prince, romantic and gallant. He kisses Greta—one of those ardent movie kisses—and gets his face slapped.

FEARS LURE OF JAVA

The woman fears the prince, has nightmares about him and also fears the lure of Java. One night she tells her husband how the prince likened her to an orchid and kissed her. But Lewis goes to sleep without hearing. Later on, however, he becomes suspicious of his wife and the prince, believing her untrue. So he plots revenge against the interloper. And the climax, highly dramatic, comes at night. A tiger, two men, gun not charged and one woman are the participants.

Teddy Joyce and his band top the stage show, "Southern Belles." Teddy is all over the stage with a whistling feat in which his band and the audience participates. The show has a vocal quartet, lots of Southern atmosphere and some keen and novel steppers. Among the entertainers are the Ormonde Sisters, Ossman and Schepp, Will Aubrey, Eddie Mathews and the Albertina Rasch Girls. A Dick Leibert organlogue and a special Elias Breeskin overture are on the bill.

STAGE ACTS PLEASE IN STANLEY

The stage portion of the first anniversary bill of the Stanley, which, with other Stanley-Davis-Clark Theaters, now is under direction of Warner Brothers, is by far the better part of the birthday entertainment, which includes "Fancy Baggage" as the motion picture feature. This is a rather far-fetched farce.

Charles Irwin, popular monologist, seen here recently with Ned Wayburn's revue, was the center of the stage presentation, acting as master of ceremonies, offering his own pleasing comedy in introducing others appearing on the bill. His unctuous humor proved most agreeable. Jane and Katherine Lee, formerly child funsters of the screen and later familar to vaudeville audiences as the Lee Kids, were the more prominent among the performers for whom Mr. Irwin bespoke a "big hand."

Jane and Katherine have developed into girls of charming appearance, and have matured their art of clowning so well that their songs dancing and comedy made them favorites.

A hit of the bill was the playing of a miniature piano and the comedy of a chap in blackface. The dancing of Valdova Vestoff was sensational. Marion Vestoff helped him in a duet. Charles Lomas & Co., provided fun through the medium of a comedy horse. The Stanley steppers, 12 girls, music by the stage band, directed by David Broudy, and a grotesque finale completed the stage acts.

"Fancy Baggage" mixed up the affairs of a couple of financiers, former partners who soured on each other because one had been for Bryan and the other for McKinley, in the days when "free silver" was an issue, when the daughter of one attempted to save her dad from the revenge of the other and masquerades as a stenographer in order to recover an incriminating confession her father had signed. In getting it she also got the son of her dad's enemy and united them as friends. It has talk and some laughs. In it are Audrey Ferris, George Fawcett, Edmund Breese and Hallam Cooley in the prominent roles.

There also is a short Vitaphone comedy and an orchestral overture.

"Frivolities" Academy Bill

"Frivolities," playing in the Academy as the mutual burlesque attraction, has Charles "Bimbo" Davis and Tangara as the stars. Davis is a "boob" comedian and Tangara is a classical dancer who appears in several interludes and presents a specialty. Marion La Mar, Florence Drake and Edith Oakum, who are billed as "Little Whoopee," appear in songs and dances on the runway. Charles Williams, eccentric comic, helps in the funmaking. Adeline Parks, soubret, Bee Bell, ingenue prima donna, and James Hall and Johnny Cook, singers and dancers, are other principals.

Life in Jungle Olympic Show

Oca Johnson

"Simba," picture of African jungle life, is being presented in the Olympic this week. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, explorers and hunters, who spent four years in Africa making the production, are appearing in person in connection with the Olympic presentations. The film presents a big parade of jungle animals — antelopes, giraffes, zebras, rhinocs, hippos, elephants, leopards and so on. One of the feature scenes shows the stampede of an elephant herd. Short screen entertainment is on the bill.

The pique printed ensemble takes modern blocks done in pink or rose tones or in several of the French blue tones . . . its frock, too, is sleeveless and takes a bit of the print as a trim.

Meditations of a Wife

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Why Weep at a Wedding?

A WEDDING used to be almost as sad as a funeral, with all the women weeping softly into the potted ferns. But now it's as gay and joyous as an Armistice Day parade.

* * *

In these days, Mother heaves a sigh of relief instead of a sigh of regret when her daughter goes to the altar. At least she can exchange that "What-will-happen-next?" feeling for the "Thank-heaven-THAT'S-over!" feeling—and stop holding her breath when the telephone rings.

* * *

The old-fashioned mother, who used to carry a duchesse lace handkerchief to the church and shed crocodile tears at the thought of parting forever from her innocent "baby girl" is completely out of the picture. The modern mother feels more like waving a flag and singing the Marseillaise.

HELEN ROWLAND

* * *

She has at least the sweet, consoling knowledge that she'll know "who's kissing her now!" And there is always the optimistic hope that it MAY last—for quite a while!

* * *

Father doesn't ask the prospective bridegroom if he can make his little girl happy. He asks him if he can make her BEHAVE.

* * *

He doesn't even inquire if the young man makes enough money to support his daughter in the style to which she is accustomed. He is only too thankful if the prospective son-in-law doesn't demand a bonus for taking her off his hands. Or if the happy couple don't telegraph him to send them money to pay their fare back from the honeymoon.

* * *

Getting a girl married doesn't necessarily mean losing her forever, anyway; it may mean only lending her for a little while—and then having to take her back again, C. O. D.

* * *

Just a little breathing spell for Father, between paying off the wedding debts and starting to save for the divorce. But THAT'S something.

* * *

Her wedding may no longer be the beginning of life, for a girl—but at least it's the end of liberty and the pursuit of a wild time. And her parents can sleep peacefully, once more, in the comforting assurance that she'll be getting up to make her coffee at 8 a. m., instead of just getting in from a party.

* * *

But after all, there is so sound so thrilling, no telephone call so exciting, as the sweet pealing of the wedding bells; no flowers so fragrant as the wedding bouquet, and no moment so glamorous as that in which a girl stands before the flower-decked altar beside the One Man.

HANDS! What a story they tell, to anyone who can read the hand language. And really it's not hard. Of course, to Love's eyes, whether the hands be soft and white or red and roughened from toil, the hands of the Beloved are the loveliest in the world.

But just watch the hands you come in contact with and see if I'm not right. The helpless, soft white hands of the girl who is a clinging vine, seem to be the tendrils that hold and cling and are so tenaciously strong for such frail looking things.

Then there are the hands of the artist—strong, sensitive, talented hands that show in every move the strength and ability of the owner.

And you all know the frivolous hands! Hands that flutter to the tune of jazz; that wave their derisive greeting and farewell to all things serious. Restless hands, these, the perfect barometer of their owner.

But watch the hands of Motherhood! Tender, strong, capably tender, tenderly capable. The hands that smooth away the hurts; that hover in anxious solicitude over the precious soul confided to her care. These are truly the hands of love, and the one with the Mother hands is the one who loves and guides and rules on the path of Life.

Heads and hands! One rules the other, and each is expressive of the other.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Right Living Is the Best Blood Medicine.

IN my mail I found recently a letter from a man of apparent culture inquiring what to take to purify his blood. It is not uncommon to be asked what "blood medicine" is good.

Back of all such questions is a fundamental error. Nothing of good or evil originates in the blood. This fluid is merely part of what might be called the transportation system of the body. The chief, if not the sole function of the blood is to carry material from one part of the body to other parts.

DR. COPELAND

The blood will be "rich," filled with nourishing life promoting agents, if the owner is living the right sort of life. If you are a dyspeptic, eating the wrong foods, eating at the wrong times, or taking the wrong quantities, the blood will not be given those substances that are needed if your cells and tissues are to thrive.

Loss of appetite, lack of energy, sallow skin, pains in the joints and muscles—these are sure to be your symptoms if you do not supply your blood with quantities of body building materials. These are materials that you get from food and air and light. They do not come out of bottles.

In young and old, one of the most common of ailments is anemia. I am speaking now of what the doctors call "secondary anemia," a type due to some underlying defect in the system. The "primary anemia" is quite another ailment.

Everybody knows the symptoms of anemia. Paleness of the lips and skin and marked loss of strength, are the chief signs. The victims feels like a dish-rag—no energy, no ambition, no "pep." Perhaps the pulse is rapid or irregular. Headaches, dizziness, loss of sleep, pains here and there throughout the body—these are common symptoms.

Indoor workers, Congressmen, office men and women—all who have confining, inside work—are apt to be enemic. They may have good color in the Summer, especially after a vacation, but during the winter they fade by the day.

There are four chief causes for anemia of this type. The first is unsuitable feeding. I have already enlarged upon this phase of the subject.

You cannot have red blood and good color unless you eat properly. You must have the foods that contain the minerals, especially iron. You must have your full share of the mysterious vitamins. This means you must choose your food with care.

The second cause for enemia is the absorption of poisons from the wastes of the body. Constipation and fermentation in the bowel cannot be disregarded as fruitful in their output of bodily poisons.

Under this head would come, too, the absorption of pus from the gums, teeth, tonsils or other parts of the body. You cannot be well if there is a chronic infection somewhere in your insides.

The third cause for anemia is over-work, or over-worry, anything that exhausts the nervous system. Nature cannot be cheated. If she is, you must pay the penalty.

The fourth cause I regard as most important of all. This is bad hygiene. If you live in the midst of unhealthy surroundings, without fresh air, an abundance of light and exercise, you are sure to impair the quality of your blood. You are sure to become anemic.

Each of the causes I have recalled carries its own suggestion of how to overcome it. It is only by right living and attention to the rules of personal hygiene that you can hope to escape anemia. A word to the wise is sufficient!

Answers to Health Queries

H. M. Q.—What would cause difficulty in getting up mornings—the entire strength having to be exerted to move the limbs. Until the bowels move there is a pricking sensation in both hands and feet?

2.—What causes the back of my head to crack and the lobe of the ear to pain when touched. I am not troubled with colds or catarrh, but the head feels congested?

3.—What will keep the intestinal tract clear?

A.—Some circulatory disturbance. Keep the bowels active and improve the health general.

2.—May be due to high blood pressure, but examination will determine the necessary treatment. See your doctor.

3.—Careful diet, plenty of water between meals and regular outdoor exercise should all bring about results.

* * *

R. S. Q.—What causes one to bruise easily and is this harmful?

2.—What will help falling hair?

2.—The general health has a decided influence on the condition of both hair and scalp. Keep the hair immaculately clean with careful shampooing and rinsing and the use of a good hair tonic.

* * *

J. D. Q.—What do you advise for chronic laryngitis?

A.—Consult a throat specialist for treatment.

* * *

D. A. L. M. Q.—What will restore the color to hair that is turning gray? Would a hair restorer harm the scalp?

A.—Nothing but a hair dye, which is not advisable. If the hair is kept immaculately clean and well groomed the fact that it is turning gray should not prove to be a detriment.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Harry Offers Aid in Romantic Drama of Noel and Mary.

"OH! my sanctified great-grandmother!" Harry Underwood groaned as my angry astonished eyes met his. "Now I have put my foot right into the flower-border. Look here, Lady Fair, can't you consider that last fool question unsaid? Honest to Agnes, it just slipped out, because we were discussing Mary. I don't really believe that you're ruling your heart with your head and putting ambition before Dicky, and it wouldn't be any of my darned business if you were. What particular way would you like me to do penance?"

"Oh, do shut up," I said crossly, angry at myself that I could not help laughing at his nonsense when, in reality, I was thoroughly upset by his query. For the question he had asked me when I had defended Mary for "ruling her heart with her head" had struck deep. Was that the "theory I was believing in now?" as he had said. "Was I putting my ambition before my husband? Was that the subconscious reason for my defense on the attitude which I believed was Mary's toward Noel, Georges and her career? You should belong to the inquisition," Mr. Underwood told me with a grin, "for you know you've chosen the one punishment which is the keenest torture to me. Let's get on home, for if I can't talk I shall expire right here at your feet and then you'll have a coroner's inquest on your hands."

I stooped to the switch key, still laughing, and sent the car on its way. Mr. Underwood did not speak again until we were almost at the house.

"Just one minute before we get there," he said, his voice serious. "Whether you're wrong or not about Mary—and I'm rather inclined to bank on the proposition that Noel means more to her than you think, I've got a hunch that it won't be a bad idea for old Doc Underwood to keep his eyes open when he's going to the mat with old Phil Veritzen this winter."

"Mr. Veritzen?" I exclaimed involuntarily. Then I was furious at myself for the slip, for I did not wish Harry Underwood to guess that I already knew of the drama which he had sent to the great producer under another name and which Mr. Veritzen had recognized as his. Philip Veritzen had told me of it and asked me to tell Lillian in the days before the wanderer came back in such spectacular fashion. But I had heard nothing concerning the play since.

"Yes, I've got a hen on the nest over there," he said carelessly, "but the old boy and I are having a few little differences of opinion about the hatching. But what I'm getting at is this. If, at any time, anything which troubles you comes up in the three-act romantic drama of Noel and Mary, remember I'm a play tinkerer—so-called—and an SOS will bring me on the run. You don't understand? You don't need to, not until the time comes, if it does. Then you will."

He finished his cryptic utterance with one of his great laughs just as we turned in at the gate, leaving me thoroughly puzzled but with the comforting little conviction that I could indeed call upon him for aid and counsel in any emergency, and that he menat to keep some sort of watch upon Philip Veritzen's activities.

Jerry Ticer's small car had turned in the gate ahead of us, and I hurried to the rear of the house, for Jerry always brings our mail when he fetches that of his own family from the post office. Mary was standing by the car and was looking over the mail which he had just given her.

"Only one for me, from Aunt Harriet," she said. "Will you take the rest, Auntie Madge?"

She handed me the letters and I noted that the envelope she held was of the heavy gray monogrammed stationery which Harriet Braithwaite always uses. Yes, this was the day of the week on which her letter and allowance arrived.

Diced Pork in Brown Sauce

Make a good brown sauce in the usual way. Do not thicken at once, but add to the sauce two cupfuls of diced cold roast pork and stew until heated through, then add the thickening. Serve in a hot covered dish. A few capers may be added, if liked. Serve baked potatoes with this, as the gravy is good with them.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Interesting Details

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it correct for a young lady to hold her arm under a man's arm, or should the man hold hers?

2. When it is raining, who should carry the umbrella, the man or woman?

3. Is it not incorrect to hold a gentleman's coat in a public place?

4. When eating a waffle, is it not correct to cut one piece at a time and then eat it, or cut it all up and then start eating?

5. Should a lady hold a man's hat on her lap when attending a theater? PUZZLED.

NEITHER is correct. They walk independently, neither holding the arm of the other.

2. The man, unless that means the less convenient arrangement. With the increasing smallness of our umbrellas now, usually it is more convenient for the woman to carry her own umbrella. And protection is the first use of an umbrella, after all.

3. Yes. A manly man resents this—is, in fact, very much embarrassed by this "attention."

4. Cut only one piece at a time. Eat that before you cut the next piece.

5. No.

Please Use "Please"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

While at work I asked the proprietor, who is a lady, for some money. I did not say please. Her reply was, "Haven't you learned to say please yet?" I did not ask in any commanding tone; I merely said, "Lend me 10 cents," in a very gentle manner. She gave it to me but I did not accept it because I did not feel worthy of it, as I had not asked for it properly. Will you kindly let me know the correct way to ask; also if it is necessary to say "please" for everything you want? ANXIOUS TO LEARN.

YOU really did need a severe reproof for omitting the "please," especially from such a request. Yes, we always should use "please" when we ask for something, request a favor.

Who Plans Shower?

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper for the mother or sister of the groom-to-be to have a shower for the bride-to-be? E. G.

SINCE this relationship is too near the couple, it is usually not considered good form for them to plan a shower for the bride-to-be.

Surprise Meat Balls

Make a pound of chopped steak into balls after seasoning it. Tuck a lump of butter and a raw oyster in the center of each ball. Place in a buttered baking pan, dot with butter, and baste with a little melted sherry jell. Brown delicately. Serve hot with dish gravy poured over them. Garnish with parsley.

Furniture Cleaning

Delicate colored furniture should never be washed with soap and water, but should be cleaned with sifted whiting applied with a slightly moistened cloth, and then wiped off with a piece of old flannel wrung out of clear, cold water, and polished with a piece of silk.

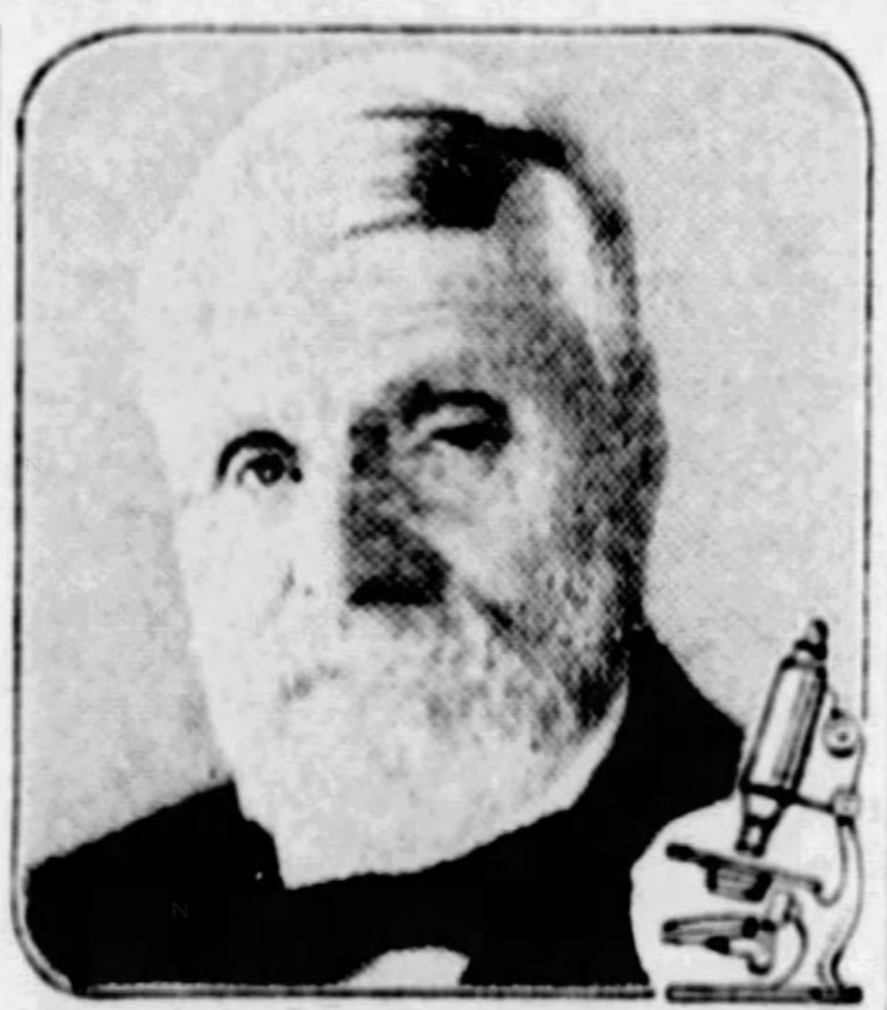
Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice, he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and placed it on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a public success as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us it helped when everything else failed.



AT AGE 83

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, its mild, gentle action is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

INSTEAD of exercise

Here's a substitute for exercise that's keeping millions of busy men and women fit and sound! The little exerciser in the vest-pocket box for a dime!

Cascarets bring lasting relief from those symptoms of sluggish bowels, such as headaches, indigestion, bloating, no appetite, biliousness, etc., because they actually give the bowels as much exercise as they get from eighteen holes of golf. Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives do not act like Cascarets. These things only produce mechanical or chemical action. Taking them is like using a crutch. You get so you have to depend on them. They weaken your bowels.

What you need is something to tone and strengthen the bowels. That's what Cascarets do. They are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and exercises the bowel muscles. Nothing else does this. Each time you take Cascarets, your bowels become stronger. That's why more than 20 million boxes are used a year and physicians everywhere endorse them!

Lighten Your Skin, Reduce Enlarged Pores, Banish Blackheads, Eruptions and Oily Skin

Five Minutes Works Wonders

The newest discovery in beauty culture is that creamed magnesia is much better for the complexion than any soap or cleansing cream. It beautifies the skin instantly, in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. This is because skin impurities are acid. Doctors treat acid inside the body with milk of magnesia. And now, dermatologists are getting amazing results in banishing complexion faults with creamed magnesia. All you do is anoint your skin with it, massage and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face.

It reduces enlarged pores to the finest, smoothest texture almost as if by magic. Being astringent, it drives away the tell-tale signs of age. You will marvel at the effect of your first five-minute facial massage. It rejuvenates the skin so quickly that any woman can look lovely tonight, years younger. It's marvelous how magnesia dissolves blackheads, clears eruptions and corrects oily skin.

And because it is so mild, mothers use it instead of soap to bathe infants. It certainly is a blessing as a face wash for fine, sensitive skins that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. Not being a cold cream, it cannot grow hair on the face. It removes make-up and extracts impurities deep-set in the pores better than soap or cold cream. It changes dull, sallow skin to ivory-white and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. Test it on those clogged nose pores that stand out so boldly. Let it whiten your neck. It will also keep your hands soft and white. Until recently, creamed magnesia was used only by New York doctors' wives, and nurses. But now the large druggists everywhere find it hard to keep enough on hand to supply the demand. To get genuine creamed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. The dollar size holds three fifty-cent bottles. Get your magnesia today and look lovely tonight. It's Guaranteed!

No More Ugly Nose Pores

DENTON'S Facial Magnesia

Makes poor skin lovely—keeps fine skin fine

NOTE: Do not hesitate to try this marvelous skin treatment at once. Thousands of delighted women have written they could not believe anything so simple could be so wonderful. But they were convinced when they saw so many friends suddenly get lovely complexions.

ACQUITTED OF SMUGGLING MACEDONIANS INTO U. S.

Herbert J. Soothern, 22 and Frank Fischer, 24, of Niagara Falls, Ont., were acquitted Monday in Federal Court of having smuggled five Macedonians into the United States from Canada and concealed them. The two defendants and the five aliens were arrested by state police in Erie, December 11, while en route to Cleveland, O.

The government's case was weakened by the failure of the five aliens, natives of Saloniki, to appear as material witnesses, each being under $500 bond for appearance at the trial. Assistant United States Attorney Zeno Fritz, who prosecuted the case, said that attachments would be issued for their arrest.

The verdict on the smuggling charge of the indictment was directed by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker when the prosecution failed to establish that the two defendants assumed charge of the aliens in Canada; and the jury found them not guilty of concealment.

Both the defendants went on the stand in their own defense. Soothern testified that he was engaged by a man he knew as "Big Mike" to take the Macedonians from Niagara Falls, N. Y., to Cleveland, and that Fischer accompanied him, the trip being made in an automobile which was stopped by state police. The whereabouts of the aliens is not known.

Remember the FACTS about used car allowances

MOST new car sales now involve the trading-in of a buyer's used car. More and more people are asking: "Why should my used car seem to have several values? .... Why should dealers in different makes of cars offer me allowances differing materially? .... Does the largest allowance offered mean the best deal for me?"

Here are basic facts:

1 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

2 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value: what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

3 The largest trade-in allowance which is offered on your used car is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.

4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

5 Judge the merits of each new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in the allowances offered on your used car.

WHEN you trade-in your present car, remember that you are first of all making a purchase and not a sale. You are buying a new car and simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of the new car.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Wanderlust and Lenten Restrictions Reduce Social Activity

CAN that small proportion of our social group still remaining in town be anticipating Mr. Hoover's inauguration? They certainly seem to be following his war-time precept by keeping many party-less days. The few stay-at-homes are entertaining each other occasionally at informal affairs, but these are far between and necessarily small. Attacks of the wanderlust and Lenten restrictions really share the responsibility for this state of affairs so we can't look for much relief before April arrives.

This week would be an appallingly dull one if the Woman's City Club hadn't persuaded Mme. Ganna Walska to postpone her trip to Europe and come here to sing, instead. Mme. Walska, in fact, is going to sing on the evening of the very day she had planned to leave—Saturday—and the concert, you know, is to be given in the ballroom of the William Penn Hotel. She is to give, I understand, the same program which she sang recently at Carnegie Music Hall in New York.

From the standpoint of one who is interested in social events, one of the most pleasant aspects of Mme. Walska's visit, aside, of course, from the interest in hearing her sing, is the opportunity for a little entertaining. Quite a few folks, I hear, are planning to give dinners before the concert, and one of them, naturally, is the president of the club, Mrs. Henry Clay McEldowney. Among others are Mrs. William Watson Smith, Mrs. E. V. Babcock, Mrs. Eugene Pargny, Mrs. E. N. Calhoun, Mrs. Andrew Robertson, Mrs. Herbert Moore, Mrs. Robert E. Withers and Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl.

Mrs. Diehl is chairman for the recital, and she is being assisted by Mrs. Clark Hammond, as her vice chairman. Mrs. McEldowney is in charge of patronesses, while the sale of boxes is being conducted by Mrs. Calhoun. Miss Geraldine West is going to direct the corps of ushers and the decorations will be arranged under the direction of Mrs. Charles L. Peirce, Jr. Mrs. A. S. F. Keister is in charge of sending out the invitations.

AN engagement of interest here has just been announced in New York. It is the betrothal of Evelyn Fahnestock, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Fahnestock, of Fifth avenue, New York, and Shadowbrook Farm, Shrewsbury, N. J., to George S. Steele, son of Mrs. Frederick Hall Steele, of Pittsburgh.

This bride-to-be is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harris C. Fahnestock and of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. Ritzema De Grove, of New York. She was graduated from the Chapin School in 1927, and in the following November she made her debut at a dinner dance in the Ritz Carlton. She is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Steele was a member of the class of 1927 at Yale, and he is a member of the Yale Club. No date has been set for the wedding, I believe.

DID you know that a Baltimore debutante of about two years ago is appearing here with George Arliss in "The Merchant of Venice?" She is Eleanor Phelps, daughter of Mrs. Alma Phelps, formerly of Baltimore, but who is now living in Fort Worth, Tex., and she has the role of Nerissa in the Arliss production.

Miss Phelps is a Vassar girl, having been graduated just last June, and she first appeared on the stage with the Johns Hopkins University Players at Bath, Md. The following summer she played the lead with the Wharf Players at Provincetown, and the next year she was at Falmouth, Mass., with the University Players.

Miss Phelps is a playwright as well as an actress, and her play, "Trull Hill," was the prize play last year at Vassar. And another of her plays, 'The Fool's Kiss,' also received one of the Vassar prizes. During her stay in Pittsburgh, Miss Phelps is the house guest of the Rev. and Mrs. F. Orr Johnson, of North Lincoln avenue, North Side, and several affairs have been planned for her. The Authors' Club will give a dinner tonight in the Hotel Henry, and tomorrow the Ten Women's League is arranging a tea in the Woman's City Club for Miss Phelps, Miss Maud Howell and Henry Morrell.

Sewickley Women Hear Miss Skinner

FOR the second time this season, the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club has had a program by the famous daughter of a famous father. Yesterday Cornelia Otis Skinner came with her array of unusual gifts and delighted a large audience in the Presbyterian Church Home. Something after the fashion of Ruth Draper, with only a chair or two and a table for stage settings and a bit of costume now and then for properties, Miss Skinner does these sketches of her own, witty, clever—all of them—pathetic, humorous—some of them—but all worthy vehicles of their creator's personality and talents.

Miss Skinner amazes with her complete change of voice, accent and facial expression and, at times, as in the Monte Carlo sketch, with the transformation of her entire appearance. She is no longer Cornelia Otis Skinner. She is the poor, quavering old woman of the gaming tables who has been working out a system for 30 years.

Her audience yesterday laughed in perfect understanding of the mother who had "spent years and years in school learning that 'X' equals something," silently sympathized over the outworn romance of the wife who now wore her health shoes even with her evening dress, but always they admired this beautiful young artist, with the charming personality and fascinating gifts of whom someone has said, "She is not Otis Skinner's daughter for nothing." An American girl on the French telephone, the lady explorer's lecture, a picnic in Kentucky and "sailing time on the Olympic" were all vividly visualized and as an encore Miss Skinner did in French an unusual thing, the Belgian poet, Varhaeren's poem of "the bitter wind of November."

ALTHOUGH "that elusive entity, the younger generation" may seem to be traveling towards Bohemia, it is certain they all come from Missouri, Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, of Princeton University, told the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning in his lecture on "Liberalism and Efficiency." Sophistication, disillusionment and disenchantment were held by the speaker to be the keynotes of today, and if one would be Victorian one should be an optimist. The present was said to be a period of subtraction, rather than addition. In the old liberalism, emphasis was placed on the infinite value of the individual; in the new efficiency the individual is looked upon as a means to an end which is outside of himself, he is part of a machine which subordinates the individual to the organization. Ghandi and Mussolini were cited as examples of each. The fact that there are two spheres of conduct, a law for man and a law for things, must be recognized, the speaker declared, pleading for a new liberalism based upon a firm faith in human nature. This is necessary in nations as well as in individuals, Dr. Spaeth stated, saying that no nation can be prosperous without efficiency, nor happy without being free. "Liberalism without efficiency would be futile, and efficiency without liberalism would be fatal," he concluded.

"I am strong for Luckies."

John Gilbert
John Gilbert
Celebrated Screen Star

"Motion picture actors are under a great strain—they need the comforting qualities of a good cigarette. That is why most of us smoke Lucky Strike. The marvelous toasted flavor of Luckies brings complete enjoyment and relaxation but does not hurt the throat or wind. I am strong for Luckies—they are the 'stars' of the cigarette picture. I would rather have a Lucky after a meal than rich pastries or desserts."

JOHN GILBERT

The modern common sense way—reach for a Lucky instead of a fattening sweet. Everyone is doing it—men keep healthy and fit, women retain a trim figure. Lucky Strike, the finest tobaccos, skilfully blended, then toasted to develop a flavor which is a delightful alternative for that craving for fattening sweets.

Toasting frees Lucky Strike from impurities. 20,679 physicians recognize this when they say Luckies are less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Penn. Mother Has Problem

As a rule, milk is about the best food for children, but there are times when they are much better off without it. It should always be left off when children show by feverish, fretful or cross spells, by bad breath, coated tongue, sallow skin, indigestion, biliousness, etc., that their stomach and bowels are out of order.

In cases like this, California Fig Syrup never fails to work wonders, by the quick and gentle way it removes all the souring waste which is causing the trouble, regulates the stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. Children love its rich, fruity flavor and it's purely vegetable and harmless, even for babies.

Millions of mothers have proved its merit and reliability in over 50 years of steadily increasing use. A Pennsylvania mother, Mrs. Mary West, 5416 Spring St., Philadelphia, says: "My little son, Paul's tendency to constipation was a problem to me until I began giving him California Fig Syrup. It helped him right away and soon his stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. Since then I've never had to have any advice about his bowels. I have also used California Fig Syrup with my other two, with equal success."

To be sure of getting the genuine, which physicians endorse, always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name.

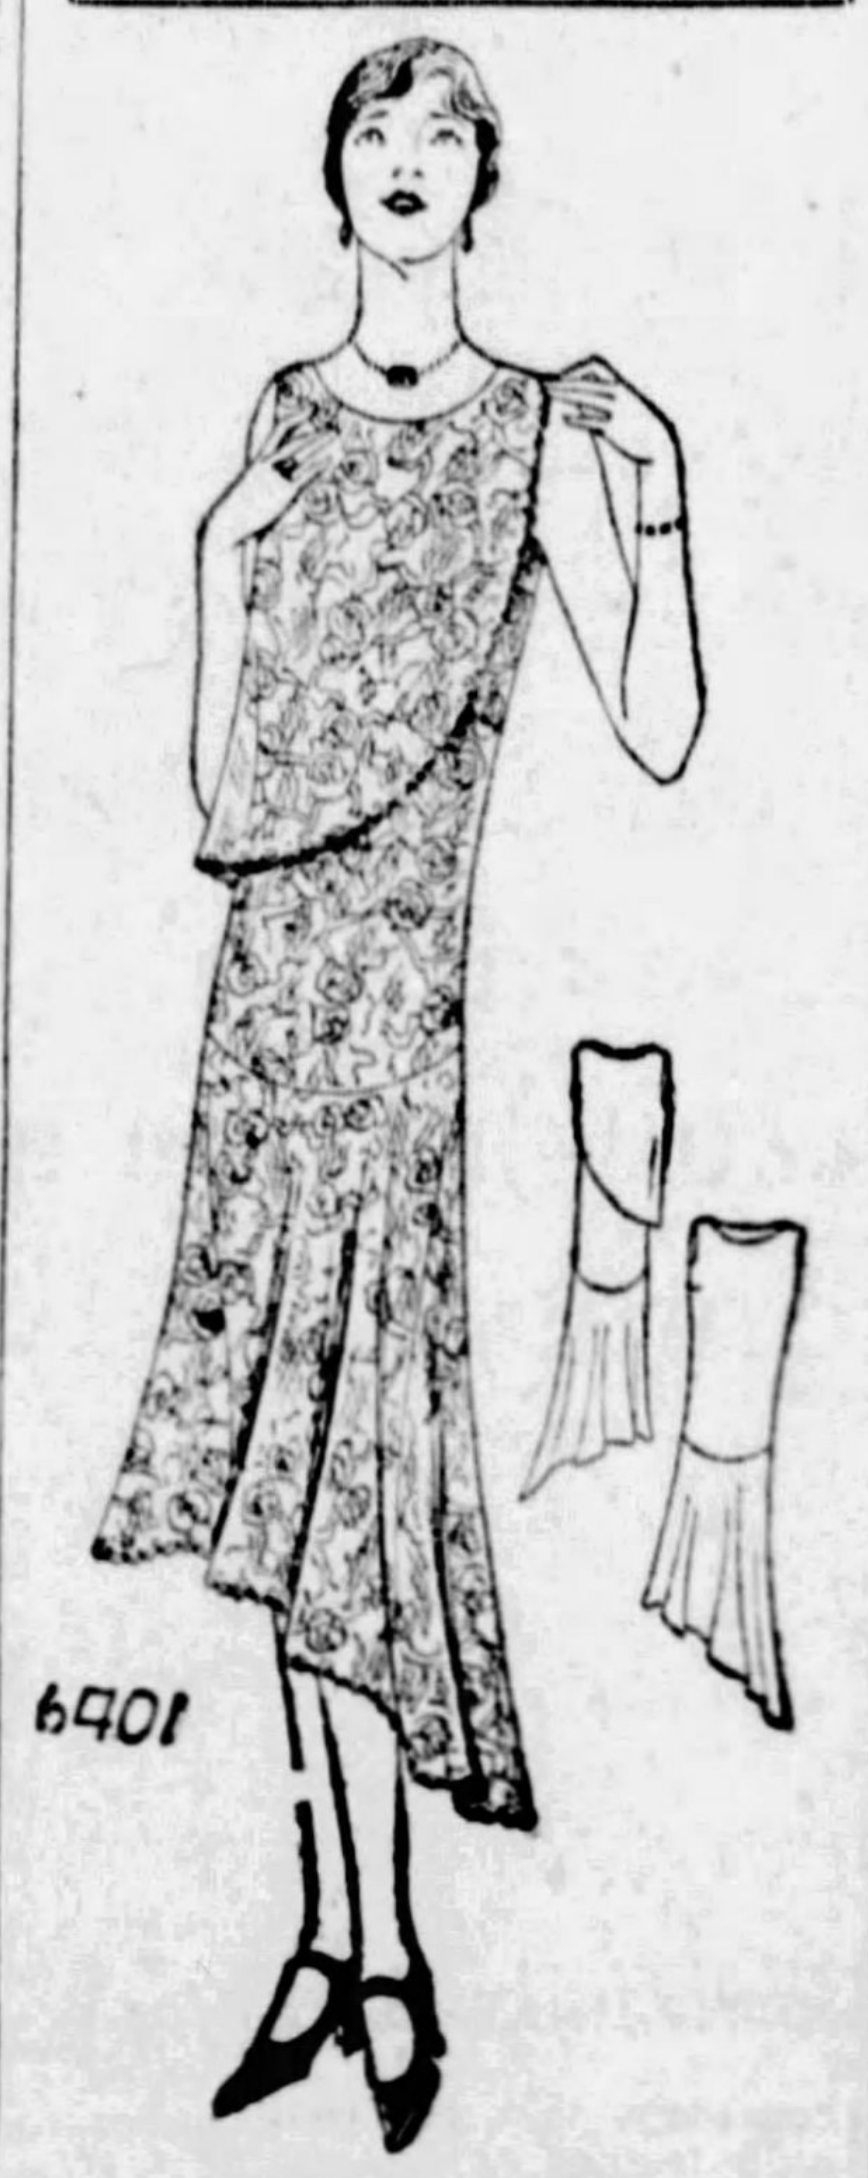
The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern



A FASHIONABLE EVENING DRESS

Lace in black or beige would be very attractive for this design. It comprises a waist portion in hip length, to which a flare skirt, cut with the popular side dip is joined. The bolero flares at the right side, and describes a curve from the underarm to the left shoulder. The bolero may be omitted. Sheer velvet in blue or brown would also be nice for this design. Metal cloth and velvet in combination, or crepe and velvet is also suggested.

The pattern for this attractive dress is cut in five sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 38-inch size with the bolero will require 6 yards of 39-inch material. If made without the bolero 1 yard less of 39-inch or ½-yard less of 54-inch material will be required. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fulness extended is 2⅞ yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A CHILD'S COUGH EASY TO STOP THE DOCTORS DECLARE

PARENTS SHOULD REMEMBER THIS

Any harmless cough remedy soon stops the coughs and colds of children because their little bodies throw off such troubles easily, provided they are not delicate and sickly.

But where am I to get something children will like to take is a big question. Cod Liver Oil is nasty and you must take it such a long time.

Here is the answer of doctors who know and love children: "Give the child 'Linonine,' a nice-tasting, creamy white, Flaxseed, Eucalyptus, etc., mixture, far better than Cod Liver Oil and quicker, too. The kiddies love it and it is as harmless and effective as can be.

Thousands of modern mothers keep a bottle always at hand for coughs, colds and to build up and strengthen the children this time of year. A cough is a nasty, dangerous thing for children. Well-stocked druggists have Linonine, made by the nationally known Kerr Chemical Co., 50c or $1.00 sizes.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

WITH Fritz Leiber at the Nixon in a Shakespearian repertoire and with George Arliss at the Pitt in "Shylock," or the "Merchant of Venice," Pittsburgh playgoers have a chance to brush up on the Bard of Avon.

I have a special fondness for Mr. Leiber since the time I saw him at close range. He may not know it, but I was one of the King's soldiers who escorted him onto the stage one time. He may better remember one of the other soldiers, who perplexed, in spite of instructions issued by the chief of the supernumeraries, approached Mr. Leiber and asked: "Say, Doc, do we go in ahead or behind you?"

PARDON ?
SAY, DOC-- !

At the moment Mr. Lieber was busy back stage going over his lines, but in spite of the interruption in such unclassical language, Mr. Leiber was kind and considerate and indicated the order of our appearance.

Mr. Leiber then was supporting the late Robert Mantell and the play was "King John." I never read "King John" and still don't know what it's all about. Serving in the cast, I thought, would be a good chance to learn something about the text, aside from the commercial inducement which allowed each "super" to collect 50 cents a performance, but in those days soldiers of the king were treated almost like prisoners of war—in Libby or Andersonville. Once through with our lines we all were hustled into the basement of John Reynold's Alvin Theater and while it was a nice basement as basements go it certainly was not an ideal place to get a close-up of what was transpiring on the stage above.

* * *

I note that Mr. Leiber includes Hamlet on his program and I assume Mr. Leiber will not take the liberties with that part as were taken by another actor who once played the part in a red costume. A critic made sport of such unconventional costume, pointing out that even in the text reference is made to Hamlet's ink-like clothing, but nothing daunted the actor wrote in to inquire if the critic had never heard of red ink.

* * *

LIVING today, Shakespeare likely would be tempted to re-write Shylock. Surgery has advanced to a point now where Shylock might have got his pound of flesh and still lived up to the strict injunction obtained by Portia against spilling a drop of Christian blood. It was Portia's wit that saved Antonio from a sudden and violent reduction in weight, but Portia was getting away with something, too. Appearing before the Allegheny County Court Portia would not have been allowed to plead for the defense. She was not a registered law student, in the first place, and so far as the text reveals she had never passed the bar examination of Venice. Why then was this second Daniel allowed to act as counsel?

* * *

I should like to know what the Sam Gardners, Andy Parks, Roy Clunks and Earl Jacksons of that day were doing when in open court a pretty girl, attired in men's clothing, (that in itself was likely some sort of offense) pretended she was a lawyer and just because she was in love with a friend of the defendant cleverly introduced a new condition in the bond.

It was a civil suit, to be sure, but if the district attorney's staff was not moved to do anything about it, then how about one of the committees of the bar association?

Shylock, of course, was not entitled to his pound of Antonio's flesh, but that is no reason why the court's door should be thrown open to every young woman in love who takes a notion to turn lawyer.

If Shylock was inhuman in asking for the pound of flesh, was his daughter, Jessica, the picture of humanity when she ran away from home to leave a weary and heckled old man all by himself?

* * *

IN THIS day Shylock would not have been so frustrated. Once Portia admonished against the spilling of blood, Shylock would say: "All right, let him skip rope until he loses a pound."

RUNAWAY BOYS RETURNED

Edward Davis, 15, of 900 Brownsville avenue, and Vernon Klodweski, 14, of 6 Roanoke street, South Side, who left their homes Friday morning have been returned to their parents by Elizabeth Township Constable George W. Nickolls.

According to the boys' story they left home with no particular destination because they objected to the strict parental discipline in their homes, walked and hitchhiked in many directions, spent Friday night traveling roads unknown to them and late Saturday night encountered some friendly boys in Boston Hollow (Elizabeth township) who interceded with their parents and the boys were taken into the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Brothers, just outside of Boston, for the night. Mr. Brothers telephoned Constable Nickolls who took the boys to the office of Justice of the Peace W. H. Heath, in Greenock. The parents were located by telephone and asked the boys be returned.

OFFICE MUSEUM OF SEA CURIOS

Although Frank Ellsworth, veteran Pittsburgh seafood commission merchant, conducts his business hundreds of miles away from the sea, his office is a constant reminder to him of the romance of deep sea fishing.

His office in the Jenkins Arcade is a veritable museum replete with odd speciments of the sea, the collection of which has been Ellsworth's hobby for over a quarter of a century.

His most priceless curio is a full-rigged, four-master model of a deep-sea sailing vessel. The craft occupies the entire top of the office roll-top desk. It serves as a constant reminder to Ellsworth of the days when he himself went to sea as deep sea fisherman on the coast of New Jersey.

Another of the curios in his office is a carved sword made from the sword of a huge swordfish, given him by a New England fisherman.

MAGISTRATES SCORED BY JUDGE

"I wish these police magistrates and sergeants could be brought into court so the law could be explained to them," declared Judge Frank P. Patterson, in Common Pleas Court, in discharging on a writ of habeas corpus a man who had been sentenced to the workhouse on a charge of drunkenness without the alternative of a fine.

Dave Houston, a Green taxi driver, was the man set free. He had been sentenced last Thursday to 30 days in the workhouse by Magistrate William J. Soost at the Frankstown Avenue Police Station, without the option of paying a fine. Attorney G. F. Zehner, for the taxi company, told the court they had only learned of the matter Monday morning.

The attorney had demanded a transcript of the record at the police station, but said this had been refused, on a plea that they had 48 hours in which to furnish transcripts. SCOUTS' CHIEF O. K'S FLAG CONTEST

The United States Flag Association reports that Representative George S. Graham, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, Cooksboro, Pa., and Stanley C. Norris, Clarksburg, W. Va., are among those who have accepted service on the national board of patrons and patronesses of the Flag Contest, sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers.

With more than 25,000 school children between 14 and 18 throughout Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia competing for the honors of regional champions in Region 8, and the trip around the world offered to the four winners of the national contest, interest in the flag contest has reached a high peak.

BACKED BY BOY SCOUTS

James E. West, chief scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, indorses the flag contest highly. He says, in a letter to the United States Flag Association:

"I have read with interest the plans which you are making for the annual flag contest of the United States Flag Association. This contest is worked out on a high plane and I heartily approve any effort which results in a better citizenship.

"I do not need to assure you that the Boy Scouts of America stands for courtesy and respect to our flag and is always ready to lend its influence to bring about a better understanding of all that the flag exemplifies in our American home."

The School Board of Milwaukee, Wis., adopted a resolution a few months ago barring all enterprises and contests from public schools of Milwaukee.

CONTEST BARS LIFTED

The flag contest plan was so appealing, however, and its educational aspects were considered so great that Superintendent of Schools Milton C. Potter has given his indorsement of the movement. He has recommended that all students in the public high schools of Milwaukee participate in the flag contest.

March 8 is the last date on which local contest units can be accepted and given authority to compete in the regional and national contest. Any school, club, boy or girl scout troop or patriotic organization may conduct a local flag contest unit. Twenty-five boys or girls must be enrolled in each unit, and must be between the ages of 14 and 18 inclusive, on Flag Day, June 14.

Permission to conduct a contest unit can be obtained by writing the Flag Contest Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Supplies and materials with instructions on how a contest unit may be organized will be supplied.

Today's Flagism

On February 26, 1869, the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution was adopted. This amendment, aimed specifically for the benefit of the Negro race, protects the rights of citizenship, with proviso that no citizen shall forfeit his rights because of "race, color or previous condition of servitude." The American Flag, which has gone hand-in-hand with the Constitution, also recognizes no race or creed when it comes to affording protection to all who dwell beneath its protecting glory.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.

Say, what do you know about Lindy? What a sucker he is making out of these other fiances who go to see their girls on a train or a bicycle. What a boost for aviation. The modern girl is going to say, "Fly to see me, kid, don't come creeping up here in a car."

You will find that the Dempsey shooting was financed by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, for him giving so much publicity to Florida.

RIN-TIN-TIN, FAMOUS MOVIE DOG, GREETS FANS

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

RIN-TIN-TIN, the famous movie dog, displayed excellent "microphone sense" last night when his trainer, Lee Duncan, led him into the WCAE studio. He kept quiet like a well-behaved artist, and didn't mutter a sound until Mr. Duncan commanded him to give a few "woof-woofs" to the radio audience. The "woofs" were rather weak, but no one listening in could have mistaken them for anything but Rin's greeting.

Rin-Tin-Tin is the most temperamental radio artist we ever met. A yard is a good distance at any time whether you carry a nice fresh bone or a letter of introduction from the President. Rin has but one master.

While we rested in the studios waiting for an opportunity to snap the famous dog, Mr. Duncan kept Rin amused with a rubber baby doll that soon resembled a sausage after passing under the wheels of a five-ton truck. Rin has teeth like nobody's business. And his disposition with strangers—he doesn't rate at all. We know.

Someone once told us that we could make friends with any dog merely by allowing him to smell our hand. That rule may be good for most dogs, but not for Rin. When Rin sees a hand he visualizes something to eat. Such expressions as "Nice Doggie" were never meant for Rin.

FAMOUS IMITATOR

Lucrezia Borgia without her poison, and Burlington Bertie complete with monocle will both be present for the sixth Radio-Keith-Orpheum Hour.

The Borgia is only one of the famous feminine figures to be characterized in song by Nan Halperin, vaudeville star, who will also imitate Martha Washington and Catherine of Russia. Burlington Bertie is the famous character created by Ella Shields, male impersonator. Bertie will also make "his" radio debut in the same program.

In sharp contrast to these, Jack Pearl, of "Artists and Models" fame, will convulse the WCAE waves with his dialect comedy, and Miss Patricola, sister of Tom Patricola, of George White's "Scandals," will croon her vaudeville "blues" and play her own accompaniments on the violin.

Ben Bernie, who "hopes you'll like it," will preside as master of ceremonies, assisted by the familiar Bernie Band. The entire program on this night is drawn from feature acts at Radio-Keith-Orpheum theaters in and around New York.

KONJOLA ENDED STOMACH MISERY AFTER 4 YEARS

Remarkable Recovery Reported by Former Sufferer—Gained Relief in Week and Half.

"Konjola brought me complete recovery after all hope was gone." Time and time again this glad expression finds its way into the written or spoken indorsements of Konjola, the new medicine. What encouragement this should be for all who suffer and who seek in vain for relief from the clutches of disease.

How Konjola with its 32 body-cleansing, health-giving, pain-banishing ingredients, performs these seeming wonders, when all else tried has failed, is being explained daily by the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Company, (formerly McCulloch's) Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh. Here all those who meet the Konjola Man, to learn of the powers and feats of this master medicine, will be shown actual, proved, verified facts of Konjola's splendid powers. Those who seek health through Konjola, with its juices of 22 roots and herbs, are not asked to listen to mere promises. Konjola is a medicine of deeds, not words. Here is a typical case of Konjola at work. Read every word of the statement of Mr. William Lutz, Oakdale, Pa., a short distance from Pittsburgh, as he said to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

"What a glorious thing it is to have my health again after suffering for four years, and I owe it all to the merits of this splendid medicine, Konjola. All my troubles came from the extremely disordered condition of my stomach. I was unable to find a bit of food that digested right. Immediately after eating I began to suffer from gas bloating and severe pains in the pit of my stomach. At times I got so dizzy that it was necessary to hold onto something to keep from falling. Spots appeared before my eyes and make objects dim in front of me. With all this trouble I was unable to sleep well at night.

"When I first heard of Konjola and when it was recommended to me, I was inclined to laugh at the idea of it benefiting me. But my case became so bad that, like a drowning man, clutching at a straw, I took the opportunity to give Konjola a trial. Well, this medicine turned out to be a great deal more than a straw—it gave me a firm foothold on the glorious road to health. Within a week and a half I knew that I would soon be a well man again. Konjola went to work at the very source of my ailments—it cleansed my system and regulated my organs. My stomach functions perfectly now and food never causes the slightest distress. I have sound, refreshing sleep at night and with a good appetite. I have gained in strength and energy. Konjola accomplished in a few weeks what all other medicine failed to do in four years. It is worthy of the highest praise."

Thus does Konjola work in every case—those that are stubborn and of years duration. It is a medicine that performs, not promises. Konjola contains no alcohol, nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. It needs no such hazardous ingredients.

The Konjola man is at the Dow Drug Company, (formerly McCulloch's) Penn avenu and Sixth street, this city, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

Famous Recipe For Stopping a Severe Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, soothes away the inflammation, and loosens the germ-laden phlegm. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Local Lady's Health Troubles Ended by New Natural Medicine, Ten Herbs.

The remarkable success of Ten Herbs, the new natural medicine, is due to its amazing power often to give complete relief, after many other medicines have failed. Every sufferer from stomach, liver, kidney or bowel trouble should not fail to give this celebrated compound a trial. A great mass of evidence on file—including signed statements of many men and women of this section—is your guarantee that it is a medicine of surprising merit.

"I believe that if suffering people will try Ten Herbs they will get results far beyond their expectations," was the recent statement of Mrs. Anna Richie, 462 Taylor Street, East End, Pittsburgh. "I know that it was marvelous what Ten Herbs did for me," Mrs. Richie continued. "I was so weak and rundown I could not do my housework. My nerves were so bad I was unable to sleep right, and any little noise would bother me. I had sieges of nervous headaches, and there were rheumatic pains in my back, shoulders and arms. I had to arise several times at night. Besides all this, I was troubled with indigestion so badly that food would nauseate me and cause vomiting. I would fill with gas, and have terrible heartburn. My tongue was coated. I was very bilious and had sallow complexion.

"Ten Herbs made me feel like a new woman. I have more strength and ambition—can now do my housework. I eat my meals with a relish, and no longer become nauseated—no more gas, heartburn, or coated tongue. Rheumatism is gone, and night-rising has been stopped. My nerves are so quiet that I can sleep the whole night through. My complexion has cleared, and I am free of those terrible headaches. Even friends remark about the change that has come over me. I certainly am thankful to Ten Herbs for all that it has done for me. I gladly recommend this medicine to the public."

Ten Herbs is being introduced at May's Main Store, Fifth Avenue and Liberty Street, Pittsburgh, and sold at all May's Drug Stores.

KLINE VETOES PAYMENT TO RETIRED DETECTIVE

Council has deferred action for a week on Mayor Charles H. Kline's veto of a resolution authorizing payment of $320 to Patrick J. Delehanty, a former city detective, who was put on the retired list while absent from duty through illness.

Delehanty had asked Council for $800 as payment of salary from August 1, when he was dismissed, until December 1, when his pension payments began. The former detective said he was involuntarily placed on the retired list while taking treatment at Mt. Clemens, Mich., after obtaining a leave of absence from his superior, Frank Boyd, inspector of detectives.

In his veto message, the Mayor said it did not appear clear why Council had authorized $320 when the former employe asked $800. Mayor Kline pointed out that the city was not obligated to pay an employe from the time of discharge until the time the pension payments became operative.

Mayor Kline advised Council that Delehanty had sued the city for his disputed salary and received an adverse decision in court.

Council submitted the Mayor's letter to the law department with a request for an opinion whether the resolution could be passed over the veto.

Intoxication Denied In Elevator Killing

William Luft, 28, of Millvale, a clerk of the Universal Film Exchange, was not under the influence of liquor when he was crushed to death in the elevator shaft in the Exchange's building at 1018 Forbes street, three men who have been arrested pending an investigation told county detectives yesterday.

The elevator was stopped halfway between the second and third floors. Luft was crawling into the car from the second floor when it started, the detectives were told.

Contractors Protest Bond on Bridge Work

Darney and Murphy, contractors, of 3364 Milwaukee street, have submitted to Council a letter protesting against the "excessive" bond which the Department of Public Works requires to be posted by contractors bidding on the tearing down of Aiken Avenue Bridge. The writers declared a $30,000 bond was too much to require for a job for which only $10,000 had been appropriated.

New Firm License Fee Refund Asked

Attorney S. J. Corbett has asked Council to order a refund of $600 paid as license fees required of a new firm by the L. F. Ellison Piano House, 967 Liberty avenue. Corbett said the firm had been operating in Pittsburgh since 1927.

IRVINE STREET TRACK ASKED

The Pittsburgh Railways Company has asked Council for permission to lay tracks on Irvine street between Greenfield avenue and Hazelwood avenue.

Irvine street, when improved, will be used instead of Second avenue and the railways company is expected to abandon its tracks on Second avenue, thereby reducing operating expenses.

The city has asked the railways company to finance paving the street car area of Irvine street at an estimated cost of $47,000. The subject will be discussed at a conference of the company and Council.

Custodian Fee Urged At Foster Homestead

Payment of $50 monthly to Mrs. Jessie Welsh Rose as custodian of the Stephen Collins Foster homestead, Penn avenue and Thirty-sixth street, would be authorized in a resolution to be considered today by the finance committee of council.

DRY REPEALER ENTERED, LOBBIES TO STIR AT LAST

HARRISBURG, Feb. 26.—The lobbyists of the Anti-Saloon League and other bone-dry organizations have not been conspicuous in Harrisburg so far this session, but they will be on hand next week, because John Reilly, Philadelphia, put in a bill last night that would repeal the Snyder-Armstrong prohibition law in Pennsylvania.

His bill went to the Law and Order Committee. It is doubtful whether it ever will appear on the calendar. But it will give dry leaders the opportunity to come here to work against it.

It even may bring back the brewery lobby which, for the first time in many years, has not been on hand.

The introduction of the bill was a real gift to the lobbyists of both "wets" and "drys" who, to date, have found poor pickings. This has been the only session for many years--until the introduction of this bill, which really does not mean anything—that the paid lobbies on both sides haven't found good excuses to be on hand to fight for their respective causes.

Judge Signs Order For Federal Jurors

Judge R. M. Gibson, on petition of United States Attorney John D. Meyer, signed an order yesterday for summoning 23 grand jurors and 250 petit jurors for the May term of the Federal district court, which will convene in Pittsburgh May 6. This term will be preceded by a special four-week session in April, when the Twenty-seventh Ward and Twenty-second Ward rum conspiracy trials are listed for trial. These cases were listed at the present special session, but were crowded off the court calander because of many lengthy hearings.

Felicia Feels Guilty as Brett Accuses Her of Having Sweetheart

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

In the Overland Limited on the way from New York to Reno, Dick Stuyvesant meets Felicia Brett. They are strongly attracted to each other. Because they are ashamed to be getting divorces, they lie to each other about their destinations and slip from the train at Reno as quietly as possible. Dick goes to the hotel, where he joins a bachelor friend, John Berkeley, nicknamed J. B. Felicia goes to friends, Dr. and Mrs. Hodge. Dick sees her the next day lunching at the hotel with young Peggy Hodge and two college boys. Disillusioned, he flirts with Betty Rogers, a pretty little Southerner in Reno for "The Cure," and that night attends a wild party. The next evening he meets Felicia and the Hodges at Judge Cooper's. They explain their mutual deceptions and feel again the strong attraction that drew them together on the train. While driving Felicia home, Dick kisses her ardently and Felicia does not resist him. Ann Hodge warns her that too marked friendliness with Dick may imperil her chance of obtaining custody of her 6-year-old son. Felicia declares she will go back to New York and get the boy. The next day she gets a wire from her mother, Mrs. Henley-Martin, in New York, telling her that Alexander Brett, her elderly husband, is on his way to Reno. She gets an airplane and leaves at once for New York. An hour afterwards, Dick and J. B. hear that a plane has fallen 70 miles east of Reno. They rush to the spot in an automobile. They are relieved to find that the reported "wreck" is only a mail plane slightly damaged. Writing in his room the next morning, Dick is interrupted by the informal entrance of a handsome woman lightly clad. He is rescued from an annoying situation by J. B., who comes in and gallantly accompanies the intruder back to her own room. The woman, Edith Feeley, represents the boldest type of Renoite, an adventuress who picks up extra money by private detective work and blackmail. When Brett arrives the next day in Reno and asks the hotel clerk about detectives, he is given Mrs. Feeley's name in addition to the card of a well-known agency. Brett decides to see Felicia before employing any outside assistance. He leaves the hotel to go to the Hodges' house just as Felicia and her boy arrive by airplane.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

"HERE we are!" Felicia's voice, young and jubilantly happy, sounded in the hallway, and Ann and Peg Hodge came hurrying down the stairs to greet her. "Here's the infant Lindbergh!"

Little Alex, slightly bored but well schooled in his manners, shook hands gravely, but his round blue eyes traveled past the women to the window. "Are there Indians in those hills?"

"Can I shoot 'em?"

Felicia, smiling down at him, casually followed his gaze to the window and turned pale. Without a word, she picked up her son and plunged headlong up the stairs.

On the other side of the door, Alexander Brett pressed a manicured finger upon the doorbell. Ten minutes later Felicia met her husband in the Hodges' living room.

Brett felt that he had never seen his wife look so young or so pretty. The anger in his eyes changed to grudging admiration and a proud sparkle of possession. This girl was his, this slender, bronzed girl who stood before him!

He sensed an indefinable change in her; a poise that made her all the more desirable. Though he could not know, it was love that had transformed her; from the diffident young wife of an arrogant old man, she had become a glowing woman, vibrantly alive, alluring as she had never been before!

"You're a very silly little thing, aren't you?" he addressed her, masking his real feelings with a patronizing, sticky sort of voice. "Come over here and give your husband a kiss!"

Felicia looked at him contemptuously. "Alex, don't you understand yet that I'm through?" she asked levelly.

"Oh, you're through, are you? You are through here, you mean." The bantering tone had disappeared. The voice was sharp, commanding. "Felicia, you will drop this ridiculous divorce action at once and return with me to New York!"

"I will do nothing of the sort!" Felicia retorted, and faced him defiantly.

"I say you will!" His words came rapidly, with the force of blows. "You are my wife."

Felicia nodded, slowly. "I am, Alex—but I will cease to be your wife at the first possible moment." Suddenly she laughed, a clear, girlish burst of laughter. "It's so perfectly ridiculous!" she cried. "Can't you see, Alex? I'm not suited to you. I'm too young."

She retreated, frightened, before Brett's sudden advance upon her. He seized her wrists, tightened his fingers about them.

"So that's it!" he snarled, his face close to hers. "That's what you're driving at! Where were you when I called last night? At two o'clock this morning? Out with a younger man—in his arms."

"Alex, I—"

"Be still! I'm too old for you, am I?" She had said the one thing that could hurt him most, and any gentleness he might have had was consumed. "Young men!" "As though you have not had flirtations since I married you"

"You know that's a lie!" Furious, shamed by the words which poured from his lips, Felicia struck at him.

He laughed at her, pinioning her arms at her sides. "So you'd like to hit me for speaking the truth!" She was lovely in her anger, her blue eyes dilated, her lips parted. "Well, I won't divorce you!" he told her. "I don't want a scandal. You will return to my home. Have your affairs, if you must, but conduct yourself at least with discretion. I don't expect more than that from a woman like you!"

"I won't go back with you!" she cried. "I'd kill myself, first! You can't make me go. There's nothing you can do! I've talked with lawyers and I know. There's no way you can stop me. Even if you hide and refuse to be served, I can get my divorce by default. I tell you I'm through!"

Brett played his trump card. "And how about your son?" he demanded. "Have you thought of him?"

"Of course I've thought of him! He's mine! Any court in the world would give him to me!" She laughed at the thought of her boy, talking of Indians upstairs with Peg Hodge. "He needs me—he needs love and understanding and youth!"

Youth again! Brett glared at her, hatred in his eyes.

"I will never give up Alex," he snapped, "no matter what any court orders. Unless you do what I say you will never see him again! My millions can outweigh any court order you can produce! There's all Europe—all the world—to hide him in! Possession, Felicia, is nine points in law!"

Felicia, burning with shame for the accusations he had made against her, could not resist the temptation to crush this man. What if young Peg, upstairs with little Alex, had heard? What if little Alex had heard? What if little Alex himself had listened, not understanding, yet frightened by his father's tirade?

She smiled confidently.

"I've heard that," she told him. "And that is just why I went to New York and got my boy! That's where I was when you phoned—in an airplane, bringing him here. Alex is upstairs!"

As though by a signal, the sound of the boy's laughter rang out, was instantly silenced.

Brett had been angry before; now swaying before the storm of his invective, Felicia decided the man was insane. She closed her eyes, tried not to listen.

"You—you—" He paused at last, panting, searching for some word he had not already used to paint the vileness of which he accused her.

"No court in the world would award you your child!" he snarled. "No jury would find you fit! Do you expect me to believe you have no lover here?"

As though he could read her mind, he flung out the name. "Dick! Who is Dick?" he demanded. "Ann Hodge mistook me for him last night when I telephoned! There's Dick—and I suppose there's Tom and Harry as well! Oh, you may think you've been very clever, Felicia, but I tell you I know! I know and I can prove it!"

Felicia swallowed. "Alex—" she began, then choked, speechless with fear.

Through the open window came the blare of a familiar horn, the slam of an automobile door. Eager, youthful steps hurried up the walk, across the porch. Dick Stuyvesant bounded into the room.

"Gosh, Felicia, how I missed you!"

GANG GUNS

A Novel Complete In Six Days by JOSEPH GOLLOMB

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

In one of the country's largest cities the forces of law and order are being called upon by young Gene Channing to combat the gangsters and bootleggers running rampant in the approaching election. Channing, an unknown, is suddenly in the political and newspaper spotlight due to his expose of "inside" stories of official corruption. A bold attempt to assassinate Channing with a storm of machine gun bullets is frustrated and three gangsters lie dead. "Gashface" Bruzzi, leader of the underworld, enraged at this defeat, is told that Molly Bain, his woman, is suspected as the leak in the outfit.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER II.

MOLLY came into the room with a tray bearing a big silver cocktail shaker, ice and glasses. She put it on the table and waited for Bruzzi to speak. He poured out drinks for both and served her.

"Well, honey," he began, "we've been double-crossed again. Whoever is slipping inside stuff about us to Gene Channing told him a little more. And three of my mob have turned up their toes—maybe four by now. That baby Channing is making me dislike him more every minute. On Tuesday he means to parade himself to every ward and polling place. A sort of 'follow master' romp. If we don't put a crimp in that, believe me, there will be more of a turnout to follow him than the cops can handle!"

He downed a third glass angrily.

"Can't depend on the cops, anyway," he went on bitterly. "So long as they think Sam Sheedy and the commissioner are sitting pretty the cops will take orders, all right. But I know that in their guts they don't love us any too fierce. And if they think on Tuesday that Sam Sheedy's gonna be swamped by the Citizen's League I wouldn't put it past the cops to turn on us like a lot of rats. That's why I don't want that baby Channing to do his stuff on Tuesday."

He put down his glass and came over to Molly.

"C'mon, kid, help me snap out of the heebe-jeebies," he said. "I'll go you a round of 50 to see who's the better man with that new automatic I got you."

Without enthusiasm she went to a heavy over-ornate buffet and from a drawer took out an exceptionally small-sized automatic revolver and two boxes of cartridges. The revolver was so snubnosed that when her hand closed over it very little of the weapon remained visible.

Bruzzi seemed to find no occasion for comment that Molly should have so little to say to him. He led the way down to the cellar of the house and opened the door of a passage that formerly had led from the street, under the house and out to a house in the rear. Now it had been converted into a miniature shooting gallery. An electric button snapped on a light over a paper target at the far end of the passage.

Bruzzi loaded the small automatic and aimed at the target. The reports of the firing seemed diminutive compared to the sound of an ordinary revolver. But a vicious pox of lead broke out in a cluster about the white bull's-eye of the target.

A trolley arrangement brought the target to them. Bruzzi read his score.

"Not so hot!" he grumbled. "Don't show me up too much, Molly! I don't feel too stuck on myself as it is!"

Molly took up the automatic and loaded the magazine. Whatever were her thoughts they did not seem to dim the keenness of her look as she quickly raised the revolver and pumped.

A spray of lead made the paper target twitch. When she exhausted her round, Bruzzi pulled the target forward on its trolley.

"Why, you little devil!" he complained. "You don't believe in pulling your punches, do you? Not even to save my feelings. All right, baby! I'll give you a chance to show how hot you are with that bit of a gat!"

There was a change in his manner now, like that of a poker player who is ready to make his final bet.

"Molly," he said slowly, his eyes fixed on hers. "I haven't asked you to do anything for me in a long, long time, have I? Well, I will now. Channing is due to talk at the Coliseum tomorrow night at 9:30. It will be packed to the roof. And there's a door in G section on the top gallery that leads on to the roof. I'm having it all doped out careful as can be. You go to that meeting. You'll have the seat next to that roof door. When Channing comes on the platform the excitement of his hen friends will give you a chance to slip from your seat to the roof door. Channing will make an easy mark for you. You can plug him through the open door and the shot won't be heard hardly. On the roof I'll have Pete and Sam hustle you down the inside fire escape—"

"Nick, you would try to kill two birds with a stone," she said with vicious slowness. "Wouldn't it be nice to have Gene Channing smoked and at the same time have me nabbed so that you could bring that new babyface here you've been seeing so often of late—"

Furiously he made as if about to launch his fist at her face.

"Shut that trap, young lady, or I'll hang crepe on those peepers of yours!" he shouted. "If you don't want to do your bit for me, you can go to hell! I can get Pinkie Ellison or Snappy to smoke Channing tomorrow night. You're no hotter than they are. But I won't have you playing those jealousy blues again. I've got my bellyful of that phonograph record!"

Angrily he flung out of the passage and a little later she too went upstairs. In a bedroom she went warily to a telephone and with utmost caution raised the receiver so that the hook did not click.

She heard Bruzzi telephoning. He was talking guardedly. But she read minute directions in what he was saying.

When he got through telephoning she, too, hung up the receiver and, going to her room, put on her hat and coat.

Bruzzi met her as she was about to leave the house.

"Where to?" he asked acidly.

"To the drugstore to buy some lipstick and vanishing cream." she said, with a feline smile. "Want to help me shop?"

"Sure!" he said.

They walked down the street without speaking. She turned into a big drugstore and went to the cosmetic counter. Bruzzi stayed by her side, seemingly immersed in his thoughts. He scarcely looked at her as she selected lipstick and told the clerk the kind of cream she wanted. Nor was he interested apparently when Molly fished in her handbag, took out a folded five-dollar bill and gave it to the cashier in payment for the cosmetics.

The cashier, a young woman, shoved the folded bill briskly into the till, made change and turned to the next customer.

Molly and Bruzzi strolled out of the drugstore and returned to Bruzzi's home, still without talking.

But no sooner were they out of the store than the cashier opened the cash register again and quickly took out the folded money bill Molly had given her.

Folded along with the bill was a bit of paper on which a message had been hastily penciled. Guardedly the cashier took the paper inside to the prescription department. The clerk eagerly took the written message, scanned it.

Then over a telephone in an inner room he read the message to someone who answered at the other end of the wire.

In pre-prohibition times the big breweries, distilleries and warehouses on the South Side by the river had been busy enough. But they had never presented such a scene of activity as on this Sunday evening before the Tuesday of election. Motor vans, one after another, rolled up to the warehouse doors and discharged as their cargoes scores of travel-grimed men. Other similar cargoes arrived by way of river and harbor tugs, sightseeing buses and droves of private autos carrying more than capacity. A small army was already assembled indoors.

The iron shutters on these buildings were closed as a matter of precaution, but no one inside seemed really concerned whether the neighborhood knew or did not know what was going on. In squads of 20 to 40 "Gashface" Bruzzi's importations were being rehearsed in what was expected of them on election day.

In one warehouse a veritable arsenal of small arms and cartons of ammunition was being distributed. Four of the largest warehouses had been converted into temporary barracks. On walls, and on glass-top desks large charts were being studied by squad leaders and their superiors, each chart representing an election district or a ground plan of some polling place.

It looked for all the world like the general headquarters of an army about to go into battle. And in a small office, the door of which was guarded by two hard-visaged 6-footers, sat the commander-in-chief of these forces, "Gashface" Bruzzi and his chief of staff, Sig Bolger.

Toward 4 in the morning all but the chiefs were finally permitted to take their rest. Only Bruzzi and Sig remained in conference.

"Gashface" was giving Sig detailed directions, but the keen-witted Sig was frowning with the effort to understand them and retain them in his mind. At last he ventured a protest.

"Gashface" rose and went to the door.

"And a good thing for you you don't know what I'm driving at!" "Gashface" said over his shoulder. "There's only one person—beside me—who knows—or thinks she knows—what's going to happen to Gene Channing tonight at the Coliseum. Only one person knows. So, if there's any leak sprung in my plans this time, I'll know for certain just exactly who is responsible. And I'll act according. Get me?"

"I get you!" Sig said softly.

AN OBLIGING BEAUTY DOCTOR

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. D. M. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

ENTITLED: "WHAT A PRETTY PATTERN!"

The girls' basketball team of Miles Bryan High School of McKees Rocks has swept through a schedule of 10 games without defeat, and its success is attributed largely to the fine condition of the girls, who are coached in physical training by Miss Elizabeth Mahan, a graduate of Battle Creek (Mich.) Teachers' Training School. Above, the girls are shown at one of their exercises. Left to right, starting somewhere in the group, are Eleanor Byers, Elizabeth Patton, Grace Wilde, Margaret Daley, Dorothy Coveney, Elizabeth Ickes, Margaret Braidic, Anna Kolinsky, Olga Abranovic, Mamie Magnelli, Estelle Daszy and Margaret Kasarea.

A FRIENDLY WRESTLING BOUT

Here we have Elizabeth Patton and Anna Kolinsky engaged in a wrestling bout, with Margaret Braidic acting as referee. Dancing, running, jumping and handling the various gymnasium implements also are part of the training of the Miles Bryan girls. In basketball they have defeated Bellevue, Ben Avon, Imperial, Oakdale and Bridgeville twice each and they now are to clash with Munhall High for the county independent scholastic title.

NEW SYSTEM NEEDED IN ICE SPORT

Tex White

RUMORS that the so-called hockey deal whereby Tex White was transferred from the Pittsburgh team to the New York Americans, in exchange for Eddie Bouchard and Jesse Spring, was not a real trade at all but only another of those "loans" that are permitted under National League regulations, were confirmed by White himself in discussing the shift with Frank Graham, Gotham critic. "Of course, as you understand, I have just been loaned to the Americans," White is quoted, "and I suppose if I don't show anything in New York I'll have to go back at the end of the season, but I don't want to have to do that. New York is the best place I know of to play hockey, and that is where I want to show that I've got something."

The inference to be drawn from White's remarks is that he was merely "loaned" to the New York club by Pittsburgh for the purpose of strengthening the Americans and giving them a better chance to finish in first place in their group. Several other cases of "loaning" players have been reported during the season, and the practice is permitted under the league's present system of operation, but from the standpoint of clean sport the system is all wrong, and the sooner it is abolished the better it will be for the interests of professional hockey.

THE "loaning" business is contrary to the principles of real sport and savors entirely too much of syndicate conditions. Even in the early stages of the season it doesn't sound good. For instance, the Pirates got Joe Miller as a goalkeeper "loaned by the league." Imagine John Heydler having a shortstop or an outfielder to be loaned to the Cubs or Giants when they happened to need such a man.

Baseball soon would be branded as a syndicate game and would not be able to retain the public confidence and support that it enjoys at present. But baseball keeps itself free from such a taint. It prevents player transfers that might hurt any club or the sport itself by forbidding the release of any player by one major league club to another after June 15 each year except by the waiver route.

THIS is done to make it impossible for a club that is in the pennant running to gain an advantage over other contenders by purchasing or otherwise obtaining a player from a friendly club that is down in the race on June 15.

John A. Heydler

The waiver requirement prevents collusion between friendly clubs. In the first place, players on whom waivers are asked are generally not of the kind that would be valuable to a pennant contender, and in the second place, if they have any real value the teams that are up front in the race will have no chance to get them, as the clubs at the foot have first right to claim such athletes in the reverse order of their standing. That is, the eighth club has first claim, the seventh club next chance, and so on.

UNQUESTIONABLY, this is the proper system. It keeps the game above suspicion and prevents any pennant-contending club getting from a friendly source in the majors the assistance of a valuable player in the closing stages of the race. Hockey could profit by taking a leaf from baseball's book and adopting a similar rule on the transfer of players. The loaning system should not be permitted at any time. Thus far the practice has not given rise to any scandals, but it is only a question of time until it will, if continued. It is unsportsmanlike, unfair, leaves the way open for jobbery or syndicate operations, and ought to be abolished as soon as possible.

IN the same talk, White intimates that while he was playing here the right spirit did not exist on the Pittsburgh team, though at the time he was transferred to the Americans he was said by several local friends to have expressed himself as being sorry to leave this city and the Pirates.

"I'm glad the Americans picked me," Tex now says. "There's a spirit on this team that makes a fellow feel like playing at his best all the time—a spirit that was lacking in Pittsburgh. Why, I haven't had a man like Billy Burch at center on any team I've been on since I played alongside him on the Toronto Canoe Club."

EVEN a drop to the minor leagues has not cured Vic Aldridge, former Pirate pitcher, of the holdout habit. Though Aldridge himself admitted during the last world series that he realized he had been shipped to the sticks as a penalty for holding out on John McGraw, he is continuing to follow the same course he was wont to follow almost annually as a Cub, a Pirate and a Giant.

Vic Aldridge.

In other words, Aldridge is holding out again this spring. He is the property of the Newark (N. J.) club in the International League, for which he worked part of last season, but thus far he has refused to sign for 1929.

THIS in spite of the fact that the Newark club, owned by Paul Block and managed by Tris Speaker*, has offered Vic a contract that is said to be one of the fattest and most liberal on record in the minor leagues. According to reports the offer ran well into five figures, calling for a larger sum than is being drawn down by many a top-notch major league pitcher. Whether it is because he wants to dodge spring training or for some other reason is not known, but the fact remains that Aldridge has steadily refused to sign. Even a special trip made by an agent of the Newark club to Aldridge's home in Indiana a few days ago for the purpose of coaxing him into line was unsuccessful.*

AFTER considering the advisability of adopting soccer football as one of the training stunts to help the legs and the wind of the Pittsburgh baseball players this spring, Manager Donie Bush has given it up because the Pirates do not have the right equipment in the matter of shoes.

"It's a splendid idea and I'd like to try it," said Donie. "In fact, I recall that the Detroit club played some soccer on one of its training trips some years ago, and got good results. But I find that it requires a special kind of shoes and we haven't got the right type. The players cannot use their baseball shoes for that purpose, and they would break their toes if they tried to kick a soccer ball with the soft shoes that are known as 'sneaks.' So we'll have to pass it for this spring, much as I'd like to give it a trial."

Crawley Outpoints Rootman: Buff Wins

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 26.—Tommy Crawley, of Pittsburgh, outpointed Eddie Rootman, of Akron, in 10 rounds here last night.

Frankie Buff, of New Kensington, scored a knockout over Al St. John, of Cleveland, in the second round of the six-round semi-final. Buff dropped St. John twice before he was counted out. St. John substituted for K. O. Sweeney.

Allentown Gets Rapp, Former Giant

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Goldie Rapp, former New York Giant and Phillies third sacker, has signed a contract to play with the Allentown club in the Eastern League for the 1929 season.

Rapp, who started with the St. Paul club of the American Association in 1920, was bought the following year by John McGraw, of the Giants for a price said to have been $15,000. Since then he has been with the Giants, Phillies, Toledo and the Rochester clubs.

LOCAL QUINTS END HOME SCHEDULES

By JESS CARVER.

Two rings of Pittsburgh's three-ring college basketball circus will put on their final act tonight, sort of a combination showing, as Pitt and Tech bring their 1929 home schedules to a close with the staging of their third contest of the year in the Stadium Pavilion.

Capt. Gyp Wunderlich

The contest, a Big Four affair, will mark the final city appearance of Capt. Gyp Wunderlich, of the Panthers and Capt. Harvey White, of Carnegie. Both these lads are completing their final year of college ball, and after this season will be ineligible for further varsity competition. The Tartan leader has been twice captain of Tech, having led the Tartans through their disastrous no-victory campaign of 1928.

PITT HOLDS EDGE

Pitt has taken the Plaid into camp twice so far this year, winning the first game in the Pavilion by 41 to 14 and the second over at Tech, 35 to 28.

Because the game is the final one at home for the colorful Panthers, affording the boys their last chance to see Charley Hyatt in action without making a trip out of town, it is expected that the folks will lay much of the coin of the realm on the line tonight and crowding into the Pavilion at least 4,000 strong.

Geneva's Covenanters, mindful of the fact that they possess the final wrench which may be thrown into the smooth running gears of Bethany's fine machine, tackle the Conference leaders at Bethany tonight. Unless Geneva wins the Bisons are "in." If the Covenanters do stop Furman Nuss' club, it may develop that the two clubs will wind up in a tie.

Bethany stopped Geneva at Beaver Falls two weeks ago, 15 to 13, in a very close game, that was not won until the final 20 seconds of play. On that occasion, Capt. Ken Baker dribbled through the Geneva defense to sink the winning bucket, just as he did here last week to defeat the Dukes.

To get a tie with Bethany for the Conference title, provided they win tonight, the Covenanters must defeat Duquesne and Waynesburg in their remaining Conference clashes.

DUKES WIN ANOTHER

The Dukes moved out in front of the Waynesburg Yellow Jackets and into fourth place in the Conference by topping the Greene Countians at Waynesburg last night, 39 to 36.

For the third time in a row, the Dukes faltered in the second half, and it was only a heavy lead in the first 20 minutes of play that stood up and won for them the game.

Brud Stephens and Gangy Benedict were the stars of the contest, both accounting for five field goals. Stephens kept the locals out in front during the first half, as the Dukes looked like a million bucks. The score at the half was 25 to 14.

In the second half the contest degenerated into a rough and tumble affair. Waynesburg kept popping away, and by sinking the majority of their foul shots, managed to pull up to within three points of the Daviesmen as the game ended. Rosenberg, Stephens and Joe Vernon left the game for the Dukes on personal fouls. Allison, Smith and Capt. White were ejected for Waynesburg.

Duquesne—39.		Waynesburg—36.
Lohle	F	Porter
Benedict	F	Allison
Vernon	C	Ullom
Stephens	G	White
Rosenberg	G	Smith

Weissmuller Fined For Sending False Fire Alarms

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Feb. 26. (AP.)—Johnny Weissmuller, holder of world swimming records, appeared in a new role in Coral Gables Muncipal Court in his arraignment with A. S. Wolf, of Coral Gables, on charges of disorderly conduct, based on sending false fire alarms. Weissmuller drew a $10 fine and Wolf a $25 penalty.

The two were turned over to Miami authorities on a simular charge. Three false fire alarms in Coral Gables and two in Miami last Friday night were charged against them by police of the two communities.

FRIENDS HONOR M'KECHNIE

Overwhelmed by the tributes paid him at the annual dinner of Dr. Flint's Bible Class in his honor in the Mifflin Avenue M. E. Church, Wilkinsburg, last night, Bill McKechnie, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals, who will pilot the Rochester club of the International League this season, responded with a short speech in which he stressed his loyalty to his home community and appreciation of the friendship of his neighbors above any material success he may have in baseball.

Finishing his talk in a choking voice, McKechnie said:

"I appreciate what has been said and what has been done in my behalf here tonight beyond words. I'll probably lose many a job, but I'll never do anything that will bring discredit upon my town."

This was his only reference to his fate of being released as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals after winning the pennant with them last year, but it struck home and he received an ovation as he sat down.

A large gathering of men and women turned out for the affair, which was featured by a lengthy entertainment program. Lloyd C. Thomas was toastmaster. The speakers included A. K. (Rosy) Rowswell, James Balmer, Burgess J. R. Langley, Clarence Overend, graduate athletic manager of Carnegie Tech; James (Whitey) Hagan, assistant athletic director of the University of Pittsburgh; Don Saunders, publicity director of Pitt, and Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The Red Arrow and Edgar Thomson quartets sang. Percy Boyd, president of the Bible class, headed the committee in charge.

BUCS MUST PAY FOR ACT, PAUL WANER SAYS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The Pittsburgh National League Club must send Paul and Lloyd Waner contracts calling for substantial salary increases or the 1929 baseball curtain will go up on the Pirate stage without the now famous Waner Brother act. Two reasons were cited for the salary demand—"Paul and Lloyd."

Paul, voted the most valuable player in the league in 1927, was held indoors yesterday from his daily fishing trip by rain. He took time out to talk about the holdout status.

The elder Waner said that he had returned three unsigned contracts to Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh club and that the next move in the holdout game must be made by the Pirate skipper.

"I know of several good fishing places around here and it is my intention to stay here until they place the figure on my contract that I consider I am entitled to," Paul said.

Paul would not divulge how much either he or his brother received last year nor would he give the exact amount they were holding out for. Current rumors have had it that they are asking for $30,000 together.

The first contract sent both was for an increase over last year's salary, Paul explained. After the first one was returned without either's signature, Dreyfuss asked Paul to give him a reason for his demand.

Big Poison, in a letter, cited his record for the last three years. In answer to this the Buccaneer owner accused Paul of becoming egotistical, he said.

NOT EGOTISTICAL

"It does not look that way to me," Paul declared today. "The figures speak for themselves." He went on to say that the books show that in these three seasons no other National League player had a record equal to his.

"Why I can name one player whose three-year record did not equal mine and yet he drew more than twice as much money," the smiling Paul declared.

Waner explained that at the end of the 1927 season he and Lloyd went on an eight-week vaudeville tour. During those eight weeks I made more money than I did all summer playing ball."

At the close of the season we were offered another contract for 14 weeks at $14,000 each, and that was much more than we were getting for a season on the ball diamond."

Waner said that Dreyfuss had not demanded, but merely suggested that he and Lloyd not go on the stage during the winter but rough it in the open. They heeded this request, passing up $28,000, Paul said. Figures on the first baseball contract displeased them.

LIKES PITTSBURGH

"That certainly looks lop-sided. Why we could play baseball for nothing and then make money should we continue at the present salary," the outfielder said.

He said he wanted it made clear that his holding out was not a move on his part to get away from Pittsburgh.

"I'd rather play with Pittsburgh than any team I know of," he said when told of the rumor that the New York Giants had made an offer for the "Waner Act." Nothing but the most friendly relations exist between the brothers and the Pirate management, Big Poison explained.

During the talk, Paul declared he and Lloyd were in the best of shape. They have been hunting and fishing almost every day since the season closed.

Fight Thursday In Case of Rain

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26.—(INS.)—If rain tomorrow causes a postponement of the Sharkey-Stribling bout it will be held on Thursday night, according to William F. Carey, co-promoter. No decision on a postponement will be made until after 8 o'clock on the night of the bout, he said.

Tunney and Bride Leave to Tour Egypt

ROME, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion, and his bride, Polly Lauder Tunney, are going to Egypt and Tunis for a visit. They left today for Naples, where, it is understood, they will embark upon shipboard for the Levant.

SOUTH HILLS, OLIVER CLASH TODAY

South Hills and Oliver will clash in the final game of the play-off series to decide the Section Two champion of the City League in the Stadium Pavilion this afternoon.

Oliver, South Hills and Perry wound up in a three-way tie for the sectional lead. Oliver took Perry over the jumps last week, 20 to 14, and by beating South Hills today can qualify to meet Fifth Avenue for the City League title. Fifth is the defending champion.

Fifth, also leader of Section II of the W. P. I. A. L., will play its first elimination game tomorrow night, meeting the rangy and powerful Stowe Township five in the stadium. Stowe carried off the Section IX honors.

It is anticipated that each of the six Roman Catholic dioceses in this state will enter two teams in the first annual Roman Catholic scholastic tournament being sponsored by Duquesne University, which is to be held on the Bluff March 7 to 9, and which is to be directed by Elmer Layden, Duke coach.

The teams coming here from other parts of Pennsylvania are to have their expenses paid. The champion will be sent to the national Roman Catholic high school tournament in Chicago with its expenses paid.

The City Junior League championship will be decided at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Herron Hill floor when the Allderdice and South Hills junior quints clash. South Hills, Section III champ, elimated Herron Hill, Section II finalist last week, while Allderdice, Section I winner, drew a bye. The probable lineup for the senior league game:

OLIVER.		SOUTH HILLS.

Billy Barton May Race Saturday At Gatwick

TENBY, Wales, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The American steeplechaser, Billy Barton, together with some of the Hon. Aubrey Hastings' jumpers, has been doing so well exercising on the sands here that the racing jockeys came down to ride their various candidates for the Grand National.

Tom Cullinnan, who will ride Billy in the National, had him out for a good gallop along the sands and if racing is resumed this week, will ride him in the 1,000 sterling trail steeplechase at Gatwick, Saturday.

PIRATES MEET CANADIENS

Pittsburgh at Les Canadiens.
Montreal at Boston.
Ottawa at N. Y. Rangers.
Chicago at Detroit.

MONTREAL, Feb. 26.—Les Canadiens, who were stopped by Toronto Saturday night after running through 16 games without suffering defeat, will attempt to start a new winning streak tonight when they meet Pittsburgh's ice Pirates here. Their great spurt carried the Flying Frenchmen into first place in the International Group race, and they are eager to down the invaders and fortify their position at the top of the heap.

Although the Pirates are not listed among the leaders, the Canadiens have come to regard them as foemen worthy of their steel. One victory and two ties was the best that the locals could get in three previous meetings with the invaders, and the Pittsburghers can get an even break in the season series by winning tonight's concluding fray.

Interest in the Canadiens' great fight for a world title is at fever heat, and a capacity crowd is assured for their joust with Odie Cleghorn's skaters. The probable lineup:

Pirates.		Canadiens.
Miller	G	Hainsworth
McCaffrey	R.D.	Mantha
Smith	L.D.	Burke
Frederickson	C	Lepine
Darragh	R.W.	Cagne
Milks	L.W.	Joliat

Pirate spares—Drury, Lowrey, Holway, Spring, Bouchard. Canadien spares—Mondou, Morenz, Leduc, G. Mantha, Patterson.

Lefty Kendall Feted at Unity

The North Bessemer community baseball club gave a royal sendoff to William (Lefty) Kendall, its crack southpaw pitcher, who is leaving for training with the Columbus club of the American Association, in the First U. P. Church at Unity last evening. Toastmaster Elder, manager of the Bessemer club, paid many fine tributes to Kendall's skill on the diamond.

Among the speakers of the evening were the Rev. G. Yourd, Ed Kelley, Jimmy Smith, of the New Kensington Dispatch, Pete Elder, and Tom Birks, of the Sun-Telegraph. The music was furnished by the Go-Go trio.

BUSH ORDERS TWO DRILLS EACH DAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Calif., Feb. 26.—Fred Fussell, left-hand pitcher of the Pirate squad, arrived at camp this morning and was placed in good standing by the Bucco officials. Fussell spent a few days in San Francisco before heading for Paso Robles. He spent the winter in his Nebraska home.

Another surprise addition to the Bucco family was Coburn Jones, the chattering little Welshman and infielder, who made rapid strides in the national game after coming up from the semi-pros last year. Jonesy reached town this morning, and with the little pepper box in camp and a two-a-day schedule in effect, activities in the spring training work of the Pirates took a livelier turn today.

Coburn, whose home is in Denver, trooped in from New Mexico, where he has been visiting for a week or so. He asked for permission to come ahead of the other infielders and outfielders, and received a favorable reply to his request.

JONES IN CAMP

The arrival of Jonesy gives Manager Bush a complete infield which will snap into action today. Earl Sheely will be on first, Jones at second, Traynor at short and Jim Stroner at third.

Manager Bush announced last night that he would go back to the two-a-day plan beginning this morning. Donie has been duly concerned over the cold wave and with the idea of taking advantage of any warm breezes, he has ordered all hands to be ready for two sessions each day, although cold or wet weather would cancel one or both.

Sheely featured a long workout of the squad yesterday, the joust taking place in the afternoon. The breezes from the North, however, made conditions far from ideal, but every man in camp seemed to be eager for the paces.

Sheely acted like a youngster from the moment he reached the ball orchard until he was ordered off the field. Earl was all set with his first base mitt and new uniform. After limbering up for 5 or 10 minutes he rushed to his familiar position and then proceeded to take part in a peppery session which also brought out some snappy work on the part of Traynor, Stroner, Jewel Ens and Manager Bush himself. Donie and his assistant filled in at the keystone sack.

TRAIN INFIELD

The infield displays were not scheduled to begin until next Friday, or the day after the slated arrival of the second squad, but now that Jones is in camp, Bush will proceed to develop his new combination, especially the right side of the infield where Pie Traynor and Stroner will cavort.

Traynor already looks the part of a shortfielder, but the recruit on his right has to go slowly on account of his appendicitic wound. Jim, nevertheless, is able to throw freely and his action indicates that he knows a lot about third base play.

Traynor dug up a few new grass-cutters today that made the veterans gasp. A bad bound on the part of any of these balls and Pie would have looked like what Stribling should resemble after Sharkey gets through with him, if the latter two don't do a song and dance in the ring.

Sheely is supposed to be one of the greatest first sackers the game has had in the past 10 years; in his workout of today he moves about like an efficiency star, and there was a certain snap to his actions and expressions.

Jonesy will get the others worked up to a high pitch it is believed. Coburn had a big year with Bridgeport last summer and he is anxious to go higher this year; indeed he has visions of crowding somebody off the middle bag at Forbes Field.

CHING JOHNSON OUT

MONTREAL, Feb. 26. — (AP.) — Ivan (Ching) Johnson, defense of the New York Rangers, and one of the best in league, will not be able to play again this season, according to Manager Lester Patrick. He broke his ankle early in the season and it has been slow to heal.

CARDS LEAVE FOR CAMP IN SOUTH

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Five players, including Manager Billy Southworth, were in the St. Louis Cardinal's advance squad which left late yesterday to open spring training in Avon Park, Fla., tomorrow. Other batterymen are to report direct to Florida.

The party included the veteran hurlers, Grover Alexander and Clarence Mitchell, and two rookies, Carlson and Cochran. Owner Sam Breadon went along as did Secretary Lloyd, local sports writers and the two Cardinal coaches, Greasy Neale, and Gabby Street.

CUBS WORK OUT

AVALON, SANTA CATALINA ISLAND, Cal., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—The Chicago Cubs' pitchers and catchers, pepped up by a day of rest, returned to the training field to begin what promised to be an eventful week. The usual workout of pitching and batting practice was followed by Manager Joe McCarthy and it is likely that he will send the Cubs through the same kind of session today.

The second contingent of Cubs will not arrive until noon today, but McCarthy expects to have them outfitted and ready to go on the field tomorrow morning. He plans to start two workouts a day then.

Each rookie pitcher was given a turn on the mound, while the veterans were getting their batting eyes in shape. Mike Cvengros, star of the Wichita Falls club hurling staff last season but before that a major leaguer, showed mid-season form in his deliveries. Seine Hansen, Berlyn Horne, Eddie Lautenbacher and Ivan Green perfomed excellently.

McCarthy after watching the rookies perform on the mound and the veterans at bat said:

"What I want is sluggers, and these pitchers, if they can perform like this in a regular game, will set my worries at rest."

HARRIS DOES HIS STUFF

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Bucky Harris already has given the dopesters something to write about. Does he, or does he not, intend to play this season?

The question was forced into prominence by the serious manner in which the new manager of the Detroit Tigers worked out at third base in the first practice session of the season.

He spent almost the entire period scooping up sizzling ground balls around the keystone sack.

"No, I'm to manage the club," was his answer to the natural question. "But I could either play third or second base, if occasion arose." The hotel lobby legion, however, will keep a weather eye on the position held last year by the veteran Marty McManus.

DODGERS GET STARTED

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 26.—The Brooklyn Dodgers started their 1929 training season here with a two-hour workout under the direction of Max Carey and Otto Miller. Light batting practice and throwing workouts for the mound men completed the day's program. Pitchers Ehrhardt, Elliott, Clark and Moss took turns on the mound. Vance and McWeeney, holdouts, were absent.

BLACKBURNE SIGNS

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Russell (Lena) Blackburne, manager of the Chicago White Sox, reported yesterday at Comiskey Park to arrange the getaway of the Sox for their spring training camp at Dallas, Tex., Thursday. A short conference with Secretary Harry Grabiner and Blackburne went through the pre-arranged job of signing his 1929 contract. Only a small group of Sox will entrain at Chicago, the majority of the rookies and veterans reporting directly at the camp for the first workout Friday.

MAYS JOINS MATES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 26.—The last of the Giant pitchers, Carl Mays, arrived at the spring training camp here yesterday and took part in the workout of the New York club. Joe Genewich reported that his injured knee had ceased to bother him.

BARRETT SIGNS CONTRACT

BOSTON, Feb. 26.—(INS.)—Robert Barrett, outfielder purchased from the Buffalo club of the International League, signed his contract with the Red Sox today. Barrett, whose home is in Atlanta, Ga., hit for .316 last year.

YANK INFIELD IN ACTION

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 26.—(INS.)—The battle is on for the vacant post in the infield of the New York Yankees. In the world champion's first workout of the season yesterday Manager Huggins saw his proposed combination in action—Gehrig at first, Lazzeri at second, Koenig at third and Lyn Lary, the expensive rookie from Oakland, at shortstop. Robertson and Durocher, understudies for the left side of the infield, also were tried out.

JONES HUSTLES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Johnny Evers, new coach of the Braves, is delighted with the general showing and especially pleased by the spirit of Percy Jones, veteran southpaw acquired from the Cubs in the Hornsby deal. Although Jones fell heir to a considerable estate last summer, and might ordinarily be supposed to be disgruntled at a transfer to the lowly Braves, he has been one of the hardest workers at the camp.

M'MAHANS OPEN SERIES WITH GORDONS

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Two of Pittsburgh's outstanding junior basketball teams, the Lou Gordons, of the Hill district, and the Red McMahans, of the South Side, will open a three-game series for the championship at Columbus Temple tonight.

The Lou Gordons defeated the South Siders in two out of three games last winter, the final contest being played in conjunction with the Morry-Celtic battle at Duquesne University. The McMahans, however, have improved their line-up considerably and are confident they can take the measure of the Gordons this winter.

BOTH IN FINE SHAPE

Both teams are reported in excellent shape for the opening battle and judging from the interest shown by the followers of the contestants a packed hall will see the opening game.

Tomorrow night the Gordons will have an opportunity to win the A. A. U. junior championship when they meet the Flying Dutchmen, of Lawrenceville, in the final round of the tournament at the One Hundred and Seventy-Sixth Field Artillery Armory. The Gordons entered the final round by defeating the Hoo-Doo Club at Heinz House last Saturday.

Tomorrow's game will precede the Y. M. H. A.-Washington Moose contest for the first-class championship of the A. A. U. tournament and the battle between the W. U. Hoyles and the Winslow Club for the light first-class title. Y. M. H. A. won the right to meet Washington Moose by defeating Heinz House Saturday, while the Hoyles advanced by trimming the South Side Falcons.

MORRY REUNION

Professional basketball celebrities who helped win the old Central League championship as representatives of the Morry Big Five will hold a reunion a week from next Thursday night at the South Side Market House, when the Morrys clash with the Cleveland Rosies, champions of the American League, in an exhibition contest.

Morry Goldman, sponsor of this unique engagement, has completed arrangements to have all the players with the exception of Pip Koehler in uniform for the contest with the famed American Leaguers. Koehler now is working in Toledo and will not be able to come here for the game.

When the Rosies take the floor against the local favorites the Cleveland team will resemble the former New York Celtics, no less than four one-time stars of the Gotham team being regulars on the Ohio quintet. They are Joe Lapchick, Pete Barry, Dutch Dehnert and John Beckman, all prime favorites in local basketball circles.

This game is one of the most attractive ever arranged for a local floor and indications are that a capacity crowd will turn out at the South Side Market House.

Segrave Hits 180 In First Test of Speed Car

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—With thousands of spectators lining the sand dunes for 10 miles, Maj. H. O. D. Segrave stepped his Golden Arrow racing machine to 180 miles per hour in its first trial here yesterday.

So pleased was the Briton with the performance of his car that he declared he would prepare to run against the world land speed record of 207.55 miles per hour about March 7.

Take the case of Rolly Hemsley, the Ohio coal miner, who made a sensational debut with the Bucs last year. In all the strength, skill and prestige of the large band of seasoned athletes in the Pirate camp, there is none who can show anything prettier than the rhythm and general form of the lad who has been loosed by many a black diamond as he worked for his livelihood under the earth.

In the matter of style, Hemsley stands out behind the plate like a Bobby Jones of golf. He receives and throws the ball with beautiful grace and he has speed of foot that lends something to his unusual catching talents.

Burleigh Grimes is quite impressed with the showmanship qualities of Catcher Francis Hogan and Second Baseman Andy Cohen of the Giants, who enjoyed a very successful vaudeville season during the past winter.

"They knew their stuff," avers Grimes. "When the act played in Boston it was billed 'Hogan and Cohen,' and during the New York run it was 'Cohen and Hogan.'"

Remy Kremer yesterday started training for another big season of cross-word puzzle competition. The big Frenchman leads the club in this respect and he's one of the best bridge players on the team.

One of the Chicago correspondents with the Cubs at Catalina Island devotes a large part of his story of the Bruins to a plea for Lefty Grimm to hurry to camp. Things around the Bears' camp are quite dull without the incomparable Dutchman.

And there isn't much comedy in Paso Robles since Grimm, the Rabbit and Earl Smith pulled out. Try to match that threesome.

The second squad, now en route to camp, is expected to reach Paso Robles Thursday afternoon about 3 o'clock. And the Waner boys are not aboard. Perhaps it's a real hold-out party so far as the brother-act is concerned.

SHARKEY, STRIB POLISHED FOR BATTLE

By SID MERCER
International News Service.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26.—The last crash of the bally-hoo cymbals for the Battle of the Everglades is reverberating through greater Miami today and the curtain is rising on the greatest spectacle ever staged in the Magic City.

Miami Beach is crowded from Biscayne Bay on the West to the Beach on the East with an odd assortment of fight fans and even in the city across the bay, where there is said to be accommodations for 50,000 visitors, rooms are at a premium.

CROWDS ROLL IN

The most unusual pilgrimage that ever made its way into this winter play-ground is rolling in on private cars, special trains, day excursions, Rolls-Royces and flivvers and the peak of the flood tide will not be reached until tomorrow afternoon.

From as far away as Boston and New York, special trains disgorged their passengers yesterday. Today other steam caravans from Chicago, New York, New Orleans and a score of Southern cities are due.

The motorists are beginning to arrive from distant points and many of them are roaming the streets with no place to sleep. However, there are plenty of things to keep them awake and, then, there is always the sandy beach ready for a flop.

Florida's motor calvacade began steaming in here yesterday and is heading in from all directions today. The Palm Beach crowd gets in tomorrow and the West Coast specials are also due in the morning from Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, the Carolinas and Northern Florida. The Southern clans are assembling to root for Young Stribling.

ELITE TO BE PRESENT

It will be a strange sight out there under the flood lights at Flamingo Park tomorrow night. Stretching far back from the ringside will be row after row of men and women whose names adorn the social registers of New York, Boston and other Eastern cities. The sporting crowd will be mixed up in this swanky assemblage and a little further back, the home folks and the Southern clans will be banked in the amphitheatre.

It is not inconceivable that the Old Rebel yell will break loose when Stribling enters the ring, for this is the first time since the Civil War that the North and the South have met in physicial combat South of the Mason and Dixon line. The Stribling majority has been silent so far, but is showing strength and vocal tendencies today.

Many of the visitors who are living on Pullman cars are turning the night into day in the many nocturnal resorts available. The night clubs are crowded.

Sharkey and Stribling breezed through brief workouts before big crowds again yesterday. Pa Stribling announced that his boy would not appear in public today. He claims Young Stribling is holding his weight, about 184 pounds, and will take only light exercise. The pride of the South did no boxing yesterday. Sharkey entered the ring at 192½ and boxed two rounds each with Paul Hoffman and Johnny Grosso.

PAULINO LOOMS UP AGAIN AS MENACE

Sports Editor.

With the Jack Sharkey-Young Stribling heavyweight battle just a day away, let's take time out to chat about something else. Something important, if you will.

How about this fellow Paulino, for instance? Paulino Uzcudun, the Basque woodchopper, who handed K. O. Christener, the Akron rubber man, a tougher trimming the other night than Sharkey was able to dish out to the same gent a few weeks back.

Loud praises are being sung for Uzzy. Chief among them are those of Christner, who says Sharkey was soft compared with the Basque. Listen to his chant:

"I couldn't figure Paulino out. I finally decided to pull away from his crowding leads, but he followed me in and nailed me, anyhow. Call him awkward; call him anything you want. But he's the best fighter I've seen or met."

Paulino, who has been sidetracked a few times, may yet come on to spill some beans in the heavyweight scramble. A match between him and Max Schmeling would be hot stuff, or with the winner of the Sharkey-Stribling fight, which has been steamed up to such a point that even the promoter is being shot at in the dark.

Billy Brady, former manager of Jim Corbett and Jim Jeffries, has a high opinion of Paulino as a heavyweight menace.

"If the hand of time could be moved back to the days of 20 and 25-round fights," Billy said recently, "Paulino would be the heavyweight champion of the world. He's the toughest and roughest of the lot and will take everything the other fellow has and keep coming and outlast him. He is handicapped over a short route, for by the time he has managed to sap the stamina of his opponent the final gong rings and it is too late."

It's impossible to pass up the Florida fight entirely, so we'll have to swing into it, after all. It is estimated that the Madison Square Garden Corporation will net something like $25,000 out of its Sharkey-Stribling offering. This is a fine profit, considering the fact that at one time it looked like a flop to the tune of $200,000 or more. Sharp management has been necessary, however, to get the thing out in the clear. Bill Carey, vice president of the Garden, was the efficiency man who pruned down the overhead to prevent a deficit, while Jack Dempsey, the promoter, took care of the ballyhoo.

Among other items, Carey is said to have saved $20,000 in the construction of the arena by buying the lumber and hiring carpenters instead of letting the job out on contract, the lowest bid being $60,000. The place has a seating capacity of 40,000 and a gross gate of $250,000 is expected.

Sharkey is receiving a guarantee of $100,000 and training expenses, while Stribling will receive 20 per cent of the gross after the taxes have been deducted. His end figures to exceed $40,000.

Young Stribling had become a pet of Tex Rickard in the last few months before the famous promoter's death, and thereby hangs a tale. It is the story of how Stribling managed to get the Sharkey bout.

Tex had formed a very poor opinion of the Macon youth as a fighter when he was lured into seeing him perform against the veteran Marty Burke in Florida some months ago. Strib walked right out in the first round and smacked Marty on his red whiskers and they rolled him up in the canvas. It all happened so quickly that Strib didn't have a chance to look his usual terrible self and Tex was greatly impressed. He started to think things over and figured that this same Burke had held off Gene Tunney twice and had boxed with Jack Dempsey and others and concluded that Stribling must be some shucks. So he signed him for a fight with Johnny Squires in Madison Square Garden, New York, and Strib stopped the South African trial horse in two rounds. Enthused, Rickard began to lay plans for the Miami Beach thingamajig, and that's how it happened.

Since knocking out Marty Burke in one round, Stribling has knocked out 11 other foes—but here's the rub: Frankie Wine, a third-rate heavyweight from Montana, who has shown in these parts, went the limit of 10 rounds with him in the interim. And Strib's the baby who is supposed to knock out a capable ringman of the experience of the great and only (according to the gob himself) Sharkey!

$150,000 Offered Big Fight Victor To Meet Walker

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Jack Kearns last night offered the winner of the Sharkey-Stribling fracas at Miami Beach $150,000 to meet Mickey Waalker here in May.

In a wire to Paddy Harmon, head of the Chicago Stadium Corporation, staging the Loughran-Walker battle here next month, Kearns said:

"Walker is so confident of knocking Loughran out that I authorize you to offer the winner of the Sharkey-Stribling fight $150,000 to meet Walker before your club in May."

W. & J. Grads to Meet Here Next Friday

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 26.—In an athletic way, Washington and Jefferson College has all but concluded the leanest year in its entire history, but in the midst of defeat there have been developments which promise much for the future and one of the first incidents in the campaign looking to the years ahead will be the gathering in Pittsburgh next Friday night.

While arranged by the Western Pennsylvania Alumni Association, of which Charles Miller, of Pittsburgh, is president, in honor of Dr. S. S. Baker, president of Washington and Jefferson College, the gathering will have a pronounced athletic tinge.

Between 600 and 700 graduates and former students of Washington and Jefferson College are expected to attend and that President Baker will discuss phases of W. & J.'s athletic future is being accepted as certain in addition to his discussing its work from the academic viewpoint.

RODGERS PLANS HURRICANE BATTLE

Jackie Rodgers, flashy little Negro mixer, of the North Side, is going to kick over the managerial traces in his return battle with Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, which will serve as the windup of Francis Flynn's weekly show in the Moose Temple Friday night. He said so this morning.

"In my recent bouts I have been held back by instructions from my corner," Rodgers said. "I have been wanting to cut loose, as I did against Dan Bitlick at Motor Square Garden, when I almost won by a knockout in the first round, but have been constantly warned to 'be careful.' As a result, the battles have been close and I have finished on the short end. I am confident I can do better, but only if permitted to fight as I see fit, and I am serving notice here and now that I will be meeting Dunn under these conditions. I will tear at him from the first bell and keep carrying the fight to him and have no doubt as to the outcome."

PRELIMS ARRANGED

Promoter Flynn has matched Jack Unglo, of Etna, and Lee Sala, of Donora, for his semi-final and will show Bobby Burns, of Swissvale, now under the management of James (Red) Mason, in the second bout against Johnny Haggerty, of Lawrenceville, a former rival in their amateur days. Frankie Salvatore, featherweight, of New Kensington, a stablemate of Dunn, will be one of the principals in the opening bout, meeting Andy Radd, of Donora, a protege of Howard Mayberry.

Bud Taylor has injured a wrist in training and will not be able to box Eddie Shea in one of the 10-round bouts of Jim Mullen's card in Chicago tonight. Sailor Fay Kosky, of California, has been subbed for him. Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight king, meets Ignacio Fernandez in the main bout. Earl Mastro boxes Dominick Petrone and Spug Myeres tangles with Joey Medill in the other 10-rounders.

Nick Martin, of Cleveland, boxes K. O. Jackson, of Wheeling, and Larry Madge and Joe Benkart, both of Cleveland, clash in another bout featuring a show at Bucyrus, O., Friday night. Jackie Stewart, of Dubois, Pa., and Pete Mazzeo, of Cleveland, meet in a preliminary.

PORTO VS. ANGELO

Frankie Porto, of Glassport, and Young Angelo, of Swissvale, have been matched by Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, to box the second preliminary to his return battle between Dominick Proto and California Joe Gans in the Palisades Roller Rink Thursday night. Johnny Windsor, of Herron Hill, and Billy D'Jalma, of Gary, Ind., sparring partner of Gans, will box the semi-final.

SPORT COMMENT

By JAMES J. LONG

Louis Magnolia himself. "The New York rules will be in force as far as possible," he said, "though I suppose I'll go over the regulations with Dempsey and representatives of the fighters before the contest.

"But there isn't a possibility of any great difference of opinion. Boxing rules can't vary much. In fact, the more I think of the coming bout the more I believe it will be easy to handle.

Louis Magnolia

"THEREFORE, I can't see why there was such a fuss over the selection of a referee," continued Magnolia. "I don't see any possibility of trouble from the outside. I never believed half of the stories I heard about the McTigue-Stribling bout, and even if they were true the circumstances of the Miami Beach bout are certain to be different. Why, from all that I can make out, this fight will be exactly the same as any important heavyweight contest in New York. The people who will be sitting in the first 25 rows at Miami Beach will be about the same as the people who sit in the first 25 rows at Madison Square Garden. I repeat that I can't see the slightest possibilty of trouble."

MISS NORELIUS BREAKS SWIM MARK HERE

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Miss Martha Norelius, comely representative of the Women's Swimming Association of New York and holder of enough Olympic and world aquatic records to make a statistician dizzy, happily hummed a little ditty as the elevator dropped her from the sixth to the second floor at the Keystone Athletic Club last night. And marvelous mermaid Martha had occasion for humming, for some 30 minutes earlier she had formally opened the beautiful new pool of the Keystone A. C. by negotiating the 300-yard free style in 3 minutes 44 1-5 seconds, clipping four-fifths of a second from the world record time established by Miss Gertrude Ederle, of English Channel fame.

A capacity crowd, which overflowed into the corridors, cheered lustily as Miss Norelius splashed to a new world mark, and she was given a great ovation when her time was announced.

OTHER RECORDS STAND

Miss Lisa Lindstron and Miss Eleanor Holm, other members of the Women's Swimming Association of New York and holders of the world backstroke and national breaststroke records, respectively, helped Miss Norelius to make the Keystone A. C.'s inaugural swim a gala event. In a 100-yard backstroke exhibition, Miss Lindstrom fell somewhat short of her record, the timers catching her at 2:02, and Miss Holm, trying to better the world record of 1:59 4-5 in the 150-yard medley, had to be satisfied with 2:01 1-5.

Teaming up in an effort to break their own world record of 1:43 1-5 in the 150-yard medley relay, the Women's Swimming Association stars gave a great exhibition only to have the timers disagree at the finish. One watch read 1:44 3-5, but the official timepiece showed 1:48 3-5, and 1:48 3-5 was the time announced. A three-oared tandem novelty swim concluded the exhibition by the internationally famous mermaids, who are to compete in the women's national titular meet in Chicago tomorrow.

Keystone A. C., P. A. A., Pitt, Homestead Carnegie Library and Kiski swimmers also contributed much to the evening's entertainment. The finishes were exceptionally close in the "varsity" events, and the Kiski natators gave the Pitt Freshmen a real debate.

FANCY DIVING ENJOYED

A splendid exhibition of fancy diving by Miss Kucera, A. M. A. junior champion, and Miss Rose, of the P. A. A., and Miss Engroff, of the Keystone A. C., was well received, as were the 50-yard backstroke exhibition by Miss Mitchell and Miss Erdle, of the Keystone A. C., 50-yard free style exhibition by Miss Geiger and Miss Ralstone, of the Keystone A. C., and 50-yard tube race by Miss Geiger, Miss Weller and Miss Caton, also of the Keystone Club.

Harry Hainsworth, Keystone A. C. athletic director, conducted the meet in faultless manner and deserves much credit for its unqualified success. The officials were: W. S. Haddock, referee; J. T. Taylor, starter; Al McCabe, clerk of course; Simendinger, Davis, Bloom, Bright and Mooney, timers; Romig, McCal, Caspar Garrett and Allen judges. The summary of the men's competitive events:

200-yard free style relay—Won by P. A. A. (LeFevre, Crannon, Beacon, Wright); Pitt second; Carnegie Library, third. Time, 1:44 4-5.

150-yard medley relay—Won by P. A. A. (Stanton, Beacon, Wright); Pitt, second; Carnegie Library, third. Time, 1:28 2-5.

100-yard free style relay for Keystone A. C. boys—Won by Sharks (Stotler, Moore, Ralston, Ralston); Minnors (Reynolds, Provost, Williams, Reynolds), second; Whales (Gloeckler, Wick, Reniers, Febler), third. Time, 1:17.

200-yard free style relay—Won by Kiski; Pitt Freshmen, second. Time, 1:51 1-10.

Why Big Men Are Accused of Snobbishness; the Facts.

By B. C. FORBES

"I AM the master of my fate" is in a very real sense true; but that doesn't mean that we are never the servants of circumstances. Many a person writes or says to me, "Big men are all snobs. I have tried to see some of them but they have turned me down. I would never act like that if I were in their place."

Perhaps a plain statement of facts may help to remove or reduce misunderstanding and bitterness on this score.

PRESIDENT WILSON, President Harding and President Coolidge all started out with the idea of keeping a wider open door than any predecessor. They intended to be especially available to representatives of the public in the form of newspapermen.

But each one in turn discovered that he could not always be the master of his circumstances and that, in order to be able to cope with the pressure of duties, only a limited amount of time could be given up to seeing visitors. Doubtless not one person in a hundred who desires to see the president of the United States is able to do so.

Yet, few sensible persons would dream of accusing the Chief Executive of the United States of being snobbish because of inability to give an audience to all and sundry.

NOW, the great majority of conspicuous men of affairs carry very heavy burdens. Their time is taken up from morning till night. Most of them have every working hour scheduled in advance. Each day brings its plethora of duties, and these duties can be discharged properly only by devoting adequate time and attention to them.

True, numbers of big men organize their functioning so that they program more or less unfilled time almost daily in order to be accessible to any unscheduled visitors on missions of great moment. Thus this is the exception rather than the rule.

NEW YORK financial and business leaders are often called cold, stand-offish, snobbish, by out-of-town visitors who have little or no difficulty when at home in seeing even the most prominent of local citizens. But this should be understood: New York receives, it is estimated, upwards of a quarter-of-million out-of-town folks every day. Everybody who is anybody visits New York either at long intervals or at short intervals. Thousands and thousands of them may have met some prominent New York man of affairs in their home town or elsewhere. On the strength of that they feel entitled to be cordially welcomed when they make a pilgrimage to New York.

But the chances are that the New Yorker, especially if he be a man of unusual importance, has met a very large number of people all over the country and that far more of them than he could possibly receive or entertain have tried to break in upon him during his busy, working hours. If he were to try to give up time to any and all callers, he would not have enough time left to do his daily job.

Therefore, often against his inclinations, he has to deny himself the indulgence in a pleasant chat, or the pleasure of what would be an agreeable luncheon, simply because there are not enough hours in the day for such congenialities and for efficiently discharging inescapable duties.

THE truth is that those who complain would find themselves obliged to act similarly were they to attain a position of conspicuous prominence carrying with it many and heavy responsibilities. They might start off exactly as did our recent presidents, determined to keep open house; but they would inevitably have to alter their tactics or become content to play a minor role in the throbbing world of affairs.

I recall one ambitious, bright young man who was very bitter because several influential men seemed always to have plenty of time to spend with his boss, but little time for him. Some day, he vowed, he would "get even" with them and their like. It so happened that he did climb to a position of unusual importance. And he discovered that doors were more freely opened to him.

But he also discovered the real reason. Because of his changed position he had more in common with others highly placed and had legitimate occasion to see and talk with them. The final upshot was that he himself became even more than ordinarily aloof in his attitude towards those not in his own sphere.

THIS is not a defense of anything remotely savoring of snobbishness. But it may enable some to get a clearer understanding of actualities and thus enable them to become more just in their judgments.

P. R. R. Earnings Expand.

The full income account of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for 1928 shows that the net income for the year exceeded the figures of any previous 12 months and marked the third successive year in which a new high record was made.

The net income was $82,507,613, an increase of $14,347,317 over 1927. It was equivalent to 14.69 per cent on the $561,673,950 outstanding capital stock (par value $50) and the 7 per cent dividend was earned more than twice over. In 1927 the percentage of net income to outstanding capital stock was 13.65, and in 1926 it was 13.53. Dividends paid during 1928 amounted to $38,171,621, of which $4,634,802 was applied to sinking and other reserve funds, and $750,216 to advances and construction expenditures upon leased and affiliated lines. The remainder of the net income, $38,950,928, was transferred to profit and loss, bringing the total of the general profit and loss account, as of December 31, 1928, to $185,316,573. The gross railway operating revenues for 1928, amounting to $650,567,316, showed a decrease from the previous year of $14,283,707, more than half of this being accounted for by a decrease of $9,630,921 in passenger revenues. Freight revenues decreased $4,317,759.

Tire Outlook Improving.

Due to the more stable conditions prevailing in the crude rubber market during the past few months the outlook for the rubber manufacturing and automobile manufacturing companies is considerably improved compared with a year ago, The Brookmire Economic Service, Inc., states in its current review of business conditions. In a compilation of earnings of various industrial companies it is shown that these companies, while not operating at a loss, reported smaller earnings than in 1927, while most industrial companies reported large gains. Manufacturers of rubber goods, it is expected, especially tires, are in a year of tremendous consumption and with reasonably stable prices for crude rubber should be able to report improved earnings during 1929.

Texas Opens New Field.

The Texas Company has opened a new oil field in Southern Louisiana through completion of its Botany Bay, Fee No. 1 well on the Port Barre dome, Saint Landry Parish, making 500 barrels of 22 gravity pipe line oil at 3,763 feet. This is the first test of the dome which was discovered two years ago by the Gulf Oil Corporation through the use of a seismograph and is the fifth salt dome to be proven productive within the last two years. There are around 30 other similarly found domes not yet producing, but being drilled on. Texas Company controls nine of these domes and has large holdings on two others. Other companies with acreage on the Port Barre dome include Gulf Oil and the Pure Oil Company.

World Rubber Requirements.

World requirements of rubber this year are estimated by the Bankers' Trust Company of New York at 737,000 tons. This compares with 638,000 tons last year. The United States is expected to take 465,000 tons, or 63.9 per cent for the 1929 total. Last year the United States took 407,852 tons. Tire shipments in 1928, based on data compiled by the Rubber Association of America, Inc., are estimated to have totaled 70,293,174, compared with 60,753,026 in 1927, an increase of 15.7 per cent. Inventories December 31 were 12,962,395, an increase of 32 per cent over the 9,820,316 carried into 1928.

Northern Pacific Budget.

The Northern Pacific will spend $46,500,000 for construction, maintenance, improvement and new equipment in 1929. Contemplated work will be on lines between the Great Lakes and Pacific coast. About 125 miles of railway will be replaced with 100 and 130-pound rails where lighter rails are now in use. It will result in the laying of heavier rails on 976 miles in six years.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Drift Lower

Airbrake Strong in N. Y.

STOCKS DRIFT DOWN AFTER ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—High money rates again cast a shadow over today's stock market, and prices drifted lower after an opening outburst of strength. Special buying operations took place in the coppers, oils, and a few specialties, but the general list was under pressure of realizing and short selling. Trading was only moderate in volume.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent and then advanced to 9, with some bankers predicting a 10 per cent rae before the end of the week. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm. Wall Street heard that the Philadelphia and some of the other Federal Reserve banks outside of New York were using stronger language than that contained in the recent admonition of the Federal Reserve Board that the volume of speculative credit must be curtailed.

Coppers rallied briskly on a further advance in the price of export copper, which is likely to be followed by another rise in the domestic price. Anaconda and Chile moved into new high ground, and Calumet and Arizona, Greene Cananea, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, Granby and Miami sold 2 to 4 points higher. Andes was placed on a regular $3 annual dividend basis.

Merger gossip stimulated the demand for the amusement shares. Motion Pictures rallied 4½ points to a new high at 27½. Loews was marked up 4 points and Fox and Warner Brothers advanced a point or so. A brisk demand also developed for some of the low and medium priced oil shares under the leadership of Mexican Seaboard.

U. S. Steel common turned reactionary after an early period of strength, declining from 190⅞ to around 187. Rumors were circulating around Wall Street that the proposed refunding plan would be delayed because of a "leak" in the plans. William C. Durant, one of Wall Street's largest operators, is reported to have sponsored the recent move in the stock.

American Woolen preferred, which was heavily bought a couple of months ago in the belief that the woolen industry had definitely "turned the corner," sank to a new 1929 low at 47¼. Johns Manville, Collins and Aikman, Crosley Radio, American and Foreign Power, National Cash Register, Union Carbide, General Electric, Electric Auto Lite and Interstate Department Stores, all of which have shown indications of pool operations in recent weeks, fell back 3 points or more.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Cotton opened very steady today at an advance of 1 to 11 points on continuation of yesterday's buying movement which was stimulated by relatively firm Liverpool cables and further covering by March shorts.

The advance met considerable realizing. Circulation of March notices caused considerable near month liquidation but offerings were absorbed on slight setbacks. The more active positions were 10 to 19 points net higher at the end of the first half hour. March sold around 20.48c; May, 20.40c, and the new October contract at 19.82c.

Early estimates of the March notices were indefinite, but they were believed to be in excess of 40,000 bales. Some thought practically the entire stock of a little over 70,000 bales had been tendered.

The early advance extended to 20.50c for May and 19.85c for the new October contracts, or 13 to 19 points above yesterday's closing quotations on the more active months. The demand, which had been very active earlier and included considerable trade buying to fix prices in March and May, tapered off somewhat during the middle of the morning, while the advance attracted a good deal of realizing. This caused reactions of several points and the market was rather quieter at midday, but prices held steady at net advances of about 5 to 10 points. Later estimates placed the notices at between 40,000 and 45,000 bales.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Continued selling of utilities and the advance in call money rate to 9 per cent again today imparted a decidedly heavy tone to the early curb market. Losses ranged from 2 to 7 points, while gains were small and confined mostly to issues in which there has been some special news development recently.

American Light & Traction led the decline in the utilities with a 7-point drop. Electric Bond & Share sold down 4 points, while American Foreign Power warrants after an advance of more than a point to 91 dropped back to 86½. American Super Power "A" was the individual strong performer, rising 4 points.

The motors were heavy, Auburn falling a point, Durant 2 and Ford of Canada 5. Goldman Sacks Trading ranged from 110½ to 109½, while Tubize rallied from an early decline, an increase in the prices of its fabrics.

Phelps Dodge broke 7 points at midday to 304, while Neumont advanced more than 3 points and Noranda made a fractional gain.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

LaFollette Leaders Vindicated of Crime

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Progressive Republican leaders, including three of the state's principal officers, were vindicated when Superior Judge S. B. Schein refused yesterday to order criminal proceedings be started against them for alleged violation of the corrupt practices act.

Arthur R. Barry, Milwaukee, special prosecutor, had recommended criminal action against Lieut. Gov. Henry L. Huber, Attorney General John W. Reynolds, Secretary of States Theodore Danman and others. Judge Schein also exonerated United States Senator Robert M. La Follette.

ARMSTRONG CORK GAINS IN NARROW MARKET HERE

Prices displayed a moderate upward tendency on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange in the early session today, but changes were generally fractional and a few issues showed minor losses as compared with the previous close.

Armstrong Cork was active and was in good demand. Several hundred shares changed hands in the forenoon dealings with the stock rising slowly in response to the increased buying activity. The company's earnings statement, expected in about two weeks, is expected to show a fair rate of profit despite the highly competitive conditions in its field, and outlook for the current year is said to be considerably brighter. In February Armstrong offered additional properties which holders on the basis of one new share at 40 for each 14 shares held, the proceeds to be used in the acquisition of additional properties which will fit in with the company's present organization. The "rights" appeared in the market today for the first time, selling around 1¼. Rights accrue to stockholders of record March 9 and will expire April 1.

Arkansas Gas common was firm again today and showed a fractional gain over yesterday's final. The company announced plans for an enlargement of the share capital by 4,000,000 shares of no-par, nonvoting stock. Disposition of this additional stock was not stated but the Street expects it will be offered to present shareholders.

Miscellaneous manufacturing issues were steady and only slightly changed. Central Ohio Steel Products dropped back to 26 on an odd-lot sale. This is slightly below the price at which the company offered new stock to the shareholders in connection with its plans to retire the preferred stock.

Westinghouse Airbrake enjoyed a sharp run-up in the New York market, but was dull here. Buying of Airbrake was attributed to many factors, chief among which was the improvement noted in railroad equipment buying. Distribution of the company's brake for automobiles is also indicated by the high rate of output in the automotive industry. Allegheny Steel jumped 2½ points today to 65, comparing with yesterday's close at 62½ and a final of 60 for last week.

Keeping the World in its Place

WHAT has become of the "boundless prairie," the great wide spaces of the West, the scenes of our pioneering forefathers' conquests? The prairie is no longer "boundless." It has been divided into great farms, and the farms have been divided into fields. Fences have taken the place of hedges and ditches. Fences say to the cattle: "You must stay out of the corn." And to the hogs: "You must keep to your wallow." And to horses, chickens, sheep, and even humans: "You must stay in your place." Thus civilization establishes order.

Many of the fences on farms throughout the country were made by the Pittsburgh Steel Company. From a small start at the beginning of the century, the Pittsburgh Steel Company has grown to be the country's largest independent steel wire manufacturer. The Company's advertising of steel wire fences is familiar to many readers of national magazines.

The world needs more fences—in cities as well as on farms—fences that mean safety for romping children—fences that mean better gardens and protected lawns—fences that avert unneighborly disputes. The Pittsburgh Steel Company, in promoting the use of "friendly fences," may, not inaptly, be called an "ambassador of good will."

RESERVE BOARD FAILS TO CHECK SPECULATION

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

DID the Federal Reserve Board start off on the wrong foot when it first wished to put a check to speculation and the growth of brokers' loans? Some of the men who hold the financial reins of leading corporations and a few bankers think so.

The first dose given to cure the "orgy of speculation" was an increase in the Federal Reserve Bank discount rate. During 1928 the rate was advanced from 3½ per cent to the present level of 5 per cent.

AS WAS expected, this increased the cost of call money. But contrary to expectations, it did not slow down speculation. It did not stop the increase in brokerage loans.

In believing the high call money rates would discourage speculation, one point apparently was missed. People were willing to pay 7 per cent, 8 per cent or more for call money when they had a market as active as it has been for most of the past year.

Under such conditions money literally rolled in to finance stock market activity. In the past it had been the custom of most large corporations to invest their surplus funds in bonds, usually in United States government securities. The principal was safe when used in this way but the return was small.

BUT call loans offer fully as much safety. In addition to this, under the abnormal conditions prevailing recently they have made possible a return far in excess of that available in government securities.

The corporation treasurer or comptroller, in whose hands the placing of surplus cash rests, would be neglecting the interests of his stockholders to miss such an opportunity. This accounts for the continuous increase in the "loans for others" shown in the reports of brokers' loans made public by the member banks of the federal reserve system.

The magnet of high call money rates went even farther. It attracted surplus money from abroad. The action taken by the federal reserve to put the brakes on speculation merely helped to attract more money to Wall street. It did not stop the growth of brokers' loans or the eagerness to speculate. The fact that no further increases in the rediscount rate have been made is taken by many to indicate that at least some of the members of the Federal Reserve Board have decided that some other remedy will have to be used.

THE net result of the campaign so far is that money costs more for legitimate business purposes than a year ago. The remarkably fine liquid position of most of the large industries has prevented this from seriously harming business so far.

The same students of the money market who believe that the Federal Reserve Banks erred in raising the rediscount rates, say that there is one sure way to chase industry's surplus money out of the call loan market and back into government securities. A lower rediscount rate, which would result in lower call money, would soon make the present practice unprofitable. If that should take place it would not be long before these same wide awake financial executives would have their money back in gilt edge securities in safe deposit boxes.

ONE thing the recent warning of the Federal Reserve Board seems likely to do is to compel many banks to sell their holdings of government securities in order to pay off their notes at the federal reserve banks. This will free the banks of the criticism leveled against them in the warning.

Such action by banks, coupled with the sale of government securities already accomplished by large corporations, is likely to make the market for the securities of the United States government rather poor. It will mean that the government will have to pay a high price for future financing.

This condition may account for the disagreement which is said to exist between Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon and the Federal Reserve Board.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Feb. 26. — Reports of improved crop conditions for domestic winter wheat tended to ease wheat values down early today. A steadying influence here however, was the fact that the Liverpool market failed to reflect yesterday's wheat price declines in North America. Opening ⅛ to ⅝ off, Chicago wheat afterward underwent some further setback. Corn and oats were relatively firm, with corn starting unchanged to ⅝ up and later holding near to the initial figures. Provisions inclined downward.

Beneficial effects of more ample moisture supply and of mild temperatures received particular attention from wheat traders much of the time today as an important bearish factor. Motives for selling were also found in current advices which laid emphasis on the magnitude of world stocks of wheat at present in sight, especially the amount of unsold wheat now afloat for Europe. Moreover, Liverpool reports said Canadian offers of wheat were cheaper, and were again in competition with wheat from Argentina, causing lowering of prices all round.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Steel, Coppers Strong.

The market wrestled with its fears of an adverse money market development but buying power was so strong and public interest had again become so intense that an early reactionary period was smothered out and stocks started forward again with more vigor than ever. Steel common remained the spearhead of the movement, but the big leader was aided substantially by the copper stocks which rushed forward under the stimulus of renewed large scale buying of the metal. Yesterday's advance to 18¼ cents in the price of domestic delivery copper was expected to be followed today or tomorrow by another raise to 18½. While the steels and copper were the prominent issues, there were numerous strong spots throughout the specialty division and gains of from two to five points were noted in many of the speculative favorites. Call money was firm on the opening at 8 per cent, and later went to 9, but the Street refused to be stampeded into a selling movement. Considerable encouragement as to the future of money was taken from the unofficial reports from Washington that financial authorities there were confident of lower rates within 10 days or so, when official announcement of the Treasury's terms for its March 15 financing will be made. There was some difference of opinion as to the possibility of marketing a new issue at a 4 per cent yield, but it was considered likely that there may be material easement in the situation after the month-end requirements, responsible for the present money flurry, are out of the way. Over $40,000,000 was withdrawn from the demand money market today.

Anaconda Copper.

H. S. Edwards & Co. in their weekly market letter say: "While it is true that Anaconda stock has enjoyed a remarkable appreciation in market price over the past 12 months, this advance appears to have been quite justified by the pronounced improvement in the affairs of the company, which has been reflected in successive dividend increases until the stock is now on a $7 annual dividend basis. A special meeting of stockholders has been called for March 14 to consider the proposal to increase the capital stock from 6,000,000 shares to 12,000,000 shares ($50 par.) Such an increase would place the company in a position to finance any further expansion which the management may have in mind. There have been persistent reports that offers to stockholders of Andes Copper and Greene Cananea would be made shortly and announcement has just been made that a new subsidiary has been formed to acquire the rod and wire mills of Anaconda and American Brass. This step will afford a greater outlet for the enormous copper production of the company and its affiliations."

United States Steel.

It is probable that barring an eleventh hour hitch, an announcement will be made after the meetings of the finance committee and board of directors of U. S. Steel Corporation, this afternoon, which will be looked upon as the first step in plans of the management for revamping of the capital structure. It is expected to call for retirement of bonds. The Corporation has been able to purchase more than sinking fund requirements of its 10-60-year 5s in the past 12 months and it is possible this excess amount will be redeemed on the usual annual date for such action May 1. Part of the old "Carnegie" bonds, which are known as the 50-year 5s, also may be retired. These bonds are callable at 115 and interest and the Corporation has been a buyer of this issue also. The series B, D and F of this bond issue are not redeemable, but in the course of the past few years, it is altogether probable that the Corporation was able to buy up some of these series also, which could be thus retired. Later some other action may be taken for securing the necessary additional funds to take care of other bond issues. This may be in the nature of rights to subscribe for additional stock to common stockholders, but no immediate announcement in this connection is anticipated.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Strength in the United States Steel bonds on reports directors today would order their redemption featured the early trading in the steadier bond market. The sinking fund 5s of Steel Corporation, redeemable at 110, advanced a point to 108½ and accounted for the bulk of the early dealings.

Tradig in the general list was on a small scale and restricted to a sprinkling of speculative issues.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows. 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

SKINNY WOMAN WAS ASHAMED

Says World's Tonic Proved Just What She Needed

"Last fall I got so skinny I was ashamed of myself. No matter what I did it seemed I could find no food that did me any good. I kept on losing weight until everyone around me was alarmed by my appearance," said Mrs. Minnie Frye, of Barr Slope, Pa., to the World's Tonic man at her home. "I had all kinds of trouble with my stomach. After eating it felt like I had swallowed a lump of lead, and I belched and belched. I had severe pains on the top of my head, so that sometimes I had a feeling like something hot was laid on the top of my head, and if I sat down for a little while my legs went to sleep, so that I had to be careful when I got up that I did not fall over. I was so nervous that when the children made a sudden noise about the house I would clap my hands over my ears and scream.

"Of course, I could not sleep well, and I became so wretched that it was the hardest kind of work for me to get the meals for my family. I got irritable and cross, until my two children were actually afraid of their mother. Nothing I took for these troubles seemed to do me any good. Nearly every night I used some strong physic, but I had to take bigger and bigger doses until I was afraid to take enough to do me any good.

"I read of the case of a woman in Ohio who had been relieved of trouble like mine by taking World's Tonic, and like most sick people I was willing to try anything once. The third night after I had begun taking World's Tonic I slept better than I had in months. Inside of a week my bowels were working as they should. In two weeks my belching had all stopped. In another two weeks I began to gain weight. I have no pain; I am getting more flesh; I have a lot of real energy to do my work. If anybody had told me I could improve so rapidly I would not have believed it. But World's Tonic proved to be just what I needed, and several of my friends who have used it on my recommendation are just as enthusiastic about it as I am." World's Tonic can be obtained of all Dow Stores (formerly McCulloch), or any other first class drug store. (A-61)

BUGS BAER Says

THE CAPTAINS AND THE KINGS DEPART

FOR many years we have been trying to construct the conversation between two presidents as they scamper up Pennsylvania avenue in the inaugural parade.

“Bugs” Baer

We would not only like to know what the boys talk about, but also, who starts the argument.

“Nice day, Grover.”

“It is for you Zachary.”

“Don't sit so close. They will think we're necking.”

“Why bring that up?”

“By the way, how about the keys to the cellar?”

“Ho. s the food in the White House?”

“Don't know. I lost my appetite last November.”

“By the way, where's the official veto?”

“Listen, Zach, this job of President is the same as a crossing watchman. If you're smart, you will wave the flag and then get off the tracks and let the train go by.”

“I did too until I met a Senator.”

“What are you going to do now that you are out?”

“About the same as Cinderella when her glass slippers cracked.”

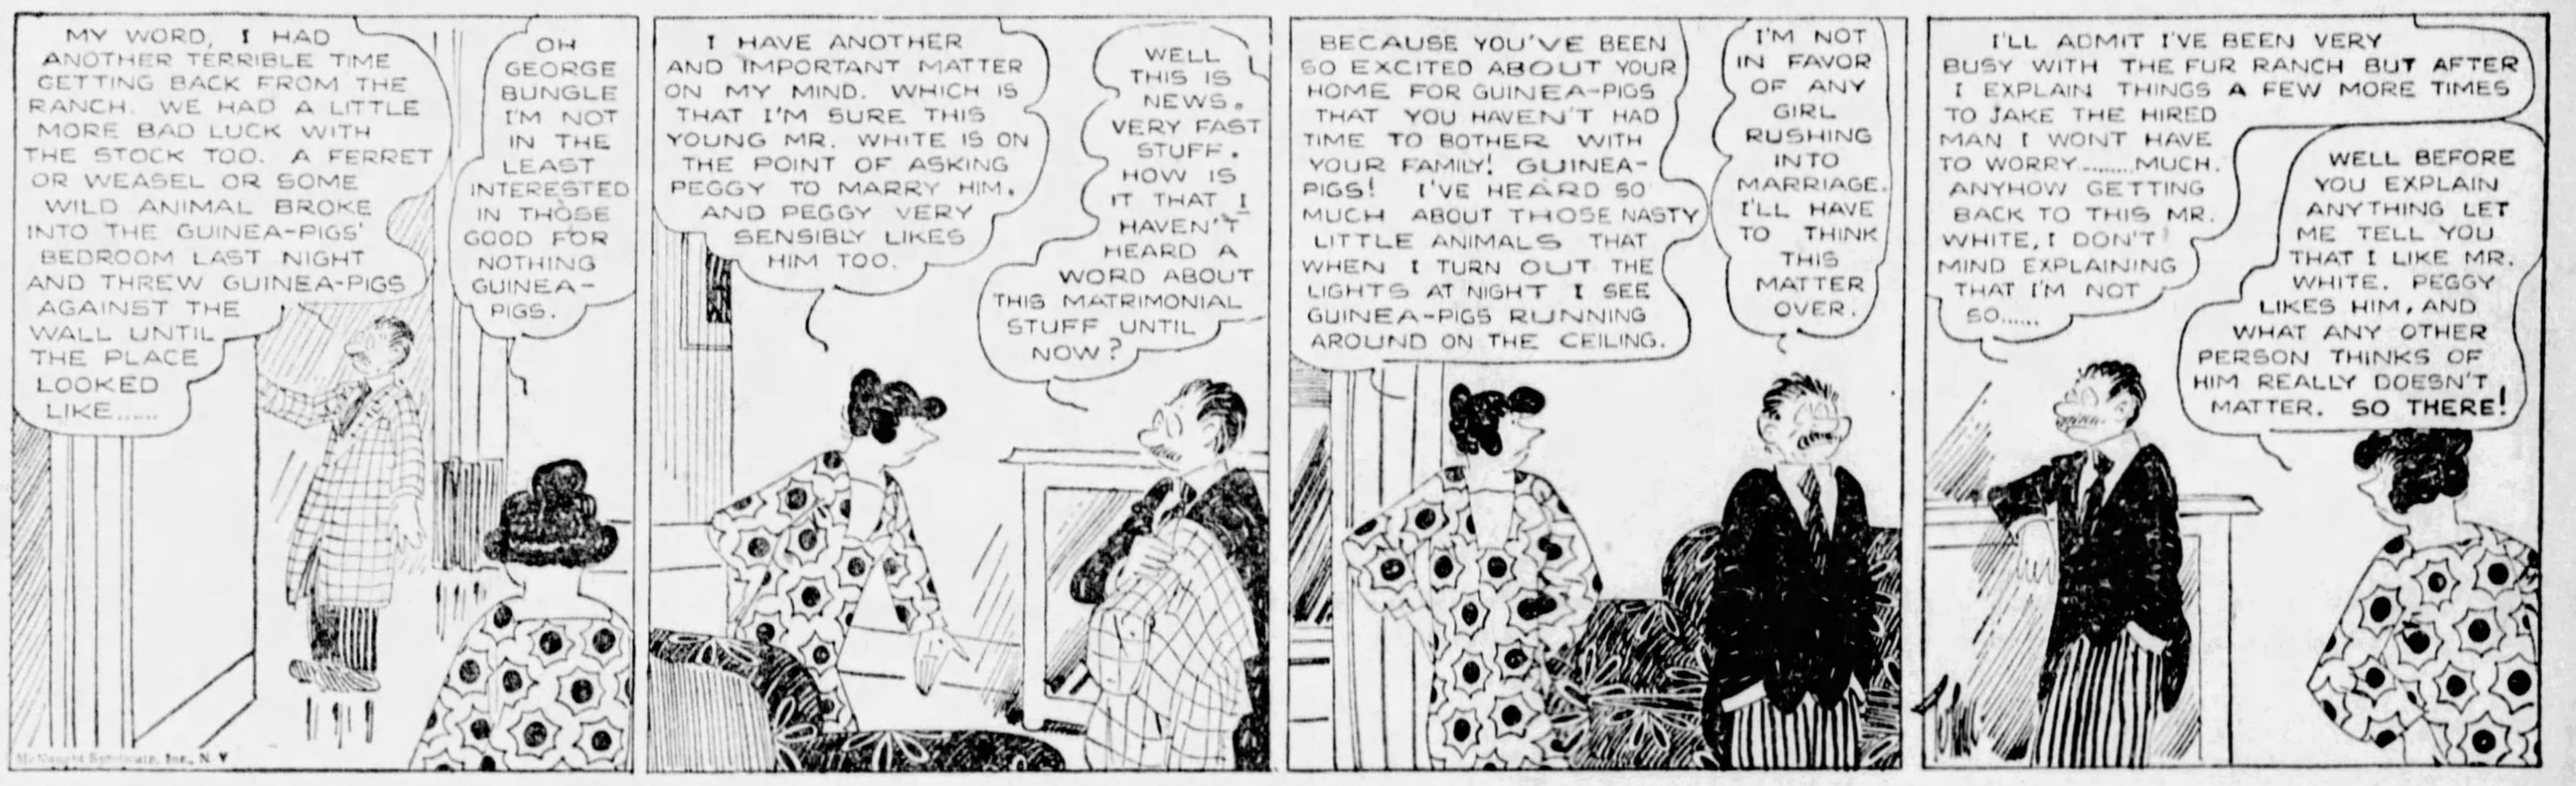
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

All Settled



MY WORD, I HAD ANOTHER TERRIBLE TIME GETTING BACK FROM THE RANCH. WE HAD A LITTLE MORE BAD LUCK WITH THE STOCK TOO. A FERRET OR WEASEL OR SOME WILD ANIMAL BROKE INTO THE GUINEA-PIGS' BEDROOM LAST NIGHT AND THREW GUINEA-PIGS AGAINST THE WALL UNTIL THE PLACE LOOKED LIKE......
OH GEORGE BUNGLE I'M NOT IN THE LEAST INTERESTED IN THOSE GOOD FOR NOTHING GUINEA-PIGS.
I HAVE ANOTHER AND IMPORTANT MATTER ON MY MIND. WHICH IS THAT I'M SURE THIS YOUNG MR. WHITE IS ON THE POINT OF ASKING PEGGY TO MARRY HIM, AND PEGGY VERY SENSIBLY LIKES HIM TOO.
WELL THIS IS NEWS. VERY FAST STUFF. HOW IS IT THAT I HAVEN'T HEARD A WORD ABOUT THIS MATRIMONIAL STUFF UNTIL NOW?
BECAUSE YOU'VE BEEN SO EXCITED ABOUT YOUR HOME FOR GUINEA-PIGS THAT YOU HAVEN'T HAD TIME TO BOTHER WITH YOUR FAMILY! GUINEA-PIGS! I'VE HEARD SO MUCH ABOUT THOSE NASTY LITTLE ANIMALS THAT WHEN I TURN OUT THE LIGHTS AT NIGHT I SEE GUINEA-PIGS RUNNING AROUND ON THE CEILING.
I'M NOT IN FAVOR OF ANY GIRL RUSHING INTO MARRIAGE. I'LL HAVE TO THINK THIS MATTER OVER.
I'LL ADMIT I'VE BEEN VERY BUSY WITH THE FUR RANCH BUT AFTER I EXPLAIN THINGS A FEW MORE TIMES TO JAKE THE HIRED MAN I WONT HAVE TO WORRY........MUCH. ANYHOW GETTING BACK TO THIS MR. WHITE, I DON'T MIND EXPLAINING THAT I'M NOT SO......
WELL BEFORE YOU EXPLAIN ANYTHING LET ME TELL YOU THAT I LIKE MR. WHITE. PEGGY LIKES HIM, AND WHAT ANY OTHER PERSON THINKS OF HIM REALLY DOESN'T MATTER. SO THERE!

Get Solidly Behind This Smashing Campaign!

FOR some time we have been making a quiet survey of the irritating noises that make modern metropolitan life almost unbearable. The above map shows the alarming condition, as compared to a year ago. It is an established fact that the nation, as a whole, is on edge—and unless something is done this country will be a nervous wreck. Therefore, we have decided to promote Stop-That-Noise-Week! This seems to be the only practical solution. And there is no time like the present for a start. Let everyone do his or her part to put over Stop-That-Noise-Week with a bang!

Clergyman Urges Flock To Ask Blue Law Change

Many persons having sturdy religious principles will agree with the Rev. Frank Edwin Smith, associate pastor of the First Unitarian Church, who, in a sermon delivered Sunday, urged members of the congregation to write to their representatives in Harrisburg requesting them to support legislation for the modification of the blue law of 1794.

He based his sermon on the text, "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." His conclusion that the blue law is out of date was based on the fact that it is an heirloom from Old Testament times which does not apply to the present day. He cited New Testament incidents to show that the Founder of Christianity frequently was in disagreement with those who made use of the old law to hinder Him in His work.

Hundreds of good Christians see nothing incompatible with the performance of their religious duties in having a law that will permit harmless recreation and amusement on Sunday. Many who would not indulge in any kind of pastime on Sunday can see nothing wrong in others, who favor Sunday recreation, comporting themselves, each in accordance with the dictates of his conscience. These good Christians can see the injustice of making modern people adjust their lives in conformity with the views of law-makers of the eighteenth cen-[illegible]y, who probably would be amazed to learn that some of [illegible]e not progressed sufficiently to desire a law that would [illegible] demands of our own times.

[illegible]istians who take a fair-minded view of the Sunday [illegible]ow that changing it to suit demands of present day life [illegible]ould not compel them to change their observance of Sunday in any way or interfere in the slightest with their religious rights. They see, on the other hand, that the law of 1794 unjustly compels many people to refrain from decent things they would like to do on Sunday, things which endanger the morals of nobody and especially the morals of the worthy people who insist upon a strict observance of the law of 1794.

The injustice of the old law is evident, and the Rev. Smith is to be commended for having the courage to denounce it from his pulpit.

Less Damage, Though More Fires, Credit to Bureau

Fire Chief Richard L. Smith attributes to increased efficiency of our fire fighting forces a great deal of the credit of a reduction of fire losses here in 1928, amounting to more than $1,136,000. The damage caused by fire last year represented a loss of $1,139,217, a decrease of approximately 49 per cent, compared to the $2,276,039 claimed by fire in 1927.

Better methods of fighting fire, better equipment to do it with, salvaging of property and property inspection to reduce fire hazards, Chief Smith says, are responsible for this saving. We imagine men of the bureau of fire must be entitled to some of the credit, too, since the saving was effected while the fire fighters were responding to 300 more alarms than they did in the previous year.

It is a record of which our bureau of fire may very well be proud.

Refrigeration Free Above

How Fruits Will Travel.

Two army fliers, trying for the altitude record, at 40,000 feet abandoned the attempt, fuel lacking. At that height, the temperature was 76 below zero. A fact important to future fliers, carrying perishable ripe fruits, and other goods needing refrigeration.

The flier will take his freshly picked ripe peaches, strawberries or avocados on board in Florida, California, Louisiana or anywhere on the Gulf Coast, rise in the air, watch his thermometer, fly to his market and descend with fruits picked ripe, covering the journey at exactly the right temperatures, no expense for refrigeration.

The future may see giant airships carrying meat from New Zealand and Australia to London, depending entirely on upper air refrigeration.

Artificial Sunlight

Use It Cautiously.

Congress orders three "sun lamps" that extract actinic rays from electric light and are almost as good as the sun's own rays.

But water itself is no more important to health than the sun's rays, and nobody objects to having running water in the Congressional Building. The important thing is to use artificial "sun rays" with caution. Unwisely used, they can be dangerous, especially to children.

Squandering National Wealth

Common Sense Should End It.

The powers of the oil world plan regional boards to stabilize oil production and prevent waste. This is done to stabilize values of oil securities. That is desirable, millions having such investments. But more important is protection for the future, threatened by reckless waste of a most important national asset.

No young fool ever squandered inherited money as this nation has been squandering its inherited oil wealth.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

PACIFISTS and other simpletons who think the Kellogg pact is a real move to end war should study this cartoon from the London Standard. Better than pages of explanation, it shows us ourselves as others see us.

It depicts the United States reluctantly agreeing to live with the pact—until the day comes to live without it.

The British artist calls it "Marriage a la Mode," which may be translated into plain American as "The Shotgun Wedding."

In shotgun weddings, the bridegroom goes to the altar to save appearances. Nobody with a grain of sense expects the marriage to take.

That is precisely what has happened and will happen again with the Kellogg pact. Its friends and relatives told the Senate, "You ain't doin' right by our little girl. You'll have to make an honest woman of her." The Senate kept the little gal waiting six weeks at the church before it walked down the aisle with her to the strains of Organist Borah's wedding march. And then, by "interpreting" its promise to love, honor and cherish her, it made the ceremony a farce.

As Mr. Glass, of Virginia, aptly said, "It is not worth a postage stamp in the direction of accomplishing permanent international peace."

The British know it, as this cartoon clearly shows. So do the French, Germans, Italians, Russians and Japanese. So do the Afghans, Albanians, Ethiopians, Icelanders and the 49 other peoples invited to attend the function.

Tales That Are Told

Well on the Way

LITTLE Leonard had been given a kitten for his birthday. It was the first he had ever had, and consequently he gave the creature a great deal of his attention.

He was playing with it by the fire one wintry afternoon. Very soon the kitten began to purr contentedly. Leonard jumped to his feet and, in spite of the kitten's howls, dragged it forcibly by its tail across the floor.

"Lenny!" shrieked his mother. "How can you be so cruel? You mustn't treat the poor little pussie like that. I've a good mind to take it away from you altogether."

Going to Extremes

THE wealthy merchant had taken his 20-year-old son into his business, but was disappointed to discover that town pleasures were proving more attractive to the young man than business activities.

One day, when the son left the office ostensibly to keep a business appointment, the father decided to follow him. He found that his son headed straight towards a certain club to which he belonged. After waiting a while outside the father entered the club and eventually ran his son to earth in the smoking-room. A bottle of whisky was on his table.

"Oh, but really, Dad," said the young man, "I must have my fling."

"H'm!" said the father, eyeing the bottle of Scotch. "But it needn't be a Highland fling."

Helping Herself

A VISITOR was dining at the Poplars, and when the dessert was reached Robina, the little daughter of the house, turned to the guest.

"You will have another helping of fruit tart, Mrs. Mugge, won't you?" she asked.

The visitor laughed at the earnest note in the youngster's voice.

"Well," she said, "since you are so pressing, I will have some more."

"Good!" Robina was delighted and looked triumphantly at her mother. "Now, you remember your promise, mummie? You said if it were necessary to cut into the second tart, I could have another piece."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

IT USED to be that city folks got a great kick out of making fun of farmers because the farmers didn't know much about street cars and the stock market. Well, in late years the city folks have had to admit that they knowed a lot less about those things than they'd ever supposed. So there ain't so much making sport of Unkle Zeek any more.

But there was a farm machinery exhibition held in one of these big city exposition palaces lately, and somebody picked up this. A lady come along to where a milking machine was on display.

"My goodness!" she says. "The very idea! A milking machine! And before Henry Ford come along, everybody supposed that you had to keep cows to get any milk!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I HAVE a contempt for lazy people. I look with virtuous disproval upon their shiftless ways, their wasteful dawdling when there's work to do. I refuse to dawdle with them. In every way possible I show my disapproval of lazy people—

BUT I ENVY THEM!

I loathe cowards. I note with horror their evasions of responsibility, their contemptible flight from danger, their escape from painful consequences. I tell myself how much nobler it is to be brave and resolute—and how glad I am that I am not a coward.

BUT NEVERTHELESS, I ENVY THEM!

I detest liars. I note their duckings and dodgings with disgust. I try to tell the truth, though often it complicates life terribly. But I insist that I would rather suffer any pain than be a liar.

AND YET—I ENVY THEM!

Outlaws—they're a bad lot. Bandits, adventurers, all such prowlers on the borders of society—as a respectable citizen I take my stand against them. I talk loudly about methods of curbing their lawlessness. I croak dire prophecies about the bad end they'll come to.

AND ALL THE TIME I'M SIMPLY GREEN WITH ENVY OF THE GRAND, EXCITING TIME THEY'RE HAVING.

You can go right down the line of the vices and my reaction is the same to every one of them—I'M LINED UP WITH THE SAINTS. BUT GOSH, HOW I ENVY THE SINNERS!

It is not.

It is the story of all men.

It is your story as well as mine.

IT IS THE STORY OF CIVILIZATION.

Men have always been involved in a struggle between their respect for virtue and their longing for vice. That is what has made them men. Otherwise they would have stayed apes.

Every normal creature wants to be lazy, cowardly, dishonest, lawless, because that was its natural condition as a brute.

But in every normal human creature there is also a small, fierce urge which makes it reach toward proud, industrious, orderly, honest, brave life.

Always the two urges are in conflict, and out of that struggle comes civilization.

Do not be horrified or discouraged if you see that struggle going on in yourself or in your children. Do not feel that you, or they, are unusual, abnormal. Do not feel that you or they have a secret shameful Other Self. Of course, you have. Everyone has. That's human life.

Human life is—AN APE REACHING FOR THE STARS.

Sometimes the ape will be so strong in you that you will feel its matted, hairy hide and hear the gnashing of its yellow fangs.

Laziness, dishonesty, cowardice, greediness, lawlessness, selfishness, conceit—those are ape qualities. We all possess them, for we all harbor apes. You will feel that ape shambling in you—often.

But sometimes, for a brief, breathless instant the ape will suddenly stand upright and there within its brutish hands will gleam a star. And for that little space the brute will be a Man!

REACH FOR YOUR STAR!

EDUCATION

By Garrett P. Serviss

I AM a friend of education. I do not think it is necessary to affirm that to those who may chance to know anything of the small but sincere efforts that I have made through the public press, during more than 30 years, to awaken and stimulate popular interest in the advance of knowledge, and to help spread the news of its achievements. Nevertheless, it may be desirable to recall the fact when, as now, I turn to attack the methods and the doings of the official representatives of education in this country.

Nobody believes more fully than I do in the American idea of an open road to knowledge for all the people. I believe in free training for every American child in the essentials of education, those common bases of human knowledge upon which each person must erect the edifice of his own life's work. I believe also that it is the duty of the people—I do not say the government, for there is too much "government" and too much talk about it—to see that every proper facility be afforded to those who manifest a keen desire and possess a fitness for training in the more abstruse branches of education.

* * *

I do not believe in the extravagant ideas and proceedings of those who would force an elaborate secondary school curriculum upon hundreds of thousands of young persons who have neither fitness, nor need, nor wish for it. Nor do I believe in the extravagant ideas and proceedings of those who, through tractable and easily flattered boards of education, have lately saddled upon thousands of cities and towns crushing burdens of debt for the purpose of constructing unnecessarily extensive and most expensively equipped school buildings, where it has been said—and it is to be feared without much exaggeration in many cases—that "the children are amused and entertained and permitted to do as they please, with no thought of intellectual discipline."

* * *

The simple fact is that education has been commercialized in America. The teacher's art has been commercialized. It is no longer an art—it is a standardized profession. Once there was a natural glory that crowned it. Boards of education are commercial-minded bodies. It has come about that it can be said with truth, and has been said, that:

"There is a very large economic interest in the expansion of the schools, not only physically but as regards the curriculum. Every time a new subject is introduced there is a new job, new equipment to be sold, perhaps a new classroom to be built and considerable profit to be made. Consequently the schools are expanding beyond all reason, and to the damage of pupils and taxpayers alike."

From the statistics of the United States Bureau of Education it appears that between 1890 and 1925, the number of pupils enrolled in the schools doubled, but the expenditures for the schools increased more than fourteen fold! Between 1920 and 1925 the number of pupils increased less than 15 per cent, but the expenditures almost doubled! (The figures are, 1920, pupils 21,587,-316, expenditures $1,036,151,209; 1925, pupils 24,876,599, expenditures $1,996,-048,770).

Bible Passages

David and Bath-Sheba

(I. Kings 1; 11-19.)

WHEREFORE Nathan spake unto Bath-sheba, the mother of Solomon, saying, Hast thou not heard that Adonijah the son of Haggith doth reign, and David our lord knoweth it not?

Now therefore come, let me, I pray thee, give thee counsel, that thou mayest save thine own life, and the life of thy son Solomon.

Go and get thee in unto king David, and say unto him, Didst not thou, my lord, O king, swear unto thine handmaid, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne? why then doth Adonijah reign?

Behold, while thou yet talkest there with the king, I also will come in after thee, and confirm thy words.

And Bath-sheba went in unto the king into the chamber: and the king was very old; and Abishag the Shunammite ministered unto the king.

And Bath-sheba bowed, and did obeisance unto the king. And the king sad, What wouldest thou?

And she said unto him, My lord, thou swearest by the Lord thy God unto thine handmaid, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne.

And he hath slain oxen and fat cattle and sheep in abundance, and hath called all the sons of the king, and Abithar the priest, and Joab the captain of the host: but Solomon thy servant, hath he not called.

Such Folly

SUCH folly! But I still will cling
To many a worn and useless thing:
A broken lamp, a threadbare chair,
A dress too shabby now to wear.
Are crowded in much-needed space.
And yet I can not let them go,
For they are part of one I know.
They shared with her youth's golden days,
With her they knew life's loveliest phase.
To give them up, I must resign
A portion of that self of mine,
And with them lose some evidence
Which satisfies my longing sense
That all those past days' vanished gleam
Was not, in very truth, a dream!

Isn't It So?

Pebbles on the Beach

By Herbert Kaufman

"THE poorest machinery creaks loudest."

Old Henri Fabre, the nonogenarian school-teacher, in whose backyard glowed the lamp that lastingly illuminates the insect world, epitomized his life experience in two sentences:

"To know what not to know is the height of wisdom."

"All human knowledge is as a single grain among the sands on the sea-shore."

Mr. Edison, also sticking to his lasts at eighty-two, pricks our sophomoric complacency with the announcement that "We don't yet know one-thousandth of one per cent about anything."

Cambridge University publishes a volume entirely devoted to earthworms. From it we find that men, consecrated exclusively to that one specialty, after eighty-five years, are only sure of half the ascertainable facts on such a seemingly simple subject.

All that the Twentieth Century is accomplishing was easily possible a thousand years earlier.

The raw materials for electricity, radio, the telephone, automobile, motion photography and all present marvels of science, existed in the same places and the same quantities, then. There are no new elements.

Youngsters, who complain that all the grand prizes in the grab-bag of opportunity have already been seized, are herewith reminded that the same sentiment was as generally prevalent in 1927—but the patent office reports 116,000 new inventions for last year, and looks for more the next.

Mr. Edison anticipates no let-down in the rate of progress—the older he grows, the more he discovers to do—and hope for.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Street begging in New York is becoming one of the memories. It is so long ago I cannot recall when last accosted by one of those shuffling moochers who sidled up with his whining: "Hey, Jack, gotta quarter for a cup of cawfee?"

New York, especially Broadway and Fifth avenue, was once lined somewhat in the fashion of the Appian way with beggars. Mendicancy became a specialized profession by which the worthless reaped an amazing harvest. It was not fiction many owned bank accounts and real estate.

Newspapers frequently carried stories of tatterdemalions picked up by the police with rolls of bills pinned in rags. And there was that exposure of the famous legless beggar who propelled himself up and down the avenue on a portable platform stirring the town.

He was discovered in an expensive apartment in a first-class hotel, supporting a limousine with chauffeur. His wardrobe, as well as that of his wife, was the finest, and at night he donned artificial limbs and fared forth to cafes and theaters.

For years in the glitter of Times Square stood "Crying Mary," a hooded Niobe, who had control of tear ducts and wept at will. When she died she left property in New Jersey valued at several hundred thousand. Also "Blue Pete," seared by a premature powder blast, who picked up a fortune selling pencils.

The most adroit of the mendicants selected after theater crowds for their pillage. The "dummy chucker" waited under the theater marquee and at opportune moments pounced upon a planted crust of bread in the gutter and devoured it rapidly, while gullibles tossed a shower of coins.

The lady "faint thrower" in tatters swooned and her handsomely dressed accomplice revived her and thrust a generous bill in her hand, thus inspiring onlookers to follow her lead. There are still beggars, but comparatively few, and they are, for the most part, the hopelessly crippled who are thoroughly deserving.

One of Park Row's unprinted stories concerns a murderer in a sensational case. It was told a reporter one night by a lawyer in his cups who came to his sober senses early enough next morning to beg the reporter to forget it. The reporter did. The murderer had sent for his wife and the lawyer. When they reached his darkened cell he implored his wife to come to the door and kiss him. As she approached, he struck at her in a maniacal fury with an iron rod taken from his cot. Only a crossbar, which it struck, saved her from instant death. The blow was with such force the murderer's hands were completely benumbed for 24 hours.

The finest hunting preserve hereabouts is maintained by Irving Berlin's papa-in-law, the dapper Mr. Clarence Mackay, on the east end of Long Island. Six thousand pheasants are raised every year, and among other game treasures are waterfowl, woodcock and deer. Others with private hunting grounds are Bernard Baruch, Jacob Ruppert, Arthur Iselin, Edward Hutton and M. R. Guggenheim. Game keepers are experienced men imported from Scotland and are paid fat salaries.

A hat store proprietor tells me most men who wear small sizes want to keep it a big secret, like the words of the "Star-Spangled Banner." When asked their size, they usually say they do not know. That is easy to understand. Every time I buy a No. 14¼ collar for myself I act as though it was for someone else.

* * *

There is something completely withering about the look a clerk gives you when you inform him your collar size is No. 14¼. You rather feel you will never be invited to Palm Beach as guest of Herbert Bayard Swope.

* * *

Still I know one of the Greek gods with a No. 17 collar and a No. 7⅜ hat and John Barrymore profile who has failed at every job he tackled, including that of a demonstrator for cubeb cigarets in a drug store window. And almost anybody, even with a 10½ collar and a chinless profile, should be able to fill that one.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

IT IS irksome to you to have to do the same thing over and over again.

"Down and back and sweat at hard labor, day in and day out," says the one who provides the wherewithal for the family upkeep.

You do your part in the same mechanical way that these criers who are heard so often, do you?

Don't you think you might improve on your method of doing?

Have you thought out all the details and how to get finer results?

Have you compared your work today with what you did a year ago?

Have you an idea of making your work one year from today something a great deal better than you have ever done before?

But you have thought of yourself as a mere machine.
